THOUSANDS JOIN FOURTH CELEBRATION

Fireworks on Lake Merritt to Be Feature of Tonight's Program; Berkeley and Alameda Hold Festivals

Undaunted by the cold weather and fog, thousands of Eastbay citizens gathered in downtown Oakland today to witness the parade which started the festivities for the Fourth of July.

More than forty organizations, civil, military and fraternal, were represented in the parade line this morning. The procession started from Second street and Broadway at 10:15 o'clock. The line of march from there was up Broadway to Thirteenth, west to Washington, north to Fifteenth, back to Broadway on San Pablo avenue, south to Thirteenth, east to Harrison, north to Grand avenue and east to Lakeside Park.

Lieutenant-Colonel C. G. Lawrence reviewed the parade and acted as judge for the award of the six silver trophy cups which will be presented at the exercises later today for the best military, naval, veteran and fraternal units in the line and the best decorated float and automobile.

Harry F. Huber was the grand marshal of the parade assisted by Rufus M. Whaley, chief of staff.

Many of the organizations that had reserved places in the parade were absent. The Boy Scouts had been promised transportation from their camp, but the transportation failed to materialize and they were forced to remain away.

This afternoon saw the barbecue and athletic meet at Lakeside park, the water carnival on Lake Merritt and several programs of [illegible] Lakeside park.

FIREWORKS ON LAKE TONIGHT.

Tonight the feature will be given in a fireworks display on Lake Merritt, when battle scenes representing the American attack at Chantigny, Chateau Thierry and the barrage of the St. Mihiel will take prominent places.

Special traffic regulation will be in force in Oakland this evening, starting at 7:30 o'clock. All westbound traffic on East Fourteenth and East Twelfth streets will be routed south at Third avenue to Eighth street. Eastbound traffic will go by way of Oak, Eleventh and Twelfth streets at the dam. Thirteenth street eastbound traffic will be routed south on Madison and Fourteenth street eastbound traffic on Oak. Southbound traffic on Oak will be routed west on Fourteenth street.

All streets leading into Lakeshore boulevard on the east side will be closed when traffic becomes congested. Vehicular traffic on all drives in Lakeside park will be stopped. No parking will be allowed on the Twelfth street dam.

BERKELEY HOLDS OWN FESTIVITIES.

The Berkeley parade today will go up Shattuck avenue from Blake street to University avenue, west to Grove and on Grove to the high school grounds where a program will be held at 11 o'clock.

Dr. David P. Barrows of the University of California will address the meeting on the subject, "Independence Day in Our Own History and With Other Peoples."

In the afternoon athletic and vaudeville events are planned on the high school grounds. In the evening a community dance will be held in the National Guard Armory under the auspices of the American Legion.

ALAMEDA FETE CENTERS ON BEACH.

In Alameda the Fourth of July celebration will center around the community exercises tonight at Neptune Beach. Speaking, fireworks, music and dancing are on the program for the evening.

Last night General Neville, U. S. M. C., commander of the American Argonne forces in the World War, was the speaker at a special program held by the Bay View Lodge, No. 401 and Chateau Thierry Lodge No. 569 of the F. and A. M. at the Scottish Rite Cathedral.

General Neville was introduced by James Muir, master of Bay View Lodge and chairman of the evening. Following General Neville's address Dr. Horace Lackey spoke on the significance of the flag.

The parade by divisions was as follows: First—Marshal Major Marshall Randol; Captain R. W. Boyes, Lieutenant P. Dean, Ensign Schreiner, aides.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—Calvin Coolidge Jr., younger son of the president and Mrs. Coolidge, is seriously ill at the White House, suffering from septic poisoning.

A broken blister on the foot, brought about during a tennis match, reached such a stage today that a consultation of physicians was held.

C. COOLIDGE JR.

Dr. John Dever of Philadelphia was called to Washington last night. He conferred today with the White House physicians, Major James F. Coupal and Lieutenant Commander Boone, and Dr. Charles W. Richardson of Washington and Colonel William L. Keller, in charge of Walter Reed hospital.

Little attention was at first paid to the injury which occurred while the two Coolidge boys were playing last Monday. It became serious Wednesday and last night the poison had spread throughout the body, aggravating the case considerably. A high fever resulted. Physicians have issued no official bulletin so far.

Calvin Jr., is 16 years old. He returned to the White House from school at Mercersburg, Pa., with his brother John, two weeks ago. The boys have spent all of the time since at the White House, expecting to enter within a few days the citizen's military training camp at Camp Devens, Mass.

President and Mrs. Coolidge have called off all engagements for the remainder of the day and also a planned trip down the Potomac river on the Mayflower. The president kept an engagement this morning, however, to speak before the National Education Association.

E. T. Clark, private secretary to President Coolidge, in announcing the illness characterized it as very painful as well as in a serious stage. The two White House physicians are remaining in constant attendance.

MYSTERY VICTIM DIES FROM CRASH

Victim May Be Kings County Deputy Attorney or Fresno Driver.

SAN JOSE, July 4.—Crushed beneath an overturned auto the body of a man believed to be either Sidney J. W. Sharpe, deputy district attorney of Kings county, or A. H. Tregoning of Fresno, was found at 3:30 o'clock this morning by passing automobilists.

In a brief case beside the car were papers belonging to Sharpe. The automobile, from which the registration card had been removed is registered in the name of Tregoning.

The auto was found at an angle of the cutoff road between the Alviso-Santa Clara and the Alviso-San Jose roads. It is believed the driver was on his way home from San Francisco. When deputies from Sheriff George W. Lyle's office reached the spot the body was still warm. The dead man is believed to have been alone in the car.

2 INFANTS DIE IN BURNING AUTO.

REDDING, July 4.—Caught in a blazing automobile which burst into flames while the gasoline tank was being refilled at a local service station, three-year-old Mary Wilson was burned to death despite the attempt of her father to rescue her, and her brother, Jimmie, 18 months old, also burned, died after being rushed to a hospital.

Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Wilson of Ukiah, escaped without injury.

Wilson had stopped his car at a service station and was at the rear getting ready to take on gasoline when the front portion of the automobile caught fire. He declares the engine was not running. The children were in the back seat.

Wilson seized the little boy and carried him a good distance from the burning machine, fearing that the gasoline tank would explode. The father ran back to the car and tried to get the little girl, but could not.

Wilson was badly burned about

HELEN WILLS DEFEATED IN TITLE FINALS

Kathleen McKane Comes Back in Fast Play After Losing First Set; Champion's Heavy Drives Win

Berkeley Girl Loses Last Set After Line Ball Is Called Foul; Outplayed British Star at the Start

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 4.—Miss Helen Wills, American woman lawn tennis champion, was defeated today in the Wimbledon tournament final by Miss Kathleen McKane, ranking British woman player, who won, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4, capturing the tournament championship in the woman's singles.

Miss McKane, by defeating Miss Wills in a three-set match in which the honors were almost evenly divided, attained the title which Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen of France had held against the opposition of the world since the war.

HELEN WILLS.

The slight advantage which the English girl held over her American rival was in more deadly stroking from close to the net. It was this that enabled her to win the championship. The margin between the two players seemed to lie in the fact that Miss McKane was audacious while Miss Wills was cautious.

PACE FAST IN ENTIRE SETS.

From first to last the pace was tremendously keen. Miss Wills was far speedier with racquet and with foot than she had been in any previous appearance in Great Britain, but she was not as quick limbed as the lighter built Miss McKane, who caused Miss Wills to smash hard at the net and was able to pick up many of the American's volleys.

KATHLEEN McKANE

The English girl, on the contrary, usually put points in her favor with tremendous swipes at the ball whenever she was near the net.

From back-court to mid-court there was little to choose between the two players. Both stroked hard and with good aim, the duel varying from back-hand to fore-hand with each chasing the other mercilessly.

Both were obviously tiring from the strain of constant running before the last set ended.

Both players had a fine variety of strokes, often sending sizzling placements past each other's reach. Each received brilliantly at times shots which seemed impossible to reach, keeping the crowd in a constant state of excitement.

Miss Wills during the last part of the first set and the early part of the second, was very near the peak of her finest game, giving British tennis enthusiasts a chance for the first time to see a real American woman champion.

DARING SHOTS TURN GAME TREND.

When it seemed that the California girl had the second set in hand at 4-1 and was likely to win the match and the championship, Miss McKane began taking chances. Her audacity was supported by the sureness of the timing of all her strokes and she ran off with the set in a great burst of daring shots, most of which found their marks or else invited errors on the part of her opponent.

Almost every volley duel in the latter part of the second set—when the match really "broke" in favor of the British girl—was won by Miss McKane.

In the last game of the last set, when Miss McKane was leading 5-4, one of Miss Wills' drives hit the back line, raising some dust, but it was called out. It seemed to surprise her, making the score 30-all. A moment later one of Miss Wills' fastest forehand drives plunged into the tape at the top of the net and fell back into her own court.

The two rivals entered the center court at 4:05 o'clock, the American girl wearing a yellow sweater which she quickly removed. Miss Wills wore her own original type of eyeshade, while Miss McKane wore a blue handeau.

The California girl had the service in the first game and won it 4-1 on a volley placement, a net and two drives out of court by her

PROGRESSIVE RALLY IS FOR LA FOLLETTE

By PAUL R. MALLON,
United Press Staff Correspondent.

AUDITORIUM, CLEVELAND, O., July 4. — The name of Robert M. La Follette was acclaimed with wild enthusiasm in the first session of the Progressive convention here today.

A communication from the Progressive leader officially announcing his presidential candidacy as an independent upon endorsement by the convention, is expected to be read to the delegates later in the day.

Routine business of organization and selection of committees which are to pass upon the progressive platform were completed and the committee immediately went to work.

The name of La Follette was a magic word blazoned before every mind in the big auditorium where [illegible] was nominated. Choruses sang La Follette campaign songs, his pictures hung with those of Wash-

KRAUSE PITCHING BEATS BEES 2 TO 0

Veteran Southpaw Yields Only Two Hits in First of Double-Header.

Hurling two-hit, shut-out ball, Harry Krause, veteran Oakland southpaw, blanked the visiting Salt Lake Bees in the first game of the Independence Day double header this morning at the Oakland Coast League park by a count of 2 to 0.

Opposed to Krause on the hill was Singleton, who checked the Acorns earlier in the week in a ten-inning struggle.

Singleton hurled a brand of ball this morning which would ordinarily win, but his mates were unable to touch Krause for a single run and marlers in the second and third innings for the Oaks, the result of timely hits, spelled defeat for the Bee hurler.

In the second Al Maderas, sitting in at third base in place of McCarren for the first time in several weeks, delivered a sizzling single to center to score Guisto with the first run.

U. S. ANTHEM IS ONE NOTE OF HARMONY

Massachusetts Delegate Says He Was Offered $1000 to Desert Smith for McAdoo; N. Y. Chief's Managers Hit

By J. R. KNOWLAND,
Publisher, The TRIBUNE.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, July 4.—"When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands," read Augustus Thomas to the Democratic convention this afternoon at the opening of the session and then, as the voting begun there was no indication of the dissolving of the political bands binding delegates to Smith and McAdoo.

The only note of harmony sounded was when all joined in singing the "Star Spangled Banner."

The fireworks for the day were furnished by a charge made by Daniel J. Daley, a delegate from Massachusetts that he had been approached by a former Boston lawyer and promised one thousand dollars if he would change from Smith to McAdoo. This has [illegible] dollar bills are being distributed by Smith managers to assist in the financing of delegates.

CALIFORNIANS WANT TO MOVE CONVENTION TO S. F.

And, to further add to the confusion, the McAdoo people are threatening to take the convention elsewhere and Californians are pointing out the advantages of San Francisco as a convention city.

When the convention took the sixty-first ballot early this morning it had broken the record for any political convention in the history of the United States. It had exceeded the fifty-seven cast at Charleston in 1860, the Whig convention record of 1852, when General Winfield Scott was nominated on the fifty-third ballot, and the Republican endurance test of 1880, when on the thirty-sixth ballot James A. Garfield was named at Chicago.

The fact stands out that there is no real leadership in this convention. Gavin McNab of San Francisco, a most astute politician, has, during the past few days, endeavored to bring the loose ends together, but has been handicapped because of his tie-up with McAdoo, which, of course, limits his usefulness in the present situation.

FIGHT IS CONTINUATION OF ROWS OVER KLAN.

George T. Brennan of Illinois, heralded as the boss controlling that state's delegation, has been unable to date to swing but a small number and no group has been as badly split.

Tom Taggart of Indiana has played all ends in the interest of Senator Ralston and a comparison of notes by leading candidates has made it hard sledding for his candidate, although they may turn to him .. sheer desperation.

The real truth is that the contest now going on is but a continuation of the battle of last Sunday morning, between the Klan and anti-Klan forces, and this is why the McAdoo and Smith groups are so wide apart.

The fight is nation-wide and thousands of telegrams are pouring in upon the delegates. The McAdoo delegates are urged to stick it out all summer if they can ultimately defeat Smith and those in sympathy with the New York governor are sitting tight and picking up votes here and there when state delegations break up. So intense is the feeling as expressed in telegrams that delegates are assured that their farms and business interests will be looked after if they will remain in New York.

A number of the women delegates have left hotels and are being taken into New York homes and relieved of the heavy expense that was draining their limited resources.

There has been nothing like it in history, and it is not surprising that those high in the Democratic councils are deeply concerned and apprehensive.

The nerves of those sitting day after day in the stuffy hall are on WASHINGTON, July 4.—Compulsory education, if necessary, controlled and supported by the state under the guidance of the federal government, was advocated today by President Coolidge, speaking before the 15,000 delegates of the National Education Association at the concluding session of their annual convention.

The administration has proposed, in the government reorganization plan, a department of education and relief to be presided over by a cabinet officer, the president reminded the teachers in reference to their demands for a cabinet member on education. This plan, however, had his endorsement, he added, "bearing in mind that this does not mean any interference with the local control and dignity but is rather an attempt to recognize the importance of educational effort."

IGNORANCE SOURCE OF POVERTY, VICE, CRIME.

Refraining from any discussion of the political situation, Coolidge emphasized the importance of education to America and lauded the teaching profession, saying the teachers are entitled not only to adequate rewards but to the honor of a grateful people.

"Ignorance," the President declared, "is the most fruitful source of poverty, vice and crime and it is easy to realize the necessity for removing what is a menace, not only to our social well-being, but to the very existence of the republic.

In this connection, he reminded the delegates there were 3,000,000

McAdoo Sends Women Workers Out to Persuade Favorite Sons to Withdraw to End Nomination Deadlock

Senator Ralston, Indiana, and Former Governor Cox, Ohio, 1920 candidate, withdraw from race for nomination.

Talk of calling off the gathering, taking a month to cool off and reassembling in some other city began to assume real proportions.

A number of influential state leaders announced that unless an agreement is reached by tomorrow their delegations would return home.

Announcing his intention to "fight until the last drop of blood runs out of me," McAdoo opened a campaign to persuade the favorite sons to retire from the nomination race. He sent women workers to confer with all the state delegations.

The Cleveland hotelmen's association invited the Democrats to finish their convention in Cleveland.

Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, who got Ohio's 48 votes when Cox withdrew on the sixty-fourth ballot, climbed to 55 on the sixty-fifth.

The convention defeated a motion to allow each of the candidates to address an executive session tonight.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, July 4.—The first break in the line of favorite son candidates, which both leaders charge has been holding the Democratic national convention in deadlock, came during the sixty-fourth ballot today when Senator Ralston, of Indiana, authorized the withdrawal of his name and former Governor James M. Cox, of Ohio, standard bearer in 1920, also pulled out of the race.

Indiana gave 20 votes to McAdoo and 10 to Smith, while Ohio decided to vote for a time for Newton D. Baker, secretary of war under Woodrow Wilson.

"FOR SAKE OF PARTY HARMONY," RALSTON SAYS.

Thomas Taggart of Indiana read the Ralston telegram of withdrawal. He said to the convention:

I hold in my hand a telegram from that stalwart, loyal, rugged Democrat, Senator Ralston, saying that in this hour the crying need of judgment and party harmony rises supremely above the personal ambition of any man.

The delegates from Indiana are just as loyal to Senator Ralston now as the day he was put in nomination. We have believed and we believe now he is the logical nominee of this convention for party success next November. With great reluctance, therefore, the Indiana delegation, in obedience to his mandate, now withdraws his name from the list of candidates before this convention."

He then read the following telegram from Senator Ralston:

"For the sake of party harmony, I forego any personal ambitions I may have and request you to withdraw my name from further consideration by the convention.

(Signed):

"SAMUEL M. RALSTON."

NO PERSONAL AMBITION, COX TELEGRAM ASSERTS.

Former Congressman J. Henry Goeke of the Ohio delegation announced his withdrawal of Cox, and read the following telegram:

Whenever in your judgment the withdrawal of my name from the consideration of the convention will promote harmony and bring the existing deadlock to an end I trust you will, without delay, take such action as you then deem advisable. I have no personal ambition that rises above my devotion to the Democracy and this message to you is prompted by a desire to serve the cause that has honored me.

Many persons remembering that I am the titular leader of the party until a nomination is edge. The constant yelling from the galleries for Smith and the booing and hissing at the McAdoo group by the governor's sympathizers have tried the patience of many delegates until most anything is likely to happen if a settlement is not soon reached.

In view of the referendum proposed on the League of Nations issue a Democrat anxious to return to the bosom of his family suggested a referendum on presidential candidates. For this plan it can at least be said that it is just as practicable as the platform scheme and would be as decisive.

Compulsory Education in U. S. Urged by President native illiterates in this country as well as 14,000,000 foreign born illiterate white persons. Many of the latter are above school age, he said, but nevertheless he insisted they be given the opportunity to read and write the English language, "that they might come into more direct contact with the ideals and standards of our political and social life."

Greater attention to rural schools also was urged by the President. Recalling his attendance at an "old one-room country school," he argued that these institutions must give way to the consolidated school "with a modern building and an adequate teaching force commensurate with the best advantages that are provided for our urban population."

"EDUCATION SHOULD BE CITIZENSHIP'S HANDMAID."

"It is necessary," he added, "that education should be the handmaid of citizenship. Our institutions are constantly and very properly the subject of critical inquiry. Unless their nature is comprehended, unless their origin is understood, unless their value be properly assessed, the citizen falls ready prey to those selfish agitators who would exploit his prejudices to promote their own advantage.

"On this day, of all days, it ought to be made clear that America has had its revolution and placed the power of government squarely, securely and entirely in the hands of the people. For all changes which they may desire, for all grievances which they may suffer, the ballot box furnishes a complete method and remedy. Into their hands had been committed complete jurisdiction and control over all the functions of government. For the most part our institutions are attacked in the name of social and economic reform. Unless there be some teaching of sound economics in the schools, the voter and taxpayer is in danger of accepting vague theories which lead only to social discontent and public disaster.

"Every one ought to realize that the sole source of national wealth is thrift and industry, and that the sole supply of the public treasury is the toil of the people. Of course, patriotism is always to be taught. National defense is a necessity and a virtue, but peace with honor is the normal, natural condition of mankind and must be made the chief end to be sought in human relationship.

"NO SUBSTITUTE FOR MORALITY, CHARACTER."

"Another element must be secured in the training of citizenship, or all else will be vain. All of our learning and science, our culture and our arts, will be of little avail, unless they are supported by high character, unless there be honor, truth and justice, unless our material resources are supported by moral and spiritual resources, there is no foundation for progress. A trained intelligence can do much, but there is no substitute for morality, character and religious convictions. Unless these abide, American citizenship will be found unequal to its task . . .

"Our country is in the process of development. . . . We have not yet arrived at perfection. A scientific investigation of child life has been begun, but yet remains to be finished. There is a vast amount of ignorance and misunderstanding, of envy, hatred and jealousy, with their attendant train of vice and crime. We are not yet free, but we are struggling to become free economically, socially, politically and spiritually. We have limited our amount of immigration, in order that the people who live here, whether of native or foreign origin, might continue to enjoy the economic advantages of our country, and there might not be any lowering of the standards of our existence, that America might remain American. We have submitted an amendment to the national constitution designed to protect the child life of the nation from the unwarranted imposition of toil, that it might have greater opportunity for enlightenment. All of these movements are in the direction of increased national freedom, and an advance toward the realization of the vision of Washington and Lincoln."

Officers Elected At Final Session

WASHINGTON, July 4.—Reports of its committees on resolutions and nominations were adopted at the final business session of the National Education Association's convention.

Resolutions approved called for endorsement of the Sterling-Reed education bill, demand for permanent tenure guarantees and pensions for teachers, approval of the child labor constitutional amendment, and of the anti-narcotic measures taken by the government, recommendations for the establishment of tribunals for consideration of international disputes to prevent future wars, and regret for the disregard for laws, especially those forbidding the liquor traffic.

A proposal from a member of the Ohio delegation to approve America's participation in the League of Nations caused a stir and was withdrawn.

Jesse H. Newlon, superintendent of schools of Denver, was unanimously elected president of the association. All other officers named by the nominations committee were elected.

With Cox and Ralston withdrawn from the race, the vote on the sixty-fifth ballot showed some substantial changes. The figures for the principals were:

McAdoo 492; Smith 336.5; Davis 71.5.

This was a gain of four and a half for McAdoo; eleven and a half for Smith and ten for Davis.

When the convention was called to order soon after the appointed hour, the Rev. Paul Mansfield Spencer of the Church of the Strangers, New York, offered the invocation. Then Mrs. William E. Mills of Helena, Mont., sang the Star Spangled Banner.

Then Augustus Thomas read the Declaration of Independence. While the reading was going on William J. Bryan himself dispelled the exaggerated report of his death by appearing among the Texas delegation and taking a seat.

The delegation leaders and candidate managers took advantage of the preliminaries to do some more conferring. Norman E. Mack of New York declared to inquirers:

"There may be a lot of backing and filling here; nothing may be done until next week."

Today a son previous sessions when the fight had been hot each leader of a McAdoo delegation on the floor received a personally signed letter from McAdoo expressing confidence in the outcome and urging the McAdoo delegates not to become discouraged.

FIGHT OPPONENT FROM NET PLAY.

The American came back and won the fifth game 4-1 and drew level in the fast driving duel by winning the sixth by a similar score against Miss McKane's service. She went ahead in the seventh 4-1, while the English player took the long and brilliant eighth, 7-5. The ninth was taken by Miss Wills 7-5. The pace was fast and hard, neither player allowing the other to hold the net.

Miss Wills finally took the set 6-4 by outdriving and outlobbing Miss McKane in the tenth game, in which the points were 4-2.

Miss McKane won the second set, 6-4.

Miss Wills was a bit steadier and more versatile than her English opponent in the first set, using all her varied assortment of strokes in the fast-footed fight.

BRITISHER BREAKS HELEN'S SERVICE.

Miss McKane won the 6th, 9-7, the seventh, 4-1, and the eighth, 4-1 placing hard smashes near the line. She forged ahead by winning the ninth, 5-3, with strong net play against the American's service, and took the tenth, 4-0 f orthe set.

In the third set Miss McKane, who had begun to get to the net effectively, won the first game, 4-1.

Miss Wills won the second game of the third set, 6-4; Miss McKane the third, 4-2, and the American girl the fourth, 4-2, all going against service. The American girl took the fifth, 4-2, with the fastest flying forehead drive of the match, but Miss McKane won the last three games, 6-4, 4-1, 5-3.

AMERICAN TEAM WINS DOUBLES FINAL.

WIMBLEDON, July 4. — R. Norris Williams and Watson M. Washburn, the American pair, entered the finals of the men's doubles of the Wimbledon lawn tennis tournament today. In their match with Randolph Lycett and L. A. Godfree, England, in the semi-finals the Americans were leading two sets to one and the score 7-7 in the fourth set when Lycett was taken with a sudden cramp in the leg and forced to retire with his partner.

The match therefore was awarded to Williams and Washburn.

Lycett and Godfree took the first set of this match, 6 to 4. The second set, a ding-dong affair, went with the service until the 22d game, when the Americans, on Williams' fine work at the net, broke through the service of Lycett and won, 6-3, aided by Williams, pulling a game up from love 40 on his own service by a series of aces in placements.

The American pair's lead, when the match ended, was largely due to the brilliance of Williams. Washburn was weak and inaccurate.

It developed after the match ended that Lycett's retirement was due to a sprained ankle.

"I'm Proud of Her," Dr. Wills Declares

BERKELEY, July 4. — "Helen's made a remarkably fine showing and I'm mighty proud of her even if she didn't win the championship," Dr. C. A. Wills, father of Helen Wills, declared.

"I would have liked to see her winwin, of course, but at that she has accredited herself wonderfully, playing as she did on strange courts and with an English audience naturally spurring on their countrywoman. There'll be other contests ahead for Helen."

W. C. Fuller, known as "Pop" Fuller, who trained the Berkeley girl, said:

"Any girl who wins her way to the finals at Wimbledon has something to be proud of, whether she wins or loses the deciding match. Helen and Miss McKane have always been evenly matche and their games have been played with close margins.

"Last year at Forest Hills, Helen defeated Miss McKane and this year the scored is reversed. It's just part of the game.

"If Helen had been playing Suzanne Lenglen I think she might have won. As it was she was playing with the crowd against her. I'm mighty proud of her for her wonderful showing and to be defeated by Miss McKane is nothing to be ashamed of."

Race Not Over, Says Ralston's Manager

NEW YORK, July 4.—Although Senator Ralston's vote rose to almost a hundred and then dropped back under 40 in the convention session closing early this morning, Thomas Taggart said he was not discouraged.

"We have released our friends outside of Indiana from voting for the senator for the present," he said. "We will be heard from again. The race isn't over by any means."

Taggart did not want to start increasing the senator's vote yesterday as early as he was forced to, it was indicated, and he might have held off throughout the day had not it been for the Mississippi shift. The Mississippians wanted to go go to Ralston quickly during the morning, so Taggart consented. Then came Missouri in a block, and scattering votes from other states followed.

McAdoo workers found Taggart quite willing to release votes when they wanted them. The Indiana leader also sent word to the Smith states which had been giving him votes to stop whenever they chose, all of which was in keeping with Taggert's plan to offend nobody with Ralstoon's candidacy.

INTERNATIONAL COMMUNIST MEET IS TAME AFFAIR

By F. A. MacKENZIE.
Special Cable to The Oakland TRIBUNE and The Chicago Daily News.

MOSCOW, July 4.—Moscow, ever clever at finding nicknames, calls the International Communist congress for promoting world revolution which has just been concluded here, "The White Comin-turn."

The title is apt. Compared with the Fourth Congress which the correspondent attended in 1922, this was an anemic affair largely absorbed in personal disputes between the leaders and in fierce controversies over the policy to be followed in disciplining weakening comrades.

While Russian communists are growing in strength, organized Communism in most other parts of the world tends to decline, and its representatives tend toward moderate doctrines. Nothing has aroused a more stinging rebuke from the orthodox leaders than the inclination in some foreign countries to substitute peaceful doctrine for violent revolution.

"If there exists the belief that the workers' government must come and can come peacefully, we must fight it," said Zinoviev, in his final exordium. "We must teach the workers that if they want a workers' government they must conquer the bourgeisie. Civil war cannot be avoided."

RUSS OFFICIALS THERE.

The Russian government has taken no part whatever in the proceedings although members of the government in their private capacity, participated freely. While the last Congress was freely open to the press, all independent correspondents were excluded and only communists and strong communist sympathizers were admitted to this one.

The Communists issued their own reports of the proceedings. Trotzky's amazing reception when he approached the tribune on the opening night, was not mentioned but the welcome given Zinoviev, head of the party machine, was carefully detailed.

Zinoviev retained his hold and his policies were approved although not without much controversy. His policy may be summarized as that of the extreme left. The party will cooperate where advisable, with more moderate groups abroad and with social revolutionists, but only for promoting its final aims. For example, Zinoviev frankly stated that they would cooperate with the British menshevik labor government although it was a more dangerous enemy to Communism than the bourgeoisie, but such cooperation did not mean that there would not be civil war.

Much time was taken over internal struggles in communist organizations in Czecho Slovakia, Norway, America and elsewhere, Zinoviev declaring that the fight between two groups inside the American party must end.

CLEVELAND, July 4.—Extolling Senator Robert M. La Follette after ridiculing the Republican party, scorning the Democratic organization and fiercely denouncing communists, William H. Johnston, head of the Machinists International Union and chairman of the Conference for Progressive Political Action, today struck the keynote of the convention of the latter organization at its opening here. Independence in politics rather than a "third party" movement was emphasized as expedient.

Senator La Follette was hailed as "the tribute of the American people, their greatest spokesman and their most loyal defender."

The recent Republican national convention was referred to as a "lifeless gathering of political puppets;" the Democratic convention as a "disorderly mob meeting, which responded to boss control quite obediently in its voting," and the communists as "tools of reaction who are constantly striving to destroy the American labor movement and create chaos in the ranks of the progressives."

REPRESENTING OF FIVE MILLION IS CLAIMED.

Johnston claimed the present convention represents 5,000,000 citizens and he said its program was broad enough to include the best interests of wage earners, farmers, salaried employes, professional men and "independent" bankers, manufacturers and merchants.

He said in part:

"We have gathered on this 148th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence for action to secure those rights for which 'governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.'

"When that immortal declaration of the rights of man was proclaimed our forefathers were engaged in a struggle to establish political freedom. Today the people of the United States are engaged in a contest to achieve for themselves and their children, the equally great blessings of economic freedom.

"There is no economic freedom, no equality of economic opportunity in the United States today for any great group of its common people.

American farmers see their prosperity wantonly deflated by a financial conspiracy and find themselves obliged to sell their products in a world market, while the trusts and monopolies from which they must buy are artificially protected by the highest tariff wall in American history.

TRUSTS RAPPED AS CONTROLLING SITUATION.

"The employes of the steel trust, the copper trust, the woolen trust and the hundreds of other great combinations must accept employment on such terms as Gary, Ryan, Wood and the other industrial magnates offer, or risk unemployment and starvation.

"The independent manufacturer must buy and sell in a trust-controlled market and is suffered to exist only on condition that he does not engage in active and effective competition.

"The small merchant finds his wholesale and retail prices fixed by trusts and combinations, while he, himself, is being slowly but surely forced out of business.

"The independent banker is permitted to participate in the sale of bonds and the financing of new enterprises only by the grace of the great banking syndicate, while he already sees his early extinction by resistless competition from the branches of the great centralized financial institutions.

"We may not know it, but we are all in the same boat."

Johnston recited the history of the progressive movement, pointing to political victories in the congressional elections of 1922 and the fact that the progressives held the balance of power in the last session of congress as proof that it was wise not to launch a third party in 1922.

VIGILANCE MAINTAINED "AGAINST TRAITORS."

"In mobilizing our army of progress," he stated, "it has been necessary to be forever vigilant against traitors. So far we have successfully excluded boodlers, bosses, exploiters, profiteers and prejudice-blinded fanatics. We have also kept out those communist tools of reaction who, masking as federated farmer-laborites, trade union educational leaguers of under even more attractive designations, are constantly striving to destroy the American labor movement and create chaos in the ranks of the progressives."

Johnston said the Republicans, "with appropriate stupidity," had nominated two reactionaries on "a platform of meaningless platitudes." He asserted the democratic party had "again proved the fitness of its emblem, the patient donkey," by straddling its platform on such questions as child labor, league of nations and Ku Klux Klan and added that both major parties had consistently broken their platform pledges when in power.

The chairman denounced the federal reserve system order in 1920 restricting loans for carrying crops. He said it forced farmers to throw all accumulated produce upon the market and caused great price smashing.

"It was shrewdly caluculated," he said, "that the prostrate farmers would demand that labor also be hammered down into poverty and helplessness, but among the great mass of farmers a different reaction was produced. They saw that industrial workers and farmers had one common set of enemies."

Johnston declared the time ripe for national action.

COLLECTION TAKEN TO FINANCE CAMPAIGN.

Girls went through the hall collecting pans full of ten-dollar bills to finance the La Follette campaign after a plea by Edward Keating, secretary of the convention, who said La Follette could not expect any contributions from "the predatory interests which finance the other political campaigns."

Keating also denounced President Coolidge, for whom he said it had been admitted that "a Boston department store man is angel."

The sentiments of an apparently overwhelming majority of the convention were manifest by the enthusiastic manner in which the keynote speech of William H. Johnston, chairman, was received. They stood and cheered for him when he denounced communism and served notice that this convention would not disjoint itself over the Ku Klux Klan, "as the Democrats did."

A plea to women of the Nation was made by Mrs. Edward P. Costigan, of Washington, who declared the hope of mothers for the outlawing of wars lay in the platform of progressives.

OFFERED AS CANDIDATE OF FARMER AND WORKER.

Johnston, machinists' leader, in his keynote speech at the opening of the convention, offered La Follette to the nation as the individual candidate "of the farmer and the worker" who could fight their cause against the old line Republican and Democratic parties in the coming campaign.

Johnston, in a fighting Independence Day speech, called upon all Progressives to rally behind La Follette and to strengthen the voting power of Progressives in the next congress so that their forces "could move forward and regain control of every branch of our government from these corrupt and selfish interests that now dominate it."

The Republican and Democratic conventions were denounced by Johnston as "puppets of reactionary interests." He set up La Follette as the leader who might draw the Progressive groups in both the big parties and prevent the election of their "boss picked" candidates.

"Let us build up soundly the structure of a great progressive movement and force a realignment of political forces along fundamental lines," he said. "We are sick of the artificial distinctions between Democrats and Republicans. We are tired of voting for Tweedledum and Tweedledee.

"We have a leader, that life-long servant of the people—Robert M. La Follette."

FROM PLATFORM WHERE COOLIDGE WAS NOMINATED.

Johnston's speech was made from the same platform where the Republicans a few weeks ago chose President Coolidge as their candidate. He spoke to an audience of 1000 delegates gathered from every state in the country by the recent call for this "conference for progressive political action."

The cause of the farmer and worker must be the basis of the new movement, Johnston contended. "There is no economic freedom, no equality of economic opportunity for any great group of common people," he said.

He spoke of the people who see their prosperity "wantonly deflated by a financial conspiracy, while the trusts from which they must buy are artificially protected by the highest tariff wall in history."

He spoke of "the pirates and freebooters who now control the industrial workers and salaried employees, professional men, independent manufacturers, merchants and bankers."

DENOUNCES MOVE OF COMMUNISTS.

Denouncing the announcement of the Communists to squeeze themselves into the La Follette movement, Johnston said: "In mobilizing our army of progress we have excluded boodlers, the bosses, the profiteers, the prejudice blinded fanatics and communist tools of reaction. The communists, made up of the federated farmer-laborites, are constantly striving to destroy the American labor movement and create chaos in the ranks of the progressives.

"Our course of action is clear. We must strive in this campaign not only to increase the number of genuine progressives in congress, but also to elect a president and vice-president who will cooperate with them whole-heartedly."

In supporting candidates for congress the progressives should not consider whether they are Republicans, Democrats, Socialists or Farmer-Laborites, "so long as they are genuinely progressive," he said.

Johnston drew a comparison between La Follette and Ramsay MacDonald, the British Labor premier, who would together, he said, voice the desire of the "common people against wars for commercial conquest." The next war he said, would be a war for oil resources and La Follette with MacDonald could stifle it."

I'LL FIGHT UNTIL LAST DROP OF BLOOD: M'ADOO

Sends Women Out to Persuade Favorite Sons to Withdraw From Race.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

NEW YORK July 4 — Declaration of his purpose "to fight until the last drop of blood run out of me" was made by W G McAdoo contender for the Democratic presidential nomination in an address today to a battalion of women who called at his headquarters.

"I have no selfish interest in this fight," McAdoo told the women. "The very life of the Democratic party is at issue. The fate of Democracy is involved."

McAdoo declared the convention was deadlocked by two factors. The first he said was the thought entertained by the supporters of the favored sons that Governor Smith might "quit." The second was the belief in certain quarters that the "McAdoo forces will quit."

"The opposition to us is highly organized but they will go down to defeat just as the highly organized forces in Europe went down to defeat before the united soldiers of Democracy" he continued. "We have not only to fight the sinister influences in our own party but also every sinister influence in the Republican party.

"I WOULD DEADLOCK EVERYTHING FOR PRINCIPLE"

"Be calm and confident in your strength. What does 83 or 163 ballots mean? If it goes 163 ballots it means we are much nearer our goal."

McAdoo characterized the women forces in the McAdoo ranks as "a force irresistible and undefeatable."

"Go into every delegation and put your case before them," he advised.

"I would deadlock anything to fight for principle and purpose" he concluded. "It is our duty to make the favorite sons see their cause is hopeless. I cheer you on Christian soldiers."

After the address the women organized plans to continue their fight. It was decided that in parties of five they would call on women in all state delegations not voting solidly for McAdoo in the interest of the McAdoo candidacy.

Arrangements also were made for the McAdoo women to march in a body from McAdoo's hotel to the convention hall, singing "Glory, Glory Hallelujah."

After McAdoo had left the room and all the business had been transacted the women were led in prayer by Mrs. Ella J. Flanders of Missouri.

McADOO CROSSWISE WITH RAILROAD WORKERS.

McAdoo later met with some fifty railroad labor leaders behind closed doors for more than an hour.

"Eleven eastern states with 300 delegates out of 1098 have deadlocked the convention. The moving force behind this drama is the Republican party, as the eleven states are Republican and their delegates are mere pawns on the Republican checkerboard."

Miss Wilson Joins In Ballot Action

NEW YORK July 4 — Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of the late ex-president, cast Georgia's 28 votes for her brother-in-law W G. McAdoo on the 59th ballot at the Democratic convention last night.

Miss Wilson, dressed in deep mourning, was escorted to the Georgia section during the 58th ballot as a guest of the Georgia delegation. When Georgia was called Miss Wilson climbed on a chair and grasping the standard with one hand shouted out the vote. She received generous applause from the audience.

Ralston Stumps, Smith Climbs in Night Balloting

Indianian's Total Cut From 97 to 37: McAdoo Ends Session With 469.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN NEW YORK July 4 — Having stood the ground through 61 ballots the worst that any political convention has ever held leaders of the democratic party adjourned the convention at midnight in order to consult and negotiate an arrangement before resuming at 1 p m today.

The balloting stopped at 1 o'clock with both sides claiming a material change except the case of Smith to show high point of 535½ roughly one-third of the votes. McAdoo finished with 469½ having made a rally up to 469 on the 59th. Balloting of Indiana who started on the 60th ballot after the recess with his high mark tumbled down to 37½ but his managers said no effort has been made to run him up and that they were perfectly willing to hold back as the hour for their drive is some time away.

RALSTON ORDERS TAGGART TO END BATTLE FOR HIM

BY UNITED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 4 — Senator Samuel M. Ralston has definitely asked that his name be withdrawn from the list of candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination. Ralston today made public two telegrams sent to Thomas Taggart in charge of the Ralston boom at the convention in which he requested withdrawal of his name as a "contribution toward peaceful solution of the situation confronting the convention."

One of the telegrams was sent to Taggart July 1 and the other was sent yesterday afternoon.

Taggart and the Indiana delegation refused to act on both telegrams, Ralston said. His statement follows:

"At 4 20 p m Thursday I sent to Mr Taggart the following telegram—this at a time when I had 94 votes:

'I feel my name should be withdrawn. Desire you to do so.'

I reaffirm my statement often repeated that I do not now have and never have had any relations with the Ku Klux Klan. But in view of the persistent charges that I had some connection with it and in view of the feeling resulting from the controversy ... threatens injury to our party, I wish to make whatever contribution I can toward the peaceful solution of the condition now confronting the party, and I therefore desire my name withdrawn from further consideration by the convention."

Young Couple Wed At Los Gatos Manse

LOS GATOS July 4 —Miss Winifred Wintler of this city became the bride of Dwight D Rugh of Berkeley at services held in the garden of the Presbyterian manse on University avenue. Sixty guests gathered to witness the ceremony, the young couple plighting their troth in the glow of flower-shaped lanterns. Miss Ella Hjelm of San Jose, for several years associated with Miss Wintler as a fellow-teacher in the Sunnyvale grammar school, sang "Because" as the bridal party waited to proceed to the sylvan altar.

Rev Henry H. Winder father of the bride and pastor of the Los Gatos Presbyterian church read the wedding service of the Presbyterian church. Miss Winifred Rugh sister of the bridegroom, was the bridesmaid. J. A. Steedman of Washington D C uncle of the bridegroom, gave away the bride. Charles V Rugh stood with his brother as groomsman. Rosemary and Janet Roberts, Mary Mallory, Dorothy Smith, Kenneth Johnson and Gordon Steedman aided as attendants. Patricia Duffy of Oakland played the wedding march.

Those who survive him are his wife Mrs Eva Tarwater; two daughters Bernice Tarwater and Mrs Mildred Carter of Madera, and an aged mother.

Bishop Converted To Drys by Bricks

LONDON, July 4 —Brickbats were the chief cause of the conversion to teetotallism of the Bishop of London, this prelate said recently at a public gathering.

"I was led to become a teetotaller in a fit of youthful enthusiasm 40 years ago," the bishop declared, "because I saw brickbats being hurled at women trying to hold a temperance meeting in a town I will not name. When I saw that these devoted people had the whole of the publicans in the place heaving bricks at them, I said to myself that a cause that wanted backing up with brickbats was not the cause for me. I have been a teetotaller ever since, and I am glad of it."

RETIREMENT IDEA IS ABSURD, SAYS M'ADOO MANAGER

Favorite Sons Are Preventing Nomination. They Should Quit, He Asserts.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN New York July 4 — Regarding the suggestion that W G McAdoo and Governor Smith retire from the race for the Democratic nomination as a move to end the convention deadlock David Ladd Rockwell the California manager last night issued the following statement:

"The newspaper suggestion which has been made that the name of Mr McAdoo the overwhelming leader in the convention voting and Governor Smith receiving the next highest figure be withdrawn so that some of the candidates receiving a far smaller vote may be able to be nominated is absurd as well as unjust. Whoever heard of a candidate withdrawing who is the party's choice?

The withdrawing comes at the other end. If there be any withdrawals they should of right be from among the list of favorite sons, the attitude of whose friends is preventing the convention from effecting the nomination of any candidate.

"No clique or cabal should be allowed to thwart the will of this convention. The Democratic party can ill afford to copy the tactics used by the Republicans in Chicago in 1920.

"The favorite sons have been constantly before the convention and every opportunity has been given them to develop their strength. If any candidates are to withdraw, it should be them.

The overwhelming force of this convention is supporting either Mr McAdoo or Governor Smith. It ill becomes candidates with but a handful of votes to keep the convention deadlocked. The real and only contest is between Mr. McAdoo and Governor Smith. For sixty ballots these favorite sons have deadlocked this convention and have not allowed the real strength of Mr McAdoo or Governor Smith to be shown. It is an outrageous travesty."

JUDGE DECLARES CONSTITUTION IS DEFIED BY REDS

Jurist Says U. S. Not Awake to Seriousness of Radical Move.

"The people of America are not fully awakened to the seriousness of the alarming tendency toward radicalism and anarchy in this country," Judge Lincoln S. Church declared yesterday in an address before the Oakland Rotary Club at the Hotel Oakland.

Individuals and organizations whose teachings and activities are revolutionary and destructive have viciously assailed th constitution of this countdy and openly defied and violated its laws," Church said.

"God grant that true devotion to the constitution and the union of the States may ever possess the hearts and, I hope, the courses and the destinies of the American people. May our children and our children's children turn back the pages of history and there find recorded the fact that amidst the turbulence, the unrest and the dissolution of their country."

Sea Otters, Seals, Once Ruled Bay, Says First Mayor

ALAMEDA, July 4.—Days when sea otters and seals were numberless in San Leandro bay, and flocks of ducks and other wild fowls literally blackened the skies of Alameda were recalled by E. K. Taylor, first mayor, at a luncheon of the Alameda Kiwanis club.

Taylor, who was also first president of the Kiwanis club and whose father was the first minister in the city, told of the early type of Indian, the coming of the Spaniards and the final settlement by the Gringoes. Bay Farm Island, he said, was once a trading station for Russian seamen and Indian trappers.

Fishing for salmon and sturgeon was an 'important industry, according to Taylor. Wild mustard towered above the reach of mounted horsemen and its stalks were so large that they were often used as clubs.

The grant of 25,000 acres on which Alameda has since been located was sold for $14,000 by Antonio Peralta, who inherited it from his father, according to Taylor.

PASADENAN MAY REPLACE VOLLMER

LOS ANGELES, July 4.—Police Chief Charles H. Kelley of Pasadena is the favorite candidate to succeed Police Chief August Vollmer, according to current information.

Vollmer's resignation becomes effective August 1 in accordance with his agreement to reorganize the department and return to Berkeley.

There are three main candidates for the position: Kelley, Captain Robert Lee Heath and Captain George S. McClary.

Following a conference between Mayor Cryer and one of Kelley's confidants it was reported at the city hall that Kelley would be the mayor's selection.

Scores of business and professional men and women have sent letters and telegrams to Chief Vollmer expressing their regret that he has decided to leave Los Angeles.

Moving Dead Dogs And Cats to Cost Money After This

Another crisis loomed before the Eastbay cities today, when the William Schaffer Reduction Works served notice that no longer will dead dogs and dead cats be removed free from the city of Oakland, or from Berkeley, Alameda or any other city.

According to Commissioner Frank Colbourn, the threat is more portentous than it seems on the surface, since the Schaffers long ago were given the "exclusive privilege" by the Oakland city council, and there is nobody to take the place of these concessionaries. The matter was immediately referred to the city attorney.

The Schaffer interests allege that there is no further profit in removing dead animals from the streets. In olden times there used to be many horses and cows in Oakland and these animals, occasionally died. The Schaffers agreed to remove all dead animals from the streets, with the understanding that they were to have the exclusive privilege of Making tallow, glue, fertilizer, leather and any other by-products of dead horses or cows.

The Schaffers allege that this past profit is gone and that dogs and cats are merely nuisances. The Schaffers ask $1000 annually for the job.

OAKLAND SPANISH WAR MEN HOST TO CAMPS OF COUNTY

Commissioner Carter Urges Veterans to Work for Big Harbor.

Liscum Camp of the United Spanish War Veterans was host last night to the other camps of the veterans in Alameda county, at a reception in Jenny Lind hall held in anticipation of the United Spanish War Veterans' convention in Chico, July 7 to 9.

Representatives of other veterans' organizations were present as guests of honor and each delivered a short address. The speaker of the evening was Commissioner Albert E. Carter, whose subject was "The Oakland Harbor."

"There is no better work that your organization can undertake for the benefit of the community than to assist in the development of the Oakland harbor," said Carter. "Cities are made by big payrolls, big payrolls are made by big industries, and big industries are made by big harbors."

Carter quoted statistics to show what harbor improvements have accomplished for other cities, both directly and indirectly, and told the veterans that if they and other organized bodies of the city would determine upon a plan of development for the Oakland harbor the city would benefit accordingly.

Other speakers were Antonio Entenza, past commander-in-chief of the United Spanish War eVterans; Frank Storey, commander of the United Veterans of the Republic; Don Schertle, junior commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; William Foss, commander of Oakland post of the American Legion, and Lieutenant William Woods of the Oakland police department.

About 400 veterans attended the reception, and the various camps contributed to a short entertainment program. George Marshall, commander of Liscum camp, presided over the festivities.

The bay cities delegates to the Chico convention will leave Oakland at 12:30 o'clock Sunday on a special train of the Sacramento Short Line.

AMERICAN FORMS KLAN IN CHINA TO FIGHT 'REDS'

By WILLIAM R. GILES.
Special Cable to the Oakland TRIBUNE and the Chicago Daily News.

PEKING, July 4.—Strong opposition is being taken here toward the attempted formation of a Chinese Ku Klux Klan. Two American-educated Chinese students and one American, the latter a "Captain" Kearny, are at the head of the organization movement.

Kearny, who is accused by the Shanghai Press of fostering anti-foreign feeling among Chinese through the movement has replied that the Ku Klux in China is purely a Chinese organization and that he is merely acting as its foreign adviser.

Several months ago Kearny was before the United States Court here on a charge of selling arms and ships to Chinese factions opposed to the Peking government.

He maintains that the Chinese Ku Klux is fighting for suppression of opium, against the spread of bolshevism and also against illegal arms selling. He asserts that the organization is composed of the best elements among the Chinese who are prompted by high principles and who are opposed to anti-foreignism. He also maintains that the organization is unpolitical but that it is opposed to all grafting Chinese officials.

A recent raid on the so-called Ku Klux headquarters he asserts was due to the fact that the organization has secured the names of certain Chinese officials who have been selling narcotics, importing arms and grafting off the people. He also declares he has proofs that the soviet element in China is organizing bolshevic bands which are going about spreading hate against foreigners. The Chinese Ku Klux principles which he outlines are similar to those of the American Ku Klux.

ALICE ASTOR TO WED RUSS PRINCE

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

NEW YORK, July 4.—Miss Alice Astor, sister of Vincent Astor and daughter of Lady Ribblesdale and the late John Jacob Astor, is engaged to marry Prince Obolensky Neledinsky-Meletzky, a descendant of one of the oldest families of Russia, says a London despatch to the New York Times.

During the world war the prince was married to Princess Catherine Alexandrovna, a daughter of Czar Alexander II, in the Crimea, where he was a patient and the princess a nurse. Last December the princess obtained a divorce in London under a new law permitting a wife a divorce on the sole ground of a husband's infidelity.

Miss Astor became of age a year ago at that time came into complete possession of the $5,000,000 trust fund created for her by her father. This fund has greatly depreciated in value since her father's death.

British Toast U. S. Globe Fliers for Aid

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

SHANGHAI, July 4. — A. Stuart MacLaren, British aviator who, with two companions, arrived here yesterday on a flight around the world, paid a high tribute to the help he had been given by Americans in overcoming the difficulties of the flight. MacLaren had particular reference to the wrecking of his machine and its replacement. He spoke at a luncheon given him by the Shanghai club.

He proposed a toast to the success of the American army fliers now on their way around the world and to the American nation. The proposal was cheered tutuluously by the luncheon guests, who were almost entirely Britishers.

Husband Complains Wife Ignored Him

Accusations that his wife, Mrs. [illegible] him because she claimed he did not earn enough, that she was extravagant in buying clothes and taking unnecessary trips about the country, are made by Maxwell Meyers in a divorce complaint on file today. He says his wife finally left him on March 13 to visit a sister in Kansas City after declaring that she did not love him and would not write to him and though he has sent her money for her support he has received no communication from her. He says Mrs. Meyers called him names and ordered him out of the house on July 11, 1923, but later there was a reconciliation on his agreement to pay her $75 a month for her support.

NEWS and GOSSIP
FROM STAFF WRITERS AT HOME AND ABROAD

By STEWART JACKSON,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—An invasion of the United States by Mexican troops, the first since Villa crossed the border and raided Columbus, New Mexico in 1915, was reported to the State Department recently in a dispatch from Harry C. A. Damm, U. S. Consul at Nogales, Sonora, Mexico.

However, the diplomatic seismograph failed to detect any violent tremors over the occasion; instead a repressed chuckle and a faint smile greeted the news instead of a horrified stare and a frantic call for Yankee troops.

Here's how it happened:

President Alvaro Obregon, of Mexico, was paying a visit to his home town, Nogales, Mexico, and the Chamber of Commerce of Nogales, Arizona, invited him to cross the border as the guest of the city. This he accepted, and, as has been previously reported, reviewed troops of both nationalities on the international boundary line, made an address and was cordially received by the Nogales Chamber of Commerce, the Governor of Arizona, the commanding officer of the American troops there and hosts of Americans and Mexicans. A pleasant time was had by all.

After the spellbinding an international review and parade was held, an event staged in all seriousness to those present, but presenting some bizarre incidents that could not fail to tickle the funny bones of persons so far away as Washington. For the Mexican troops, infantry, cavalry and field artillery marched sedately and proudly on their side of the line, while the American soldiers stepped it off just as proudly on their own side. The reviewing stand, in which stood President Obregon, Governor Hunt, of Arizona; Colonel Woodson Hocker, of the 25th U. S. Infantry, and Mexican officials, straddled the international line, care having been taken to have just exactly as many inches of it on one side as the other.

The cavalcade halted and a Presidential salute was fired by the guns of the two nations—twenty-one shots, one by an American gun, the next by a Mexican gun, and so on iternately until all had been fired, when of course the rounds were counted up and it was found that the Americans had fired one more round than the Mexicans. However, no international complications resulted from this and all was well and the goose hung high and the parade swung on.

Then came the invasion. A Mexican troop of Cavalry in making a necessary turn did "four left" in front of the reviewing stand and before they could help it had swung a few feet across the line into American territory.

It was a small incident and perhaps would have passed unnoticed had not President Obregon himself seen it. He started forward, calling attention to the blunder of his officers, and gave orders that a man be posted on the line to prevent a repetition of the incident.

FLAT IN CAPITOL SHADOW OPPOSED

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 4.—The power of the United States District Court has been invoked by a Memphis, Tenn., corporation in an effort to prevent the city of Little Rock from enforcing a zoning ordinance which would prohibit the erection of a seven-story hotel apartment building within a few hundred feet of the state capitol building.

Arkansas is proud of her magnificent state house, which sets on a hill overlooking the city, the Arkansas river and historic Fort Root across the river. Several acres south and west of the new capitol have been acquired by the state and made into a park, but the legislature has postponed action to acquire land north and east of the building which was contemplated to round out the capitol grounds.

Recently the Tennessee corporation purchased several of these lots and announced its intention to erect a large apartment which would overlook the capitol and even tower above the huge dome of the state house. Immediately a movement was started by those who said they sought to maintain the beauty of the capitol and grounds to prevent the erection of the building. This culminated in the passage of a city zoning ordinance, prohibiting the erection of buildings more than three stories high within certain prescribed limits near the capitol.

The apartment corporation answered with a petition in federal court asking for an injunction to restrain the mayor, alderman and other city officials from enforcing the ordinance.

PROFESSIONAL NURSE SAYS TANLAC HAS NO EQUAL

Mrs. J. Clark Says Tanlac Was More Than Match For Her Troubles.

By reason of the fact that she speaks from her long experience as a professional nurse, the statement of Mrs. J. Clark of 415 Walsworth avenue, Oakland, Cal., will be of interest to all who are in need of an upbuilding tonic.

"In all my fifteen years' experience as a trained nurse," says Mrs. Clark's statement, "I never found the equal of Tanlac as a stomach medicine and tonic. Two years ago an attack of influenza left me without appetite and my stomach in such a bad fix that the little I did eat seemed to do me harm instead of good.

"Stomach pains would make me so weak I would feel right faint. The least exertion would completely exhaust me and six months before taking Tanlac I was so weak I had to hire my housework done. I was in bed most of the time for two months and was getting desperate.

"Tanlac was more than a match for my troubles and eight bottles left me feeling fine. I eat and sleep like a child and have energy and strength that makes life a pleasure. Tanlac is simply grand."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute Over 40 million bottles sold.

Promotion Includes Additionally the Making of 1000 Industrial Acres.

ALAMEDA, July 4.—Two projects, the first proposing to add 651 acres of land to the city's residential area and the second providing for the industrial development of 1000 acres of land formerly offered to the United States government as a naval base, were announced this morning by C. E. Hickok, city manager.

The first project proposes the construction of a sea-wall or rip similar to the Alameda mole for four miles from the west end of the city to the Bay Farm Island bridge and half a mile into the bay from the shore line. The space between the sea-wall and the present shore line would then be filled with dredgings from the bay, providing an additional area of 651 acres or 30 per cent of Alameda's present area, and sufficient to accommodate 2433 lots each 50 by 127 feet. This area, Hickok said, will provide facilities for 12,000 more people in Alameda.

WOULD AID SHIPPING.

Dredgings would be obtained from a channel along the sea-wall 30 feet deep and 500 feet wide. This, it is pointed out, would aid the development of shipping in San Leandro bay and Bay Farm Island.

The plan calls for the construction of a boulevard 100 feet wide along the sea-wall and connecting with the proposed Bay Farm Island running from the island to San Leandro. A sand beach would be constructed along the full length of the sea-wall between it and the boulevard. Numerous parks, winding streets and an enclosed salt water lake, similar to Lake Merritt are planned.

Hickok estimates the development will cost $3,125,850, of which $694,000 will construct the boulevard, beaches and parks. This latter sum, Hickok said, the city may agree to pay. The remaining $2,431,850 includes the cost of reclamation, construction of streets, gutters, curbs, sewerage and electroliers. Hickok pointed out that this cost, proportioned according to the number of building lots, would make the cost of the development $20 a front foot.

W. J. Locke, city attorney, says private capital will carry out the enterprise unless the city decides to do so.

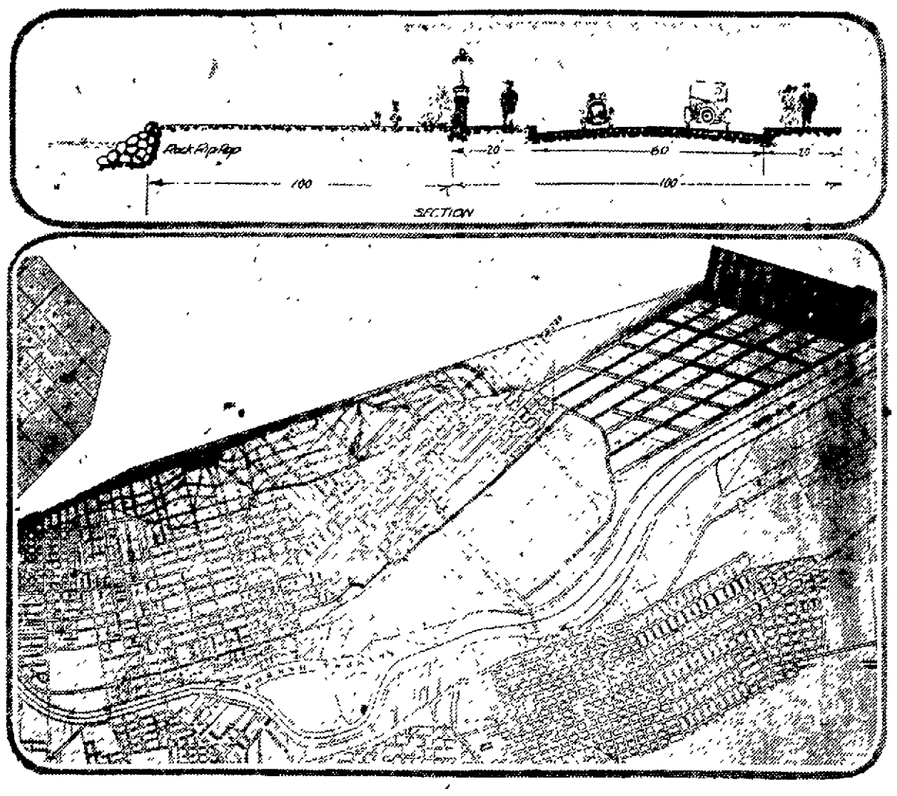

TO COST $20,020,000.

The program for the development of 1000 acres on the naval base site, which consists of 6340 acres of tideland, calls for the construction of 13 piers, 41,000 feet of berth space and 800 acres of industrial sites. The development will cost approximately $20,020,000. The first unit includes the construction of one pier, 1500 feet long and 150 feet wide, development of the 800 acres of land as industrial sites, and the laying of tracks throughout the section to connect with the city's belt line railroad. This portion of the plan, it is estimated, will cost $3,480,000.

Hickok pointed out that fiscal aid may be received from the federal government. The naval base site is still offered to the government which will hold option on the land until January 1, 1925.

Would Build Homes on Land Under Water

ENTIRE FAMILIES LEARN TO SWIM IN FREE CLASSES

100 Daily Frolic With Instructor in Tribune's Course.

Family parties have become the rule at the Idora Park pool swimming classes in the TRIBUNE'S "Learn-to-Swim" campaign, according to Miss Claire Ray and Mrs. Marjorie Peck, instructors.

A large proportion of those who have entered the classes have brought other members of their families with them on later trips, and often the entire family attends the class at one time to take advantage of the free swimming lessons.

Special arrangements are made wherever possible to permit all members of the same family, as well as groups of friends, to enter the same classes.

The course is now attended by more than 100 persons daily, and indications are that larger numbers will be in attendance later on during the eight weeks in which the free lessons are to run.

The swimming lessons are free to all pupils, the only charge involved being the usual price of admission to the park and to the pool. Pupils either may bring their own suits or obtain them at the park. All are eligible, of either sex, provided they are more than 10 years of age. All that is necessary in order to enter the classes is to fill out the accompanying coupon, and mail it to the "Learn-to-Swim" editor of The TRIBUNE.

Building Owners Home From Session

Ray F. Wilson and J. C. Allen, executive secretary and treasurer respectively of the newly organized Building Owners and Managers Association of Oakland, have returned from the seventeenth annual convention of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers held at Colorado Springs.

Problems which are of great importance to every large and growing city were taken up in great detail. Such subjects as traffic, building planning service, zoning and shifting of business districts were discussed by men of recognized high caliber.

E. C. Holmes, residing at 2829 Forest street, Berkeley, who is president of the Building Owners and Managers Association of San Francisco, was elected third vice-president of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers of Colorado Springs.

The next annual convention of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers will be held at Cleveland, Ohio, in June 1925.

WIFE DEMANDS PROPERTY BACK

Dr. Arthur R. Sontheimer has gained title to property at 2900 High street by recording a deed executed by her in contemplation of death, it is charged by his wife, Jean E. Sontheimer in a suit filed to recover title to the property.

It is claimed by Mrs Sontheimer that she signed a deed of gift to the property on March 26, 1923 with the understanding that her husband was not to record it until after her death, and placed it in a safe deposit box at an East Oakland bank. She charges that Dr. Sontheimer removed the deed from the deposit box on September 24, 1923, and on June 24, last, filed it for record, giving him title to the property.

The complaint filed by Assistant District Attorney Frank Shay asks that the record be annuled and declared invalid.

DURANT $110,000 UNFINISHED YACHT CAPSIZES IN BAY

Struck at Moorings by Barge, Palatial Craft Sticks in Mud; Being Raised.

Work was started today on raising Cliff Durant's new $110,000 yacht, now being completed, which capsized and sunk yesterday in the J. H. Madden shipyard in Sausalito, where she is being built.

The yacht was found yesterday morning almost submerged. The craft had been struck in the night by Barge No. 3 of the Hayside company, which came along side, with her two 107-foot masts ready to be put into place.

With the low tide, the keel of the yacht became imbedded in the mud. When high tide came she did not rise but was pushed over on her gunwale, and water poured into her hatches and flooded the interior.

Two auxiliary motors, an engine and dynamo for electric lights, a small motor and refrigerating plant were badly damaged by the salt water.

The yacht was pumped out and work begun today on freeing her from the mud. Repairs to the damage done and further [illegible] completion will delay the [illegible]ing which Durant had planned for early this summer.

BURGLAR RUNS AS WOMAN SCREAMS

Search is under way by detectives today for a burglar who last night entered the home of Mrs. Luch Sanders, 3725 Kingsley avenue, threatened her with a pistol, and then ran away when the woman screamed.

As the man dashed from the front door of the house, a lineman for the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company, working on a nearby pole, secured the number of the automobile in which the burglar fled.

According to Mrs. Sanders, she was lying on the couch in the living room of her home when she heard someone knock at the door. A few moments later she heard some one walking in the kitchen, and entered to confront the man, who threatened her with a revolver.

Her screams brought her husband, B. G. Sanders, who was upstairs, and the man fled.

2 L. A. Japanese Held In Gambling Killings

LOS ANGELES, July 4.—Two Japanese, I. Ishida and S. Tashiro, both of whom police say are gamblers, were taken into custody here today in connection with the slaying of M. Yoshioka and Kacheme Igarashi, Japanese, whose bodies were found recently at the foot of Point Fermin, San Pedro.

A third Japanese also was held by authorities, but later was released when he proved an alibi.

The two men under arrest are said by police to have been members of a party at which Yoshioka and Igarashi were last seen alive. Though detectives say that no information has been obtained to connect the prisoners with the actual slaying, it is claimed that they know who the slayers are.

PIEDMONT TAXES TO BE INCREASED

PIEDMONT, July 4.—That an increase in the city tax rate of from 21 to 34 cents is anticipated, was indicated in a discussion at the council meeting last night. The raise, according to Mayor Oliver Ellsworth, will be at least 21 cents, while an increase of 33 or 34 cents was predicted by City Clerk Ware Little.

During the past year the assessed valuation of property in this city has increased from $10,050,000 to $11,500,000, it was announced. The increase in revenue from this source, however, will not be sufficiently large to cover proposed improvements, it was stated.

Among the specific increases said to be necessary are a 7-cent increase for a new fire engine, 9 cents to cover interest and redemption of bonds, and 5 cents for a high school library. These projects, it was pointed out, have been sponsored by the tax payers.

The new city budget was discussed at the meeting, but it was stated that it would not be ready for adoption for at least two weeks.

In connection with the proposed acquisition by condemnation of the property of Sidney Dearing, Piedmont's negro resident, it was recently stated that a raise of 10 cents in the tax rate would be necessary to raise the required sum.

MAN SLUGGED IN HOME; POLICEMAN GRABS SUSPECT

Prisoner Admits Entering Place With Friend, on Hunt for Liquor.

As he entered the basement of his home at 529 Madison street late last night, Manuel Fernandez was attacked by two men. He was struck on the head with a black jack and a bottle. He fell to the floor dazed, and the men ran away. Patrolman Ploog, who heard the noise in the basement went in and Fernandez said the two men had robbed him after knocking him down. He said they had taken $1.50 but had overlooked $20 and a gold watch.

Ploog went out to look for Fernandez's assailants and saw a man running down the street. He gave chase, and caught the man. When he returned to the basement, Fernandez had been taken to the emergency hospital.

Patrolman Ploog's prisoner gave the name of Earl Leonard. Ploog took Leonard to the hospital where Fernandez identified him as one of the men who had attacked him.

Leonard was turned over to Police Inspectors W. A. Wallman and V. J. Coley, to whom he is said to have admitted that he was in the basement, with a companion named Walter Perotti, who lives at the Abbey Hotel. He said he and his companion had gone into the basement because they had heard there was liquor there.

A resolution to the effect that the city will not commit itself to a definite policy regarding the controversy until after a study has been made of a report to be submitted by a committee of engineers sent into the valley to investigate the technical phases of the water rights problem, was amended by the board of public service commissioners at the end of a conference with directors of the chamber of commerce.

French Hold Rites At Lafayette Tomb

PARIS, July 4.—The customary Independence Day ceremony at the tomb of Lafayette in the Picpus cemetery and the unveiling of a memorial tablet at the headquarters of the France-American committee, at which Premier Herriot spoke, were the forenoon features of the Fourth of July celebration in Paris. The American flag flew over the public buildings and there was a generous display of the Stars and Stripes by business houses and on private dwellings.

Jail Yawns for Any Fireworks Shooter

HAYWARD, July 4.—Strict enforcement of an ordinance prohibiting the use of any sort of fireworks in Hayward was effected by local police today. Sale of fireworks in stores has been banned, with the possible exception of the small cap pistols and ammunition. A fine or jail sentence is the penalty fixed by ordinance for any elders shooting off fireworks in the city limits, whether of the noise producing or ornamental varieties.

Residents of the city have been urged by police and fire department officials to comply strictly with the ordinance. The dry condition of the country in and around Hayward is such that a small spark would quickly ignite the grass or grain and cause great damage.

Man Rescues Wife From Burning Home

PATTERSON, July 4.—His home a mass of flames, Mather Jons dashed into the building, aroused his sleeping wife, enveloped her in a heavy blanket and carried her to safety. They saved nothing. Jons, a farmer, arose at an early hour and started for the barn to feed his stock. A sound as of a dull explosion caused him to turn quickly, to see flames shooting from a storeroom. So quickly did the fire spread that by the time he reached the house it was wrapped in flames. There had been no fire in the house for two days, he states. His loss is partly covered by insurance.

Fines Show Motor Violations Drop

SAN LEANDRO, July 4.—Justice court receipts for July amounted to $303.50, according to figures given out yesterday by Justice of the Peace William J. Gannon. This total includes $247.50 collected in fines for the city, $37.50 collected for the county, and $19 for the state. The record is about normal. A decrease in the number of motor violations in this city is evident, stated Judge Gannon.

EUROPE WORKING AND SAVING, SAYS OAKLAND BANKER

A four-months' visit to Europe, a greater portion of which was spent motoring through France, Spain and Switzerland has convinced Harry A. Mosher, vice-president of the Central National Bank, that Europe is rapidly recovering from its post-war paralysis. Mosher spent thirty-two days motoring in France alone and his observations lead him to the conclusion that that country is farthest on its road to recovery of any of the nations taking part in the war.

"French bankers told me that the people of France were working and saving," said Mosher. "This is always a good sign either in individuals or in nations. I found no tendency toward extravagance or jazz, but the people on the contrary were serious minded and hard at work everywhere.

"In Italy there was everywhere evidences of improvement, the work of Mussolini. What astonished me was the tremendous projects the Italians have under way to utilize their hydro-electric power possibilities. In no short time practically all of Italy will be lighted and heated by power. They are even threatening to rival California in some of their ambitious ventures. The people are working. There is little unemployment and everywhere are signs of hopeful recovery.

"In England things look fine on the surface, but the unemployment problem is very serious. All in all things are very hopeful across the water notwithstanding reports we get to the contrary."

Mosher was accompanied by Mrs. Mosher. They spent forty-two days in all of their trip abroad in a motor car. The balance of the trip was made by train and steamer. In New York Mosher dropped in at the California headquarters of the Democratic convention and found "All the boys" feeling good and showing genuine California hospitality.

Hayward Will Vote On Auto Parking Plan

HAYWARD, July 4.—Because of wide opposition of parallel auto parking in the business section of the city, members of the city council have decided to hold up a vote on a regulating ordinance until the matter has been thoroughly investigated and the sentiment of the people further ascertained. The ordinance had been previously presented and read by City Attorney C. W. White and was scheduled to be voted on at the last meeting of the council.

The Western Pacific company will be asked by Mark Templeton, city clerk, to repair crossings at A and B streets, and to make it possible to open up C street across the tracks. If no results are forthcoming the matter will be referred to the railroad commission.

Announcement has been made to the city officials by representatives of the Pacific Gas and Electric company that engineers are working on a plan of an underground system of wiring within the fire district.

Bench Warrants for Speeders Are Issued

FIFTY THOUSAND SEE RICMHOND'S PATRIOTIC MARCH

Fraternal and Industrial Organizations Join in Big Patriotic Parade.

RICHMOND, July 4.—Fifty thousand people witnessed the big Fourth of July parade here this morning. Thousands of visitors poured in every hour and it is estimated that there was at least 200,000 people in Richmond before the patriotic celebration, which is a part of the Veterans' Circus and Pageant of Products, which closes tonight.

Led by Grand Marshal H. Boyle, 5000 persons, representing practically every civic, fraternal and industrial organization in Richmond, began forming for the parade at 9 o'clock. Separate streets had to be entirely given over to certain bodies to provide space for the throngs awaiting their places in the line of march.

Starting at First street and MacDonald avenue, the procession passed up MacDonald avenue through blocks flanked on either side by thousands of spectators, many of whom carried flags.

Following the grand marshal came a platoon of police, Mayor W. W. Scott and city officials, board of supervisors, municipal band, G. A. R., and auxiliaries, United Spanish War Veterans, Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion, royal float, bearing Queen Dorothy I and attendants, War Mothers, Spanish War Veterans' Auxiliary, Sons and Daughters of Veterans, High School cadets, with band, Boy Scouts, fire apparatus, fraternal organizations, with their floats, industrial floats, decorated automobiles and 3000 members of the Ku Klux Klan in full regalia.

The parade presented an imposing spectacle, about two miles in length, the numerous floats in many instances having been built weeks in advance, representing an investment of several hundred dollars each. Conspicuous for its ingenuity and careful treatment of detail was the float of the War Mothers of Richmond, which depicted in vivid fashion the motherly care rendered by the war mothers to the wounded and crippled veterans. The Richmond-San Rafael Ferry Company was represented with a float consisting of a replica of its new ferry steamer, "City of San Rafael." Among the other floats which attracted widespread attention were the American Legion, Chamber of Commerce and Standard Oil Company.

After the parade the big circus tent was thrown open to the public free of charge, and from the stage inside literary exercises were held. Attorney Phil Carey of Oakland, orator of the day, delivered an address before 20,000 spectators. The "Star-Spangled Banner" was sung by Mlle. Eugenie Kazan.

The celebration continued throughout the afternoon and evening with a special program of entertainment under the big canvas tonight.

The Veterans' Circus will close with the awarding of prizes tomorrow night.

Aguinaldo Leads Fourth Celebration

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE

MANILA, July 4.—More than 3000 Filipino veterans of the Philippine insurrection joined American veterans of the Spanish-American and other wars today in a celebration of Independence day.

The Filipinos, under the leadership of General Emilio Aguinaldo, who was their chieftain in the struggle against American rule, gathered from the neighboring provinces for a distance of a hundred miles around Manila. General Aguinaldo, addressing them, urged cooperation with the United States government as the best means of preparing the Philippines for independence.

Major General Leonard Wood, governor-general of the Philippines, urged the veterans to work together to accomplish the upbuilding of the Philippines economically, thereby preparing them for self-government.

CHICAGO EMPTIED BUT CELEBRATES.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

CHICAGO, July 4.—Indiana's sand dunes, Michigan resorts and natural beauty spots of Illinois and Wisconsin were the magnets that nearly empties Chicago today except for old-fashioned celebrations by the stay-at-homes in city and suburbs.

A large celebration of the national birthday was staged at the Great Lakes naval training station by the Citizens' Good Roads Association, an organization founded by former Mayor William Hale Thompson. Airplane demonstrations and athletic events, with fireworks tonight were on the program and Thompson's new boat, the "Big Bill," scheduled to leave tomorrow on a South Sea trip in search of a "tree climbing" fish was a leading attraction.

Fleet Sails for S. F. Bay Tomorrow

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 4.—Festivities held here since the arrival of the Hood, Repulse and Adelaide, June 25, were to end tonight. The warships will weigh anchor at 6:15 o'clock tomorrow morning and pass out of the Narrows to resume their world cruise, making their next stop at San Francisco, Monday.

The Hood and Repulse have steamed 28,000 miles and there remain 12,000 miles before they reach England, September 29.

The light-cruisers Delhi, Dauntless, Dragon and Danae will rejoin the larger vessels off Victoria, Saturday.

After leaving San Francisco the squadron will divide the Hood, Repulse and Adelaide passing through the Panama Canal and the light-cruiser steaming down the west coast of South America, through Magellan Straits to the Falkland Islands.

Japanese Floats In Parades Given Plaudits of Crowd

Japanese citizens of the East bay participated with Americans in celebration of Independence Day. Two of the popular floats in the Berkeley Fourth of July parade, bedecked with flowers and draped with American flags, were entered by the Japanese Association of Berkeley, and all along the line of march, and past the reviewing stand, received plaudits from the thousands who lined the curbing.

3000 KLANSMEN JOIN RICHMOND'S JULY 4TH PARADE

RICHMOND, July 4.—The Knights of the Ku Klux Klan of Northern California, in their full habiliments convened in Richmond today and participated in the Fourth of July parade and celebration.

About 3,000 members of the hooded order, with the leading officers of the highest offices of the organization in California were represented.

During the early hours of the morning automobiles carrying men and women members of the klan converged upon Richmond from all Northern points of the state. At the principal entrances of the city Knights were stationed to direct the arriving klansmen to their various headquarters. Klansmen in full costume thronged the streets.

None was masked and none appeared to create any sensation. The novelty of the immigration was the essence of the situation, but the klan otherwise might not have been discriminated from any other organization participating in the day's celebration. The organization was under the command of W. J. Hill, Exalted Cyclops of this district.

The klansmen had a band which played a patriotic quickstep as the klansmen paraded down MacDonald avenue. A drill team entered by Oakland Klan No. 9 executed various maneuvers in the same manner as the drill teams representing other organizations. There followed allegorical floats depicting the klansmen as upholding the spirit of '76, of '61, of '98 and of '18. The principal float of the klan was one which bore the legend "The Klansman Unmasked" and upon it was a representation of Uncle Sam surrounded by members of the order.

At the conclusion of the parade the organization participated with the other organizations of the city in the industrial exhibition which is on display in Richmond. In the afternoon members of the order retired into convention.

Ku Klux Klan members of Oakland and other cities in this and Santa Clara counties made rendezvous this morning at Eleventh and Oak streets, and proceeded from there by automobile to Richmond to participate in the Richmond parade.

The Ku Klux Klan "state convention," which had been scheduled to be held in Oakland, was called off when a permit to parade in this city was refused by the city council. The convention, it was stated, would be held in Richmond instead.

$12,000 Blaze Laid To Firecracker

ESCALON, July 4.—Fire thought to have been caused by a firecracker last night destroyed $12,000 worth of property here, rendering two families homeless. For a time the entire business district of the town was threatened and was only saved by help sent from Manteca and Oakdale, which each despatched a fire engine when appealed to by the chief of the Escalon fire department.

The fire was discovered in the Escalon Community hall when it had gained great headway. The hall and its contents, valued at $5000 was destroyed, the flames spreading to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Faye Thornton and then to the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Hersinger. Members of both families escaped from their homes in night clothing. The garage of J. F. Hoehl, in which were stored three autos belonging to Frank Boone, was next to catch fire and was destroyed with its contents. Most of the losses are covered by insurance.

Feast Presented Alameda Firemen

ALAMEDA, July 4.—Twenty-five firemen spent this morning watching flag decked automobiles carry maximum loads of citizens to celebrations, picnics and camping parties.

The firemen's observance of the Nation's birthday consisted of community harmony led by quartets of the various fire houses and stories of Fourth of former years. This afternoon, however, each fire house had a celebration all its own. It was provided by G. T. Morris, a local business man, who had special lunches, including ice cream, cakes with red, white and blue frostings and all the extras that go toward making a regular Fourth of July sent to each fire house.

Berkeley Man, 99, Is Guest of Honor

BERKELEY, July 4.—The oldest participant in Berkeley's Fourth of July celebration today was W. B. Brown, grandfather of Major Bernard McMahon, 2126 Blake street, Berkeley. Brown, who will be 99 years of age in October, was given a seat of honor in the grandstand to view the parade.

When Major McMahon commanded a wagon train in 1919 which emulated the hardy pioneers of '49, Brown was among those who welcomed the caravan as it reached the California border.

BARROWS SCORES PACIFISM IN PLEA FOR NOISY FOURTH

Lack of Reverence for Heroes Linked to "Safe and Sane" Tendency.

BERKELEY, July 4.—Pacifists were scored while teachings in the public schools of the state which are declared to ignore war heroes of the American revolution were rapped today by Dr. David P. Barrows, former president of the University of California, speaking at Berkeley's Fourth of July celebration.

"War is to be preferred to degradation or the entrenchment of injustice," was the declaration of Dr. Barrows, who holds the rank of colonel in the United States army. National heroes of the days of '76 are being forgotten because of the anti-militarist sentiment predominant in the schools, according to Dr. Barrows, who said:

"The anti-militarist sentiment of the teaching body of our schools slights, if it does not misrepresent, the war comrades of Washington, and I venture to state that the average American schoolchild in this state today could not say who drafted the Declaration of Independence, who was the hero of Stony Point, or what are the immortal claims upon the nation's gratitude of Nathaniel Greene. We build few memorials to our great men and with a few notable exceptions such as exist are little visited."

LACK OF NOISE RAPPED.

Dr. Barrows declared that much of the lack of reverence of revolutionary heroes is due to the abolition of the "old-fashioned" Fourth with its attendant noise-making and merrymaking.

"The bombs and firecrackers which once made the day glorious for the small boy now have been generally banned," said Dr. Barrows. "Barbecues and assemblies that once drew the people of whole counties together have gone out of style. Even parades are infrequent. I am informed that this is the first time in eighteen years that Berkeley has had a Fourth of July celebration. In the desire to produce a 'safe and sane' celebration no very attractive substitute has been found for the noise and picnicking, the blaring music and the fervid oratory of earlier days. We have grown rather diffident about the fathers of our country and perhaps distrustful of their claim upon our regard.

"A school of historical writers among us treats the Revolution without enthusiasm. They make it appear an illbred sort of proceeding, in which the best people suffered and the masses were misled as usual. The leaders are represented as self-seeking declamatory demagogues the military heroes as vain swashbucklers without title to glory, and even that wonderful company—all products of the Revolution—who sat in Philadelphia in 1787 and gave us the Constitution ... sented as a narrow minded, illiberal, reactionary body, bent mainly on the legal defense of their property and private interests. Such views I am informed reach down to our public schools and affect the teaching there."

PACIFISTS SCORED.

"I wish to candidly admit that I have little sympathy with the above views or with present day indifference. Patriotism is still the purest and most moving human passion. Their country's defense is still the strongest common bond among men. It is the one cause to which considerable numbers of men will yet surrender their lives. War is to be preferred to degradation or to the entrenchment of injustice. Good soldiers no less today than at other times are entitled to the grateful remembrance of their countrymen. In the dome of the Pantheon at Paris is recorded the brief resolution 'Die or Live Free.' That declaration was received from the American Revolution. It is still the firm foundation to all manly national feeling."

Berkeley today sought to return to the old-fashioned kind of Fourth advocated by Dr. Barrows. All of the stunts of other years with the exception of firecrackers were featured—a parade in the morning, a picnic lunch under the trees on the high school athletic field, games and contests in the afternoon. There were egg races, fat men's contests, women's races and other humorous stunts. General Johnu P. Wisser, retired, was grand marshal of the parade, one of the most spectacular in the history of the city, with Blake Vanleer and James K. Fisk, American Legion officials, and Col. A. J. Eddy, city engineer and National Guard leader, as chief aides.

Lions Club Planning 'Night in the Orient'

HAYWARD, July 4.—With decorations and an entertainment program conforming to the nature of the affair, members of the Hayward Lions' club are making early arrangements for "A Night in the Orient," to be held on July 29 at the Pergola. William Burchill heads a committee in charge of the affair.

A quantity of professional entertainment is being obtained by Hal P. Angus, club member and former theatrical man. A special orchestra musical program, of Oriental nature, will be rendered. A novel and colorful decorative arrangement is promised.

Preparations are to be made for an attendance of at least 300 at the affair, according to Burchill, including local members and their wives and members of the Oakland club. Lloyd Russell and Robert Krusi, with Burchill, comprise the general committee, sub-committees to be chosen later to handle the details.

It is planned to have a prominent Chinese of San Francisco speak on "Lionism in China" at the affair.

Three Years' Abuse Too Much, Says Man

HAYWARD, July 4.—Asserting that he had suffered abuse for more than three years, Joseph C. Mendonca, 1527 D street, yesterday swore to a complaint charging neighbors, John and Jane Doe Brum, and their son, Manuel Brum, with battery and disturbing the peace. A warrant for the trio's arrest was issued by Judge Jacob Harder Jr., justice of the peace, and bail fixed at $25 each.

BERKELEY TOWER ON GRIZZLY PEAK FIRE PRECAUTION

BERKELEY, July 4. — Rising from Grizzly Peak, the highest elevation in the Berkeley hills, Berkeley's "lookout" tower, the only one of its kind in the bay counties, today stands as a sign of protection to residents of the college city.

From the tower can be seen the Farralone Islands, while the hill ranges which extend for many miles is an unobstructed panorama.

The tower, planned as an example to other bay cities, and to prevent a repetition of last year's disastrous fire in the college city, rises 35 feet from the summit of Grizzly Peak, which boasts an elevation of 1780 feet. Adjoining the tower a stucco house is being erected, which will be living quarters for Glenn Gadbury of the forestry service, who will be the warden.

A. E. Frost, inspector for the State Board of Forestry, has been loaned by State Forester Pratt to direct the erection of the tower. The work is practically completed at the present time. To reach the tower and to form a firebreak more than two miles of roadway have been built through East Bay Water Company property.

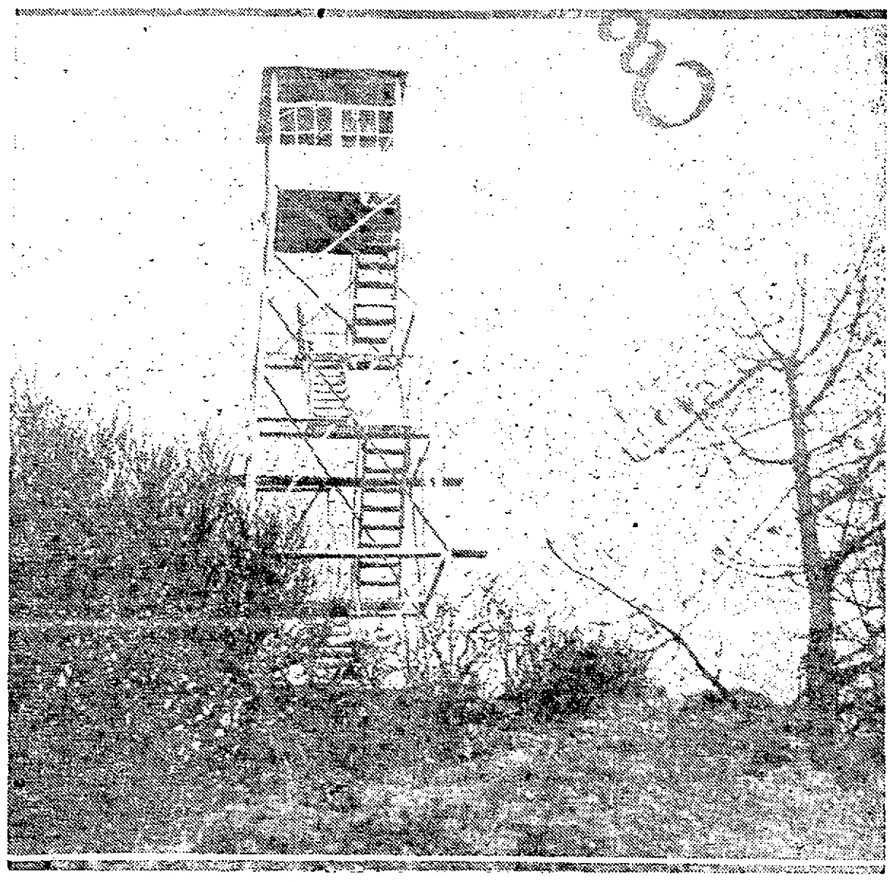

Country surveyors are working on this road with a view of making it the connecting link with the Skyline boulevard. The roadway over the rim of the Berkeley hills and commands a view of the bay and surrounding country. Should it be developed into a public roadway it will afford one of the most scenic drives in the bay counties.

Practically $7000 will have been spent in constructing the roadway, building the fire tower, laying power lines and carrying telephone lines to Grizzly Peak.

According to Managing Director Charles Keeler of the Chamber of Commerce a similar fire tower should be erected on Redwood Peak. Had such a tower been in place as was advocated by the Contra Costa Hills Fire Protection Committee the disastrous fire of the present week might have been averted says Keeler.

From this 35-foot fire look-out on Grizzly Peak, in which constant vigil will be kept during the dry season to prevent against the repetition of a blaze such as that which descended upon the Berkeley hillside residential districts last September.

AMERICANS WOO GERMANS' AUTO TRADE ALREADY

BERLIN, July 4.—In view of a recent announcement that the German import embargo on motor cars was to be lifted some time next fall, steps to be in one the ground floor when the move is made have already been taken by several automobile manufacturers. Dealers assert that at least five United States agencies have completed the necessary arrangements with the German government to begin business here as soon as the bars are let down. In this connection it is [illegible] ernment has authorized the importation of 500 American made tractors which are to be delivered during the summer.

TO BOOST TARIFF.

It is understood among dealers that the present German tariff rates on the importation of automobiles will be increased somewhat in order to offset the great difference in American and German motor car prices. The present tariff rates on imported cars follows: 50 kilos or less, 600 gold marks; 50 to 100 kilos, 480 gold marks; 100 to 250 kilos, 360 gold marks; 250 to 500 kilos, 240 gold marks; 500 to 1000 kilos, 160 gold marks; more than 1000 kilos, 80 gold marks.

Since the renten mark replaced the constantly depreciating paper mark, putting German business virtually on a gold mark basis, there has been a boom in the German automobile industry, and dealers of France, England and the United States have been vieing with one another to capture their share of the German trade. Expensive American limousines and touring cars are particularly in demand, but it appears that for the time being at least moderate priced cars will not be introduced here on a large scale unless the rigid police regulations for the use of automobiles are eliminated in Berlin and most of the other German cities.

HABITS ARE BARS.

Explaining this the trade report of the American Chamber of Commerce in Germany says: "It should be borne in mind by dealers that very few automobilists in Germany drive their own cars, but employ chauffeurs, and it is for this reason that German automobilists must first take to driving their own cars before any large business can be expected for companies dealing exclusively in the smaller or private car. Police regulations are particularly rigid in the matter of parking and no cars are allowed to be parked for any length of time in front of a store, theater, in a side street or even within a public square. A car may wait in front of a store or theater, but must invariably be in attendance by the chauffeur, and at night all lamps must be lighted."

There are few cities in Germany which have made any provision whatever for parking space, the problem being one which has been taken up by the local traffic authorities in the respective centers where there is congestion in the streets caused by the increased traffic by automobilists.

Navy Cook Tries To Clean Home; Is Badly Beaten

BERKELEY, July 4.—Samuel Bebeau, cook in the United States navy, insisted that he be the only "gob" in his home at 931 Bancroft way.

So forcefully did he insist that a squad of police was sent to the Bebeau residence shortly after midnight following a riot call from neighbors. After the melee Bebeau was discovered to be badly battered about the face. He declared that his wife and Miss Madeline Nash as well as two sailors beat him when he insisted that the men leave the house.

Bebeau insisted further upon the arrest of his wife on a disturbing the peace charge, while Miss Nash was locked up last night on a charge of vagrancy. [illegible] jail pending formal complainis against them. They are both 24 years old. The names of the sailors were not ascertained as both fled when the police arrived on the scene. According to Bebeau, his wife and Miss Nash have been entertaining sailors at his home frequently during his absence.

AIRPLANE RACE TO TOP OF WORLD NOW PROMISED

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

ROME, July 4.—A public fund to enable Lieutenant Locatelli, the Italian ace, to lead an airplane expedition to the north pole, was started yesterday. The fund was inaugurated by three wearers of gold medals for valor, headed by Captain Paolucci.

Locatelli, who also is a gold medalist, was to have piloted the Amundsen Polar expedition, which was recently postponed because of lack of finances.

One of the planes will be piloted by Locatelli and another by Major Cavelli, thrice decorated for valor during the war. All of the participants in the flight will be Italians.

Locatelli suggested the purchase from Roald Amundsen, the Norwegian explorer, who was to have led the polar flight of all of his equipment, but it was learned from Christiana that the Norwegian had not abandoned his plans, but merely had decided to postpone his effort until he had perfected a better organization. It was learned, furthermore, that Amundsen was planning an expedition in company with Russian aviators, thus promising an airplane race to the top of the world.

Ten leading Italian newspapers have offered to pay 1,000,000 lire for correspondence from Locatelli. An Italian newspaper in New York has offered 2,000,000 lire, while the Standard Oil company has offered to furnish all the gasoline needed. The remainder of the funds will be collected by the public subscription opened yesterday.

Automatic "eyes," to aid aviators in fog, give a reading in feet when the craft is within 100 feet of any object.

BLACKMAIL NOTE TO PAINTER VOWS DOUBLE MURDER

Three Threats to Arthur Keesling Demand $1500 Under Penalty of Death.

SAN JOSE, July 4.—Closely following the receipt of a blackmail note by Miss Lelah Marshall, wealthy resident of The Willows, local suburb, demanding $2000 under threat of death, Arthur Keesling, painter, of Campbell, six miles from her, reported to Sheriff George W. Lyle yesterday that he had received three blackmail letters, each demanding $1500 and theatening his wife and son with death if he did not comply.

Deputy Sheriffs Earl Hamilton and E. A. Raymond reported no trace of the blackmailer was found, although the deputies concealed themselves near the point where Keesling claimed he had been instructed to leave the money yesterday afternoon.

None of the four blackmail notes was signed, and Sheriff Lyle openly declared that he believed them to be the work of a demented man.

Deputy Sheriffs William Condon and George W. Pyne are investigating the blackmail letter addressed to Miss Marshall.

IN America we spend a great deal of our time bewailing the decadence of the drama.

It is shouted from the housetops that one can expect but little from the American dramatists, that the American actor has skidded right down to the bow-bows, that commercialism is the keynote of all things and that the motion picture is getting to be pretty much the bunk.

And just when everybody is about ready to give up the ghost along comes some foreigner to give his viewpoint. Not so long ago it was St. John G. Ervine, who was quite impressed with things. Now it is Lajos Biro, the Hungarian playwright, whose "The Highwayman" has been presented with success and goes into New York this fall and whose "The Lily" is another prospect for Manhattan.

TWENTY SEASONS AGO TODAY

Maude Rockwell, the balladist, is the feature at the Bell Theater.

"The American motion picture is a striking illustration of what American art can do. It is beyond doubt that the American films are the best in the world. The key of their success is that they are understandable to all and embody the highest ideals of beauty. The American films are thoroughly democratic and hence accessible to everybody.

"The reason why America seems to me the country destined to be the champion of a new theatrical art is that this new art would have a solid foundation of prosperity here which cannot be found anywhere else. Chaotic conditions which prevail in many parts of Europe are detrimental to a futher development of their theatrical art whereas peace and order in the United States are conducive to a higher appreciation of the artistic values. And there are many other inducements to the creation of a 'super-art in America.'"

So are we told to be of good cheer.

Who Recalls John Cherry? Yes Who?

How many of you recall John Cherry? This conductor whose memory is none too good at best cannot for the life of him recall what Cherry looked like or what roles he played. Yet we have a biographical sketch of him here from New York in which he sets forth specifically that he was a member of Ye Liberty Players in the days when Marjorie Rambeau was leading woman.

Cherry, it may as well be explained, is the b'gosh sheriff of "Poppy" the musical comedy in which Madge Kennedy starred first and which is now the starring vehicle of W. C. Fields, the comic juggler. Cherry came to this country from Australia in 1901 as a member of the famous Pollard Lilliputian Opera troupe. He made his debut in Australia at the age of 7 in "The Chimes of Normandy."

FORTY SEASONS AGO TODAY

Fred B. Warde and Kate Forsyth are playing in "Queena" at the California in San Francisco.

With the Pollard company in which he played opposite Daphne Pollard Cherry toured America and then went on a long trip through the Orient playing in China, Japan, India, Africa and many of the Pacific Islands. He was in Manila during the native insurrection. Following that he returned to California and joined Ye Liberty stock company.

While in stock he played everything from juveniles to old men according to his story and then he joined Charles Winninger and Blanche Ring in a succession of musical comedies. Later he went under the Morosco management and appeared in character parts in "Nobody Home" and "So Long Letty," "Glory" and now "Poppy."

And yet with all that your observer's mind is a perfect blank on the subject of the versatile Mr. Cherry.

EXITS AND ENTRANCES

When George Arliss finishes the run of "The Green Goddess" in England he will appear in Myron Fagan's "Two Strangers from Nowhere." The role was created here by Fritz Leiber.

And while we are on the other side of the pond, we may as well note that Sari Fedak, the wife of Ferenc Molnar is expected to come here next month. She is an actress now starring in "Antonia" and once the principal player in "Madame Pompadour."

Theodore Roberts who had to cancel his vaudeville tour because of illness is expected to resume at Cleveland in October. He is playing "The Man Higher Up."

• • •

Marjorie Rambeau is back in New York, but not in a production. She is playing "Bracelets" in the vaudeville houses.

Jean Adair, who recently played the Orpheum in "The Cake Eaters" is now in a new sketch called "Three's a Crowd."

Did we tell you that May Robson, now in Europe with her daughter and Lillian Harmer, is going to tour "The Show-Off" next season.

Patricia Calvert, daughter of the late Louis Calvert is playing in "Meet the Wife." She replaced Leila Frost in the ingenue role.

Joe Laurie Jr., the comedian, is another recruit for the newspapers. He is to write a humorous column for the Chicago Literary Times.

• • •

What with actors running columns and columnists trying their hands as actors, it is difficult to keep things straight these days.

HAWAIIAN ISLES HAVE EXCELLENT OPPORTUNITIES

Shipping and Business Fields Both Expanding at Rapid Pace.

The Hawaiian Islands, for decades known and celebrated throughout the world for their salubrious climate and beautiful scenery, now offer excellent investment opportunities for American capital, reports the U. S. Department of Commerce. Development has been very rapid in Hawaii during the last few years, especially in the city of Honolulu. New business, structures as well as homes have been, and are being, built in large numbers, and business has outgrown the downtown section to such an extent that several new centers are being developed. The very small number of empty buildings indicates that the growth is substantial. Shipping is on the increase at a fast pace.

The Annual Report of the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce for 1923 contains some interesting data. During the year the Territory imported 3360 automobiles, valued at $2,667,679—a remarkable record when it is considered that the entire population of the Islands numbers slightly over a quarter of a million persons, and that a great part of it is made up of field laborers who are not normally potential automobile buyers. Lumber imports amounted to 68,638,000 feet, valued at $2,276,596, and 211,878 barrels of cement, worth $657,145, were brought in during the year—indicating that a great amount of building and construction was in progress. In the city of Honolulu alone building permits aggregated $5,856,858, the record having been exceeded only once before in the history of the city. The total assessed value of real and personal property in the Territory at the end of the year was reported as $293,-104,297, half of which was located in the city and county of Honolulu.

FOREIGN TRADE INCREASED.

Hawaii's foreign trade, almost entirely with California, showed a very substantial increase during the year. Exports to the United States aggregated $101,055,612, as compared with $73,431,301 during 1922, while imports increased from $59,-[illegible] in 1922 to [illegible] in 1923. Shipments of both sugar and canned pineapples, which made up the bulk of exports, registered advances in value, but, in the case of sugar, the quantity dropped off almost 100,000,000 pounds. Imports consisted of a large variety of articles, such as iron and steel products, oils, breadstuffs, lumber, cotton goods, and automobiles, all of which registered large increases, especially iron and steel and automobiles. From all indications both imports and exports during 1924 will show substantial gains compared with last year.

SUGAR PROSPECTS FAVORABLE.

The well-being of the Islands depends largely upon the world price level of its two principal agricultural products, sugar and pineapples, since little or no manufacturing or mining is carried on. The output of sugar during the crop year—October 1 to September 30, according to the recognized custom of recording it—amounted to 545,-606 short tons. This was the smallest crop since 1910, but, owing to the favorable price received for it, the value amounted to approximately $70,000,000, a substantially larger figure than was received last year and enabling most of the plantations to pay handsome dividends. The 49,000 persons engaged in the sugar industry received, besides good wages during the year, a profit-sharing bonus of 24.54 per cent, which, together with a 10 per cent turn-out bonus, amounted to $5,000,000. The prospects for the 1924 season are that the crop will be slightly in excess of 600,000 tons, and there is every indication that a good average price will be received.

PINEAPPLE INDUSTRY GROWING.

The pineapple industry, second in importance to the sugar, continues to show a steady and healthful growth. It is predicted that within a decade it may surpass the sugar crop in value. The pack during 1923 amounted to 6,895,747 cases of 24 cans each, as compared with 5,500,000 cases during the preceding year. The value of the crop aggregated $29,500,000. Extensive areas on the various islands are being planted to pineapples and a large dock and harbor are being constructed on the Island of Lanai, which will make available more land for pineapple farming. The fruit is shipped to Honolulu for packing.

The banana crop amounted to 218,116 bunches valued at $222,138, the larger part of which was sent to California through the port of San Francisco. Hawaii's coffee crop during 1923 amounted to 2,-251,459 pounds. The larger portion was shipped to the United States in the green state, where it was blended with other coffees, losing its identity. The Hawaiian coffee growers hope eventually to increase the value of the crop by marketing it under a special Hawaiian brand, since its especially good flavor makes it susceptible to exploitation. Little tobacco was grown during the year, the total exportation amounting to only 27,930 pounds.

TOTAL INDEBTEDNESS.

The prosperity of the Islands may be gauged somewhat by the fact that bank deposits increased from $50,243,063 in 1922 to $58,628,533 during the year under discussion—a gain of almost 17 per cent. Two new trust companies, with a combined capital-stock issue of $700,000, were organized during the year, and another company outgrew its old quarters and moved into a larger building.

The total indebtedness of the Territory on December 31 amounted to $16,556,000, having been increased during the year by the flotation of a $1,875,000 loan bearing 4½ per cent interest.

TRANSPORTATION IMPROVED.

Water transportation, both interisland and to the American continent, has been considerably improved. A three-trip-per-week service to and from the important islands is now maintained, and carries mail, passengers, and freight. The Matson Navigation Co., which operates between the islands and the mainland, put on two new freight steamers during the year and is now contemplating the addition of a fast passenger and freight steamer, which will accommodate 500 passengers and make the trip in four and-one-half days. In consequence of these additional transportation facilities, the tourist traffic is growing very fast. Visitors during 1923 numbered 12,000, the greater number of persons visiting the islands in any one year, as compared with 9676 during the preceding year.

Labor conditions are fairly satisfactory, although there is still some room for improvement. Laborers brought in from the Philippines during the past two years are proving to be very efficient and now make up about one-half of the total number employed on the sugar plantations. Skilled workmen, such as bricklayers, plasterers, carpenters, and mechanics, however, are still scarce, owing to the large amount of building in progress.

Canal Tolls In Year Over 34 Millions

PANAMA CANAL tolls for the year ended June 30 aggregated $34,390,965, a gain of eight per cent over the preceding year, according to a private message over the E. F. Hutton & Company wires today.

JERRY DAILY, WELL KNOWN SHIPPING AUTHORITY, DEAD

Jeremiah "Jerry" M. Daily, manager of the marine department of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, died suddenly of a heart attack yesterday afternoon while seated at his desk on the floor of the Merchants Exchange. He was probably the best known shipping authority on the Pacific coast, and his passing will be mourned by a host of friends in all parts of the world. Daily was 53 years of age and is survived by his widow, Mrs. Myrtle Daily. His home was at 1560 Masonic avenue.

Jerry Daily became manager of the Marine department in 1900. He is known to thousands of American readers as the original of the character Jerry Dooley in the "Cappy Ricks" stories of Peter B. Kyne. He was famous for his remarkable memory of ships and his ability to keep mental track of their movements, no matter what part of the world; their history, and the names of nearly all their captains. So accurate was his ability in this line that his reports to Lloyds was accepted without question. Probably no one had the intimate knowledge of Pacific coast ships and their histories such as he possessed. Born and raised in San Francisco, he started his career on the water front as a boy messenger who, mounted on a great white horse, would gallop along the front carrying reports for the exchange before the days of the telephone.

During the time that he had worked for the exchange he was rarely ill. Yesterday he complained of a pain in his side but insisted upon continuing his duties until quitting time. Immediately upon receipt of the news of the death of Jerry Daily all activities of the Chamber of Commerce were suspended.

4 VESSELS DOCK AS WATERFRONT OBSERVES HOLIDAY

All Ships in Port Decked in Colors; Crews, Stevedores Take Day Off.

In celebration of Independence Day all business on the Oakland waterfront came to a standstill today. Most of the ships of the harbor dressed themselves out in flags and buntings and the crews were given shore leave and an advance on the monthly pay check.

Two thousand tons of miscellaneous cargo from intercoastal and coastwise points poured into Oakland, however, over the wharves of the Lawrence Terminal yesterday. Fast work on the part of the dock gangs resulted in practically all of the shipments being landed and either hauled away or stowed in the warehouses before dark.

The largest consignment came in the holds ofthe American Hawaiian freighter Texan, inbound from the Atlantic seaboard ports. This amounted to 900 tons and ranged from automobile tires to building hardware and groceries.

The Pacific Mail liner Santa Barbara arrived from Baltimore and other east coast ports with 600 tons of cargo aboard.

From the north came the Canadian Farmer, the only foreign craft to come up the estuary. She carried a shipment of 300 tons of news print paper, the bulk of which was consigned to The Oakland TRIBUNE. This paper came from the mills at Ocean Falls, Vancouver.

Another craft to come in from the north inshore ports was the McCormick liner Wallingford. She brought in 200 tons of miscellaneous cargo, mostly dairy and farm produce. From here the steamer proceeded southward.

At the Parr Terminal in the outer harbor the John Kirkpatrick unloaded 175,000 feet of lumber from Washington. The steam schooner Kellsley called in at the Livingston street municipal wharf yesterday afternoon and stowed 22,000 feet of Coos Bay timber onto the dock. At the Sunset wharf the Mayfair unloaded half a million feet from Eureka.

Japanese Form Tramp Steamer Conference

Forty Japanese vessel owners, representing the management of nearly 2,600,000 deadweight tons of steamers, are included in the new tramp steamship conference. Rules and a minimum tariff as far as adopted became effective May 25, and while in the main freight items cover lumber from Saghalien, Kitami and Siberia to ports on the Pacific coast of Japan, on bean cake from Darien to Yokohama, coal from Moji to Yokohama, sugar from the north coast of Java to Japan, and such items, they include wheat from Pacific Coast ports to the United Kingdom or Continent at 3s a ton, and on lumber from Pacific Coast ports to Japan the same rates are quoted as by the Pacific west-bound conference. The headquarters of the pool is at Kobe and provision is made for agencies at other ports as operations of the organization may demand.

BIG LINER WILL BE LAUNCHED ON NEXT WEDNESDAY

Liner Bienville of S. P. Largest Passenger Ship Ever Launched on Coast.

SEATTLE, July 4.—The large ocean-going passenger liner Bienville, constructed for the Southern Pacific railway for service between New York, Cuba and New Orleans, will be launched on the high tide Wednesday night at the Todd Shipbuilding and Engineering company plant at Tacoma, Wash., it was announced today. It is the largest steamship of its kind to be built on the Pacific Coast.

After loading liberal local offerings for Australian ports, the Swedish steamship Anten shifted last night to Tacoma to round out her cargo.

Heavy travel to both California and Alaska through the Seattle gateway and the sailing of tourists much earlier than last year was reported by passenger officials of the Pacific Steamship company.

Indicating the prosperous condition of Pacific Northwest ports, from the standpoint of foreign trade, statistics released yesterday by Collector of Customs Millard T. Hartson show that customs collections for the six months ending July 1 from the Washington district, of which Seattle is the principal port of entry, exceed last year's corresponding collections by more than $1,000,000.

SCHOOL CONTROVERSY DEMANDS DEFINITE CONCLUSIVE ACTION

A new report that the McClymonds and Roosevelt high schools are unsafe brings to the forefront once more a question which has been debated since May of last year. This report, signed by two civil engineers in the same firm in San Francisco, has been presented to the grand jury by the district attorney and is to be given consideration. Its charges are, in the main, the same which have been made and disputed on a number of occasions.

The public, particularly the parents, in Oakland are not concerned at this time with controversies within the school board, with professional jealousies, or with idle statements easily delivered, but with this one and vitally important question of safety. If the new high schools are unsafe the people are entitled to the knowledge not only as to the conditions but as to the ones who are to blame. If, as a former committee of experts declared, those buildings are safe, the parents are entitled to freedom from disquieting reports.

There should be no difficulty in the positive determination of the condition of the McClymonds and Roosevelt schools. They are either safe or unsafe and it is imperative that doubt be removed before classes assemble this fall. As the record now stands the only committee, selected at large from qualified experts, which has made a survey has reported that the buildings present no menace from fire or earthquake. This committee included a University architect and one selected by the San Francisco Chapter of Architects. Now there is a report of a firm of engineers who make a contrary statement and a grand jury, for a third or fourth time, is wrestling with the question.

The public demand is for a definite settlement. Next in importance to the determination of the condition of the new schools is assurance that attacks upon the schools and upon officials and individuals are not made for political reasons or to influence a bond proposal. While the investigation is on, let it include every phase but, above all, let it find out if the schools are safe, as the experts have declared, or unsafe, as is alleged in the latest report to the grand jury. To aid in an understanding of the situation a summary of what has taken place, a review of the charges, investigations, surveys, and reports made in the past year is here given.

In May, a year ago, Wilfred N. Ball, chief of construction resigned after submitting a statement charging certain laxities on the part of contractors in living up to specifications. He did not make the assertion that the structures were unsafe but did say that for an ordered fire door in one of the buildings an ordinary warehouse door had been substituted. The Board then voted to ask a thorough investigation, by the fire department, of the Theodore Roosevelt school. It was announced that if Ball could present evidence to support his charges a grand jury investigation would be asked.

The demand for the investigation came soon after from the Golden Gate Improvement Club and Ball was a witness before the body. Emphatic denial that there had been any substitution of materials in any contracts were made to the district attorney by contractors named in Ball's charges. It was in August that the grand jury started its investigation and a result was an order by the jury that Henry Meyers, architect, make a careful and exhaustive survey of the plans and specifications of several of the Oakland schools. In October this report of Meyers, county architect, was read to the grand jury and the jury made a personal investigation of the schools in question. The jury spent many days in hearing evidence and had before it contractors, builders, architects, and members of the school board.

The report which was filed on Nov. 15, 1923, held that children are subject to fire hazards in the Roosevelt and McClymonds high schools and their lives endangered by possible collapse of roofs or ceilings in case of an earthquake. The Meyer report, appended, charged changes had been made in specifications.

Fred M. Hunter, superintendent of schools, issued a statement on November 16 assuring the public that no building would be used by school children until they are declared by competent men, to be entirely safe. The district attorney's office said that the reason no indictments were returned by the grand jury was that nothing of a criminal nature could be proved against any of the persons involved.

The expert investigation, recommended by the grand jury, was demanded by the School Board and many civic organizations. On Nov. 27, 1923, W. E. Whalen, construction superintendent of the Board of Education, announced the committee of experts who would make the survey as follows: W. E. Whalen, F. W. Hart of the University of California, Fire Chief Short, W. G. Thornally, and a person to be chosen by the San Francisco Chapter of the American Institute of Architects. The committee began its work at once.

On December 18, the committee in a partial report, declared that the truss in the McClymonds school and the roof of the Roosevelt school were safe. Various changes to make the buildings fit specifications were ordered. Early in 1924 the President's Council asked another grand jury investigation of the Ball charges. The Board of Education refused to pay certain contractors for work done.

The report of the survey committee found that assertions and collusions and graft were baseless, but that "professional jealousies, personal hatred and bitter antagonisms" had hampered efficiency in the building of schools. The committee, including a University expert, two experts from San Francisco and men who, presumably, had no interest in local school affairs, found that the Board had got more schoolrooms for its money than is usual, that there were many defects in plans, but that the schools are entirely safe with the corrections which had been made and ordered made. It states specifically that substitution of wood for brick in the McClymonds school was an aid to expansion and did not present an earthquake hazard. Following this various contractors and architects demanded and were accorded exoneration.

INDEPENDENCE DAY.

Today is more than an occasion for parade, picnic, and admonition to the small boy who would touch a match to a potential explosion. It is a day to give thought to the occasion for the parade and to those very events which are celebrated with the bark of the firecracker. It is a time for getting under the noise and behind the display that the mind may see and hear the figures and voices of the first American patriots.

The Continental Congress welded the diverse settlements of the eastern border of a new and little known land. Americans in those days knew nothing of the land to the west. Because of the time necessary to cross the ocean they were remote from Europe. While they were laying the foundations of a country greater than any would have dared to predict, they were beset with a multitude of perplexing problems.

And so out of the ken of an old world they held their meetings and dared defy unjust taxes and government so far removed as to be without sympathy and without understanding. They declared themselves free and accepted the responsibilities and risk of war against the the most powerful nation in the world, war against the mother country.

In that solemn moment they made their declaration, which stands today as an inspired document. They signed it boldly, shouldered their muskets and awaited the consequences. The war of the householders and husbandmen against trained troops, of the idea of liberty against a military expedition, was the war which gave birth to the United States of America.

We think of it as in the dim past. The names of Washington, Jefferson, Adams, Franklin and the rest are blurred with time. Yet, in 148 years, that tiny confederation of colonies which sprang to arms in 1776, has grown to be the country which celebrates a birthday today, a nation extending from sea to sea, one which takes leadership before the world.

The Declaration of Independence is being read in the cities and towns of the Nation. It is a document which will stand the reading many times over, for in it are the life, spirit, and promise of America.

MORE TRAINING FOR CITIZENSHIP.

The establishing of a citizenship school at Syracuse University, recently announced, was in response to a growing demand for intelligent participation of individuals in the affairs of government. It is a bit singular that a project of this character should be a piece of news; for, seemingly, training for citizenship, for the duties of private as well as public life, should have been seen as a primary function of education virtually with the establishment of a democratic government. But it was not so seen, and it has remained for some of the colleges and the public schools here and there to offer the preparation required.

Chancellor Flint of Syracuse University says the new school "will not seek to inculcate any particular theories of 'isms.' It will not be the organ of any particular economic sect, but will aim at an understanding of the fundamental principles and organization of government, with adequate information and sound bases in facts and figures."

With such an aim, an institution ought to furnish valuable material for public service. It ought to turn out individuals capable of leadership in public life. And it ought to produce, as well, intelligent voters. Extensive training of this type would not be possible for all; but preparation for the duties of citizenship ought to be part of the work of every educational institution, whether a grade school or a college.—Kansas City Star.

THE CONNING TOWER

MY PROFESSION.

When the granddad does some carpenter work,
Or the uncle starts to plumb;
Both of which jobs are carried out
By the amateur's rule of thumb;

When the task has progressed to that certain stage
Where some one his aid must lend,
I meekly go in response to a shout
To "Come hold the other end."

For years and years I've employed my time
'Til study and practice blend,
And I am an expert, nothing less,
At holding the other end.

When St. Peter opens the pearly gate
And I follow a party through,
Secure in the faith that I've reached the land
Of the milk and honey brew,

If it happens the hinges don't work just right
And the gate should sag and bend,
St. Peter will call me out of line
To come hold the other end.

New Ending to a Song.

You can play the ukulele in the Yukon,
But you cannot use a uke in Yucatan.

Mr. Reinald Werrenrath is the only singer we ever have heard who sings correctly the line "But might I of Jove's nectar sup." The others say "sip," regardles of the fact that it is "sup," and rhymes with "cup." But even Mr. Werrenrath sings it "Or leave a kiss within the cup" instead of "Or leave a kiss but in the cup."

Earrings.

Supyalat wore them, with a spray of jasmine,
Proudly coquetting with a palm-leaf fan;
Antoinette sports them in the cafe dansant,
Arc-rimmed with diamonds, fire-fringed with rubie,
Our Sally buys them at the 10-cent counter

Them Was the Nights.

Them was the nights, lads; ah, them was the nights
When the main street was lit by the restaurant lights;
When the rollicking song of good humor at play
Came out through the transom of every cafe—
A black-face comedian doing a turn,
The bartender giving a cocktail a churn,
The beer mugs a-spry like good soldiers at drill
And each with a draught that a hogshead'd fill;
The walls pictured over with show-girls in tights—
Them was the nights, lads; ah, them was the nights.

Them was the nights, lads; ah, them was the nights
When a round of the town was a round of delights;
When a dime bought a bracer to do your heart proud,
A traveling bard with a battered guitar,
Or easing his melody out to the bunch
For the price of a drink or a plate of free lunch;
The easy-made friendships, the free-for-all fights—
Them was the nights, lads; ah, them was the nights.

'Taint that way now, though; the old days has flown,
The Eighteenth Amendment's a way of its own:
It's stuff for embalming they sell on the sly,
And the man who would drink must be ready to die.
It's treason you do if you bolster your hip
Or whisper your order at fifty a nip.
In movie theayters, where seats cramp our shins
And the play's of society flauntin' its sins,
We dream of the time when a man had some rights—
Them was the nights, lads; ah, them was the nights.

POKER PORTRAITS

THE NATIONAL PRESS

Boston Transcript: "The publishers of the Providence Journal and its evening contemporary offer one thousand dollars reward 'for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who placed bromine gas in the Rhode Island senate chamber on the morning of June 10, 1924.' The offer is to be welcomed on two counts: First, because it may encourage similar rewards for the same information from sources no less disinterested than is the Fourth Estate, no less jealous of the honor of a sovereign state, the good name of all New England and the reputation of the nation before the world. The crime of Rhode Island is the shame of all New England and the shame of all New England is the humiliatoin of the nation."

New York World: "The case of H. A. Cunard Cummins, British charge des archives in Mexico City, is one of long standing. Representations were made to the British foreign office by Mexico two years ago, but for reasons never avowed Lord Curzon took no action. Since then the same request for Cummin's withdrawal has more than once been renewed, and nothing came of it. Only when Mexico, somewhat tactlessly perhaps, forced the issue was the order issued in London for Cummin's recall. In the case of any other country in similar circumstances there could hardly have been the same exasperating delays."

Salt Lake Tribune—"It savors of something like ingratitude for the supporters of William G. McAdoo to rail at the two-thirds nominating rule observed by all Democratic conventions since the days of Andrew Jackson. In the Baltimore convention, in 1912, Champ Clark had a commanding lead for the presidential nomination; he did not have a two-thirds delegate support, but he did have a majority of the convention membership. Clark's opponents balked his nomination, and it went to Woodrow Wilson, the two-thirds rule operating in Wilson's favor and against the famous Missourian."

Baltimore Sun: "Promptly comes a denial from the Department of Justice that it had inspired the current crusade against I. W. W.'s on the Pacific coast. Yet it is well known that district attorneys, not to say an assistant district attorney like Fink, of Frisco, who is leading the present hunt, are entirely controlled from Washington. When a district attorney or his assistant fills the jails with soapbox orators and peripatetic hoboes at the expense of the taxpayers, it would seem to be the duty of the attorney-general to stop the silly performance."

Philadelphia Ledger: "Unyielding but kindly, is the American note in reply to the Japanese protest against exclusion. Japan had admitted the right of any sovereign power to deal with its own domestic questions. Congress has the right in America to regulate and control immigration. It saw fit to exercise that right, and exclusion is now the law of the land. Washington points out that in the past this control has been handled by arrangement between the two nations. It is now controlled by American law."

Manufacturers' Record: "Add to causes for the high cost of living: Fees of half a million dollars apiece to prize fighters for furnishing a few minutes of 'amusement' to certain devotees of 'sport.' One 'Jack' Dempsey, a shipyard worker while physically frailer men were fighting at the front, disdains to consider an offer of less than $500,000. Another, Benjamin Leiner, known as 'Benny Leonard,' is equally fastidious."

WAITING FOR DESERT.

Old folks make me tired. They sit
Talking over days gone by;
Seems the[illegible]
So that I can get my pie.
I don't understand why they
Do not hurry up and eat
So that I can go and play
With the fellows in the street.

When I fidget in my chair
Mother shakes her head at me,
Or she says: "Be quiet there,
Patient you will have to be!"
Then the meal drags on and on
While I yawn and stretch and sigh,
'Fraid the daylight will be gone
Long before they serve the pie.

When we've company for tea
I sit twisting in my seat,
Wishing they would bring to me
All we're going to have to eat.
I could bolt my food and run,
Mother will not let me though,
Telling me when dinner's done
'Twill be time enough to go.

I don't see why I should wait
Listening to a lot of stuff
After I have cleaned my plate
And have said I've had enough.
Mother says the way I act
Sometimes makes her want to cry,
But I'll tell you it's a fact,
They should hurry up the pie.

PERSONAL HEALTH SERVICE

By DR. W. A. BRADY.

EARLY SYMPTOMS OF CANCER OF STOMACH.

Cancer is a group of diseases, not a specific disease. Skin cancer (epithelioma) is a fairly benign disease—a patient may have it for 10 years before he notices it at all, such as a wart, a little spot on the lip, or more typically a little pimple on the cheek an inch below the eye. Then it may begin to increase in size and go on for several more years, unless removed when the suspicion is first aroused. Then there is sarcoma, the most rapidly fatal kind of cancer, which may develop in a baby, a child or a person of any age, and bring death in a few months. Finally there is the most common type of cancer, occuring at or beyond middle age, affecting internal organs, and proving fatal, unless surgically removed, in from one to three years.

One in every eight women, and one in every 12 men who die over middle age die from cancer. Thus the disease is an everyday occurrence, and one which is quite as likely to come to you as to anyone else. Cancer is not hereditary, and it is not contagious, so there is no use in worrying about those two points. There is no good reason to think injuries cause cancer, other than coincidence, but there is good and sufficient reason to believe prolonged irritation favors the development of cancer, as is seen in pipe smokers' cancer of the lip, cigar smokers' cancer of the tongue and throat, cancer of the stomach, occuring in the scar or base of a healed stomach ulcer, and cancer of the womb occurring most frequently in mothers of many children—in the scars of the lacerations which are produced at childbirth.

Suggestive signs of cancer of the stomach are:

Dyspepsia appearing in a person of middle age who has been healthy heretofore. Loss of weight. Vomiting without ascertainable cause. Pain in or about the region of the stomach following meals.

Later symptoms are: Anemia, perhaps a lump palpable in the upper abdomen, vomiting of "coffee ground" material or blood. Difficulty in swallowing. Distaste for meat. Loss in strength.

The diagnosis is made positive by examination of the gastric juice after a test meal.

Of course, the only treatment that offers any chance of saving life is early operation. "Dyspepsia" and loss of weight, with persistent symptoms pointing to the stomach, are in themselves ample evidence of the need of any exploratory operation when they develop in a person of middle age previously well.

Editor of The Tribune:

The Hawaiian Islands are U. S. territory. The same status applies to the Philippines.

Query: How will it be possible to interdict Japanese who are residents of Hawaii and the Philippines from coming to the states?

The Constitution prohibits interference with the right of those who are in territory subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, to travel from one part of the domain an any other part, and to become residents therein and thereof as they may choose.

This situation presents a problem conflicting with the Immigration law aimed to exclude Japanese from entering our ports; at least as to those who are now in the islands that are subject to U. S. jurisdiction.

The papers have been printing pictures about the huge bronze equestrian statue of Buffalo Bill, which will be unveiled at the annual roundup at Cody, Wyo., on July 4. Some of my Wyoming friends report that the old-timers, who knew Colonel Cody well, are up in arms against the statue, which was made by Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney. Old residents of Cody object to the statue so much that they are trying to prevent the unveiling. They say the horse is squatting back on its haunches, but Buffalo Bill is not "sitting him" back, and there is no apparent reason for the horse's position, and on the other hand, one front leg is extended gracefully, much like a high school horse doing a cake-walk. The position of the horse's head is inconsistent with the position of both front and hind legs. Colonel Cody has turned in his saddle and is looking toward the horse's left hind foot. Wyoming people say he looks like he thinks a rattlesnake has bitten the horse, but they can't figure why he is pointing his rifle toward the sky.—Col. Charles H. Brown in Horton Headlight.

FIRE RANGER, JAILING TEN, DENIES DRINK

Realty Syndicate to Defend Men Arrested on Charge of Refusing to Obey Order to Fight Forest Blaze

State Fire Ranger E. F. Barnes today denied that he had been drinking when he ordered ten employees of the Realty Syndicate to fight the forest fire in the Oakland hills yesterday, later placing them under arrest for refusing to obey his orders.

"Not only was I not drinking, but I can prove it by witnesses," Barnes said today. "Two Contra Costa county deputy sheriffs, one of them named Jordan and the other whose name I don't remember, were with me at the time I was supposed to have taken the drinks. If I had been guilty of any misconduct they would have known it, and would have placed me under arrest."

The charge that he had been drinking was made against Barnes by Wallace Huffey, secretary of the Realty Syndicate, to Deputy Sheriff Frank Larkin when Huffey appeared at the Contra Costa county jail to deposit $100 bail for each of the men. With Larkin at the time were District Attorney A. B. Tinning and Deputy Sheriff Dike Joslin.

According to Huffey, the men are to be defended at the company's expense, and if their charges against Barnes are found to be substantiated, action will be instituted against him.

GIVEN LUNCH TIME.

The men, Huffey said, had been fighting fire all morning under the direction of their foreman, John Singleton. At noon Singleton told them they might leave the fire line for lunch, the fire having died down to some extent. While they were eating lunch, Barnes, an employee of the East Bay Water company, who is also a state fire ranger, ordered them back to the fire line, and the men refused to go. Barnes immediately placed them under arrest and took them to the Contra Costa county jail at Martinez.

The men had informed him, Huffey said, that they saw Barnes take several drinks out of a bottle before he issued his command to them. They declared, also, that they did not know who he was until, upon their telling him they were waiting for their boss, he replied that he was their boss, and placed them under arrest.

ORDER IS EXPLAINED.

Barnes said that his reason for ordering the men back to the fire line was that the fire had broken out afresh, and their help was needed.

The ten men arrested, all of whom are residents of Oakland, are: J. Cronin, 1015 Webster street; G. Menikett, 3840 McGee avenue; J. P. Green 542 Eighth street; F. H. Rainey, 2542 Scenic avenue, Frank Brainiff, 269 Ninth street; Nilo Knutsen, 581 Sixth street, D. Menichetti, 3820 McGee avenue; J. Silva, 2265 Nineteenth street, John Kopp, 1111 Alice street; F. Duarte, 771 Fourth street.

The men are to plead next Thursday before Justice of the Peace George Duncan of Walnut Creek.

FIRE UNDER CONTROL.

The fire, after having devastated nearly 2000 acres of the hill forests behind East Oakland, was today under control, according to Chief Sam Short of the Oakland fire department.

Two members of the department resigned their positions rather than fight the fire, Short reported today. They were Hoseman Paul E. Sylvester and Frank E. Simmons.

"They were going to quit anyway within a few weeks," Chief Short said, "and I suppose the prospect of fighting forest fires did not appeal to them."

Short also reported that 20 members of his department were confined to their homes as a result of having caught poison oak infection while fighting the hill fires.

Watsonville Acts To Safeguard Water

WATSONVILLE, July 4.—To safeguard the watersheds from which this city obtains its supply of water against the extreme hazards of fire due to the present long continued drought, the Watsonville water department and the board of supervisors of Santa Cruz county have jointly employed a fire warden to patrol all the territory comprising the Browns Valley and Corralitos Creek watersheds.

The warden will have full authority under law to make arrests of persons who may leave fire unattended or abandon them, throw cigarettes or matches away without extinguishing them or perform other acts of carelessness calculated to increase the fire hazard in this section and cripple the efficiency of the fire fighting forces of the city.

Peggy True, Her Story by Peggy True

Buffeted about as a school girl by a conflict of her poverty with her love for writing; used as a tool by a swindler; taken from a successful career through her love for a man; seared by notoriety as the "dream girl" of William Hightower and finally cast down and broken when she lost her fight to save the man she loved from a dreadful fate—Peggy True tried to kill herself by taking gas in a drab Oakland rooming house. She was rescued, revived, helped by friends. She now reveals the entire story of her life for the first time.

CHAPTER 1.

(All rights reserved)

Happiness! What is happiness? Contentment? That sense of achievement of a task well done? To love and be loved? Home and children? Fame? Glory? Where does the blue bird sing? Ever I have sought him. Ever he has flown just ahead. I have touched his wing, then whisk, he is gone again.

At length, beaten and frail, I was too tired to follow the flight any longer. I had come to a sign board at the end of the trail. In one direction it pointed to failure. In the other to death. I was proud. I was sensitive. I was a hurt thing and so death was enticing. Death seemed sweet. At the end of the struggle just to lie down and rest forever. The kindly grave, the cool earth. Oh, how good to be clasped in their arms until eternity and to be awakened and judged only by God.

ALONE, WOOS DEATH.

My pursuit of the bright, beautiful things of life had only led to a sordid home in the back yard of those on whom life had smiled. A tiny shack with even God's sunlight shut out. Oh, the loneliness, the misery of it! The long nights, starting at every sound, crouching on my cot in fear, awaiting the gray day again. Friends of other days gone.

My loved one, he for whom I would gladly lie down and die if it could save him from the foul thing that had killed all that was good and tender in his soul—gone from my arms, gone from my influence, gone from my love forever. And so because I was whipped, weak and fearful, I prepared for that other and truer lover—death.

PEACE FLOODS SOUL.

I went into the front yard and gathered flowers for a blue bowl, bright golden nasturtiums. I put a clean sheet on my couch. I brushed my hair until it shone. I wrote a message that would explain why I had not been able to carry my cross another step and placed it where it would be seen. Then I turned on the gas jets that were to flood my tiny tomb with death and lay down to await it.

Oh, I went about it all very calmly. Now that peace and rest were so near at hand a great tranquility flowed through my tortured soul. The going would be painless, swift and easy. I made excuses for my act, for doing what the world would call a cowardly thing.

HAUNTED BY MEMORIES.

All the tragic events of my unhappy love passed in an endless procession before me. I saw the wolfish faces of men who had tempted me and tried to break down the wall of virtue when I had been weakest. I felt a sense of triumph over these who would have despoiled me. I was escaping them in death. I would never have to fight temptation again. I was going with no stains on my soul. I could meet God with only the sin of my death to make an accounting for.

The dear, tired face of my mother came to me. Oh, it was hard to leave her! She alone would shed tears for me; for, let the world crush me, let enemies trample me to earth, I was her girl and I knew she loved me so much that even this act would be forgiven. Somehow I felt that had she been there to look upon me after the last tired breath had left my abused body she would be glad that peace had come at last to me whose sufferings had torn her own heart even more than they had mine. I knew that my mother would grieve for me, but she would not condemn me too harshly.

BREATHING PAINFUL.

The gas was filling the room. A sickly, sweetish taste was in my throat. I lay and watched the clock, counting the minutes until the end. Oh, it would be an easy death. But pain began to creep through me. It was hard to breathe.

I clutched at my throat. Where was this drowsy, gradual sinking into oblivion that I had expected? I was finding only pain, that tore through my lungs like knives. The clock had ticked off fifteen minutes. Pshaw, I thought, one can not expect to die in fifteen minutes. I will not falter now. I, who have known so much bitter pain in life, can stand a little at the very threshhold of death that is to end all suffering.

PRAYS FOR QUICK END.

And so I waited. But I did not grow sleepy. I closed my eyes. I wooed, I coaxed death. Come quickly, I prayed silently, come swiftly and end it all. Again I glanced at the clock.

A half an hour in a gas-filled room and still I lived! What could my frail body be made of? Was the spirit that inhabited it too strong to be thus rudely and unprepared, shoved into hell? I trembled when I thought of that. Suppose that God would not forgive. Was I even to lose heaven? Again I found excuses in what had gone before. I saw my wretched, poverty-stricken childhood, and the desperate struggles of my work-worn mother to brighten it and give to me the things that other children had.

Down through the years of tragic love came tripping mocking memories to give me strength to finish the thing I had started. I looked into the future. All I saw was a barren stretch of wasted dreams, unfulfilled ambitions, bitter disillusionments, destroyed ideals, loneliness, always alone until in the end there stood nothing but a faded, trembling old woman awaiting the end as eagerly as I now awaited it. I shuddered at this.

Not that, dear God. Not years of empty longings. Oh, I was not strong enough to face it, when the few years yet passed had seemed so long.

Again I closed my eyes and waited.

LUNGS BURN.

I tried to forget the pain. I tried not to breathe at all, but my lungs rose and fell in spite of me, and each time it felt as if they were being ripped and torn. My hands were cold. Icy beads seeped through the skin of the palms. The flesh of my arms was gray. The veins that run up them, inky. And still I did not go. Again the clock, one hour! Could it be possible?

Then someone came rapping at my door. I did not even breathe, for fear that the very sound would betray me. They went away. A minute passed and they came back and rapped again—loudly, insistently. They will smell the gas, I thought. I will be discovered and dragged back. I felt a sickening sense of defeat. Again I had failed. I could not even die. The path of the years was carpeted with failures—and now another, an ignominious, cowardly failure.

RESCUER LEAVES.

The person at the door went away. I heard him go up the walk a little way and stop. If he came back and smelled the gas surely he would break in the door. I would turn it off, and then when I was found there would be no proof that in my despair I had tried to take my own life. I tried to rise. A sensation like sea-sickness tugged at me.

I could now see the clock, but dimly. The blue bowl with the golden nasturtiums was but a lovely blur. I pulled myself up and by holding to the wall, I dragged myself along and reached the open gas jets. I reached out to turn them off. I turned and turned but I had no strength. Those tiny bits of metal seemed like gigantic iron monsters whose poisonous breath I could not stifle.

FALLS TO FLOOR.

Then came the drowsiness I had waited so long for—a restful, blessed flood of it—the room and all the memories of the miseries I had known there faded out. I clutched at the gas jet—and fell.

Hours later I awoke. The door was open. The sweet air flooded in. My dying lungs accepted it gratefully. I began to cry. All was hazy and then I was again on the couch and bending over me was a huge shining star and behind the star an officer. New fears seized me. I had broken the law, and I would be arrested. Disgrace would follow all this despair. Oh, what a hollow mockery life was! But I heard only a murmur of kindly, pitying voices. I was lifted up tenderly and placed on a stretcher. I was borne tenderly to an ambulance. I heard a tense, kind voice give the direction, "Drive like h—l, but get there!"

RACE AGAINST DEATH.

The siren wailed! Swiftly through the city streets we flew. The pain was tearing through me, and I drank in the cool, clean air greedily. There was a jerking and the ambulance stopped. It had reached its destination as quickly as if borne on wings. I was carried in and lifted from the stretcher—and placed on that table of mercy in the Emergency hospital where the city's pitiful failures are taken when life has been too cruel. Oxygen was pumped into my torn lungs. I began to breathe again. I opened my eyes. People were about me. A white-robed nurse smiled tenderly and encouragingly. Bending over me was the kind, sympathetic face of the hospital steward—he was saying, "It is all right now. You are among friends."

FRIENDSHIP IS TONIC.

Friends. And I would not be arrested? "Of course not. You are just going to rest and begin all over again."

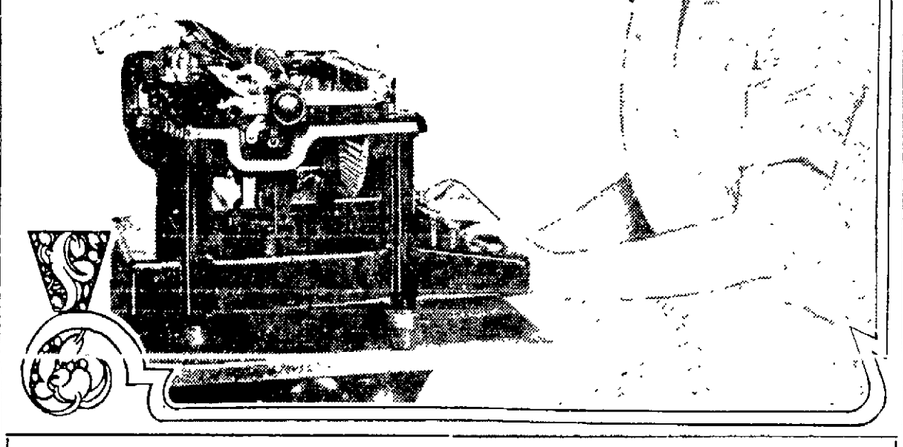

Love! Kindness! Sympathy! Understanding! And I had found it in a place that had seen many sorrows like mine. Rest! Begin all over again. Could I? I would! I would lift myself up again. The tears came—but sweet tears this time. I was grateful for the first kind words I had had in so long. I was engulfed with shame for my act. I had been through my baptism of fire and now my soul was strong and clean. I wanted to live, for though life had robbed me of all that was dear, I had my mother. I would live for her. I would find happiness in going on again, trying again for success and when it came, lift her out of the poverty she had always known.

What greater incentive could one have?

But before I close the book of the past I am going to tread the painful path once more and bring all those dead sorrows from their graves that all who knew me once and I believed in me may know what drove me to such despair that I attempted to blot out the life that belonged to Him who had given it to me.

And if in reading, all those who once loved me, can find it in their hearts to pity just a little and forgive much, I will be grateful. And if the message reaches him whom I loved better than my own life, and wipes out the bitterness that was brought about through no fault of mine, this sorry little tale will not have been written in vain.

Berkeley Importer Sued as Wife-Slapper

Hans Rambke, importer, residing at 1319 Henry street, Berkeley, is today defendant in a divorce suit instituted by Mrs. Eva Rambke in which she charges cruelty. She asks for $75 a month alimony and the Berkeley home.

Mrs. Rambke charges her husband with slapping and striking her on the least provocation, and calling her names. He once struck her in the face in the presence of her mother, the plaintiff says. She further charges that he has continuously mean and that he refused to take her to amusements. They were married in 1914 and separated two weeks ago.

Communists With Red Gloves Under Ban in Dortmund

DORTMUND, Germany, July 4.—Two communists who were elected as deputies of the town council wore red gloves at the initial meeting of the body.

When the time came for the new members to raise their right hands and take the oath of office, all the other deputies removed their gloves, as is customary in Germany, but the communists refused to do so. The burgomaster declined to swear them unless they removed their hand covering for the occasion.

After a lively discussion the communists drew the gloves from their hands and threw them on the floor, in defiance of the council, and stalked out of the room. They attend all meetings, but as yet have not been sworn in, and so far as the other deputies are concerned, are not considered full fledged members of the town's law making body.

Miss Sims Is Named Playground Leader

Miss Alta M. Sims was appointed general supervisor of girls' activities in the Oakland Recreation Department yesterday by the board of playground directors. She will have charge of all girls' activities in city playgrounds including summer programs.

During the year Miss Sims had been instructor in physical education in the University High school. Formerly she was a supervisor of physical education in the Oakland School Department.

OAKLAND 'Y' HAS CAMP FOR GIRLS

Girls between 10 and 15 years, here is a chance for a safe and sane vacation in the mountains for two weeks at a cost ranging from $19.15 to $24.75. The Oakland Young Women's Christian Association has made arrangements with the recreation department through Jay B. Nash, director, to conduct a two weeks' midsummer camp at the municipal reserve on the Tuolumne river, beginning July 12. The total cost to girls under 12 years will be $19.15; to girls over 12 years, $24.75. Registration for the outing should be made at once at the "Y" building, 1515 Webster street.

Miss Ellene Stone Jackson, Girl Reserve secretary, is the "Y" director for the camp. The staff will include Miss Florence Davy, head of the health education department, who will direct sports and recreational activities, assisted by Miss Marion Bowman of Mills College, Miss Anita von Husen of Mills College, head councilor; Miss Lola Osborne of the University of California, in charge of music and dramatics; Miss Edythe Allen, in charge of a citizenship course; Miss Dorothy Langdon, editor of a daily camp paper.

The girls at all times will be under careful supervision and chaperonage.

Wife Charges Man Ate Charity's Food

When Mrs. Linnea H. Andresen complained because Lester W. Andresen, a carpenter, failed adequately to provide for her and the children he suggested that she apply to the Salvation Army and Associated Charities, the wife's divorce suit alleges. Mrs. Andresen says that in fact she did have to apply to those organizations, and her husband showed no hesitancy in consuming food supplied by charity although he was employed and had wages in his possession.

Mrs. Andresen asserts that her husband earns $150 a month and asks that he be ordered to pay her $100 a month for support of herself and two minor children.

AUTO FERRY SETS RECORD IN 3 CITIES

Motors Extend Two Miles From Wharves at North Bay Piers; Transportation Is Taxed to Haul Them

MARTINEZ, July 4.—Martinez-Benicia ferries carry week-end vacation automobiles bound to north of the bay resorts as rapidly as the boats can make the trip across the straits and apparently there is no diminution in the number of autos waiting to be transferred. Since early Thursday afternoon there has been a line of cars more than two miles long stretched along the highway waiting for transport and the line is still there. Traffic officers directing the movement of the autos declare the jam here and at Crockett also are the worst they have ever known.

CROCKETT, July 4.—Week-end vacationists traveling to north of the bay resorts set a new record for ferry travel, according to traffic officers and officials of the Crockett-Vallejo ferry. From early Thursday afternoon until noon today a solid line of autos, in many places two abreast, stretched actually for miles along the highway on both sides of the turn-off onto the ferry causeway.

RICHMOND, July 4.—All former records of the Richmond-San Rafael Ferry company were broken when 2128 automobiles were carried across the bay by the company's augmented service, inaugurated when the third boat, City of San Rafael, was put into service Saturday.

SAN JOSE POLICE SEEKING MOVIE 'LOCATION AGENT'

SAN JOSE, July 4.—A warrant for the arrest of "R. E. Reily, true name unknown," alleged fake "location agent for Universal Pictures," charging passing fictitious checks, was issued by Police Judge Percy O'Connor on complaint of Roy Emerson, prominent sporting goods dealer here yesterday.

"Reily" is the man who, promising to bring motion picture stars to this city, passed several drafts which are alleged to have been fictitious; engaged a suite of sixteen rooms at the Hotel Montgomery; met City Manager Clarence B. Goodwin and fooled several prominent local theater managers by his fluent talk concerning the motion picture business.

On the strength of his alleged position as Universal's "location agent," Reily cashed several drafts, purporting to be on Universal Pictures corporation for "location expenses," and signed by "R. H. Marks" and endorsed by Reily. The drafts were on the Hollywood State bank, which in answer to a query by Emerson yesterday replied that no such persons as Marks or Reily exist as far as the bank knows. On top of that William Beatty, local theater man, received a reply to a query from Universal City, signed by the production manager, that no such man as Reily is connected with the concern. Reily, who bought golf clubs, etc., passed a $72 draft on Emerson, receiving $24 in cash as change, also passed an $85 draft on Springs, Inc., for clothing, receiving a large amount in cash as change.

The warrant sworn to by Emerson has been placed in the hands of Chief of Police J. N. Black for service and officers of adjacent cities have been asked to search for Reily.

Cities Will Vie With Fetes for British Sailors

Oakland Program for Thursday Outlined; S. F. Plans 2-Day Entertainment.

When the British fleet drops anchor in San Francisco bay Monday evening for the first visit of a British fleet to an American port on this around-the-world tour, all details for the entertainment of the officers and men of the fleet who can be relieved from duty during the stay here will be complete.

Oakland's part in the Bay city three-day hospitality contest will be on Thursday when from 1500 to 2000 British tars will be taken on an automobile tour of Eastbay cities and be guests at a night dance at the Oakland Auditorium.

San Francisco starts its official entertainment Tuesday with a reception by Mayor James Rolph at the City Hall at noon to Vice-Admiral Sir Frederick Field, commander of the fleet and his senior officers. Following this there will be a number of luncheons, among which will be one given by the Rotary club at the Palace hotel and another given by the Old Country club at the Fairmont hotel and a reception by the English-speaking Union.

Between 3 and 5 o'clock a reception will be accorded the British community on board H. M. S. "Hood," the flagship of the fleet.

Tuesday night the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce gives a banquet to the officers of the British fleet in the Palace hotel palm court.

At the same time the British societies of San Francisco will join in a dinner dance to be given to American and British warrant officers at the St. Francis hotel, while Admiral S. S. Robinson, commander-in-chief of the United States battle fleet will entertain 1000 petty officers and men of the British fleet with a smoker aboard the U. S. S. California.

Sightseeing trips for the petty officers and men between 1 and 4 o'clock; in the evening the San Francisco police department has provided a sightseeing trip through Chinatown.

Wednesday there will be a dance for enlisted men at the Exposition auditorium. At noon Admiral Robinson will give a luncheon on the California to Vice-Admiral Field and his staff. At the same time the Army and Navy club will give a lunch to the junior officers of the British fleet at the Bellevue hotel. At 3:30 that afternoon a reception will be given on the H. M. S. "Hood."

Thursday, the concluding day of the activities, will be marked by a luncheon given at the Commercial club to Admiral Field and the officers of the fleet. In the afternoon Admiral Robinson will tender a reception aboard the California to officers of the British fleet. In the evening Vice-Admiral Field will be host at a dinner on the "Hood." The Masonic societies of San Francisco will entertain the Masons of the fleet with a drive about the city and banquet in the Scottish Rite auditorium.

The Salvation Army will conduct hospitality centers for the visiting men of both the British and American fleets on the waterfront and in Union Square. Coffee cold drinks, sandwiches, doughnuts and other refreshments will be served to the enlisted men free of charge.

BOND ISSUE FOR SCHOOLS WILL STAND

Director Campbell's Motion to Quash Proposal Lost at Meeting of Board; Effort to Reinstate Ball Defeated

A motion by Director Campbell to quash the proposed school bond issue was defeated in the monthly board of education meeting last night by a 2-2 tie vote, three of the board members being absent. A motion by Director George Ormsby to reinstate Wilfred N. Ball, once chief of construction for the school department, was lost by the same 2-2 tie vote.

Mrs. Ormsby, reminding the board that Ball had stirred up all the grand jury probes, called him the Thomas J. Walsh of the Oakland school investigations."

A long list of teachers to be appointed from the eligible list for the coming school year was held up, as Director Campbell refused to vote for it, on the ground that some non-California teachers are named. The board, by resolution, adopted a long list of transfers, resignations and leaves of absence, as follows:

Resignations: Clinton Evans, high school P. L; George Bass, University high; Almina Goodman, elementary P. L.; Elizabeth Hugus, on leave; A. C. Krause, high school P. L; Beverly Nevison, University high; Mrs. Ida Parker, reinstated; Emily Rothlin, on leave; Lillian D. Sonnenschein, University high; Margaret D. Talbott, on leave; Cora Wilson, Santa Fe; Bruce L. Zimmerman, on leave.

Leaves of absence: Blanche Byxbee, on leave, from July 1, 1924 to June 30, 1925; Mabel I. Denike, on exchange, from July 1, 1924 to June 30, 1925; Norma Houston, on exchange, from July 1, 1924, to the end of the first semester of the school year 1924-25; Helen Stelle, University high, from July 1, 1924, to the end of the first semester of the school year 1924-25; Ethel Swain, on leave from July 1, 1924, to the end of the first semester of the school year 1924-25; Edith Waterman, Lakeview, from July 1, 1924 to June 30, 1925.

The following teachers were elected and assigned to the University high school: Sherman L. Brown, social studies, four-fifths time; Miss Helen Clark, modern languages; Percy Locey, assistant head, physical education for boys; Alice Macgregor, drawing; Clyde Polsen, science; Caroline Power, English.

BOEHLER AND McCARREN STAR WHEN OAKLAND WINS

Home Run by McCarren Puts Locals in Front

Boehler Allows Five Hits and Has Wonderful Control: O'Doul Pitches Well.

The Salt Lake Bees lived up to their reputation of a homeless outfit yesterday afternoon, when they allowed the Oaks to tag a 4 to 0 defeat to them. The nearest they could come to reaching home yesterday was to get to second base four times, only to find out that George Boehler, Oakland pitcher, would not let them go any further. This third game of the series between the Oaks and Bees was a puzzler in more ways than one. Holding the slugging Bees to five scattered hits is a trick in itself. But keeping all of them from getting as far as third base is something else to think about. This Boehler gentleman never pitched a better ball game for the Oaks than he did against the Bees. Nor did Frank (Lefty) O'Doul pitch a better game since wearing a Bee uniform.

McCARREN HITS HOMER.

William McCarron, Brooklyn Dodger castoff, shared the honors with George Boehler in the local victory. It was his long home-run swat over the left field fence with two men on that gave Boehler a three-run lead in the first inning, and it was his wonderful play in the fifth inning that kept the Bees from staging a rally that might have proved disastrous.

For the beginning, George Boehler fanned Fred Coumbe, who was filling in at left field for Manager Duffy Lewis, who was not feeling any too well as a result of being hit in the head in the Wednesday game. Vitt flied to Arlett, and Lindimore popped to Adams. O'Doul had only one bad inning and that was the first, but it was a big one for the Oaks. LaFayette popped out. Brubaker crossed the Bees by planting a bunt and beating the play at first. Spencer Adams drew a walk. Arlett looked bad with O'Doul hooking the ball on him, so he fanned. Up stepped McCarren to swat the first ball offered by O'Doul. Coumbe made for the left field fence with the crack of the bat, but he wasted his time, as the ball sailed far over the top for a home run, with Brubaker and Adams trotting in ahead of McCarren.

McCARREN'S GREAT PLAY.

O'Doul got the only hit off Boehler in the first four innings, a double, but he died at second. Leslie opened the fifth with a hit to right. Arlett made a great dive at the ball to hold it to a single. Now for a play that probably prevented a lot of trouble for Boehler. Pittenger drove a bounder past third base, and McCarren threw himself at the ball and got it backhanded, after which he shot it to second to force Leslie. He was given a well-deserved hand. Cook was an infield out, and O'Doul almost tore a leg off Umpire Reardon with a drive through the bag. The ball hit Reardon and went for a single. Like in the third inning with O'Doul on second, Coumbe again failed to come through in the pinch.

This practically finished the Bees, as Boehler got better as he went along. He was not wild, and failed to show any weakness in the late innings. In the eighth and ninth innings he fanned two batters, made three fly to Lafayette and another to Goebel.

ARLETT SCORES ONE.

The Oaks threatened to do more damage in the sixth, when Arlett led off with a single, took second on Guisto's out and third when Goebel beat out a bunt. Pittenger made a fast play when he fielded Read's bounder and tossed Arlett out at the plate.

Arlett managed to reach the plate in the eighth, when he hit to left and made a double out of it because Coumbe played the ball poorly; McCarren bunted to third, and Guisto was an infield out.

The Oaks now lead in the series two games to one, and two games will be played today. The Oaks and Bees close their series here next Sunday, and President William Lane of the Bees hopes that he hears something from the Salt Lake Chamber of Commerce relative to Salt Lake staying in the Coast League or dropping out. He has no idea of moving the Bees to Stockton, Calif., where he has been offered a ball park.

Mayme McDonald Is Again Net Winner

NEW CANAAN, Conn., July 4.—Mrs. Robert Leroy, titleholder, of New Jersey, was defeated by Miss Mayme McDonald, of Seattle, Washington, national clay court champion, 6-1 and 8-6 in the semi-final singles of the Connecticut women's tennis tournament here yesterday.

Bobby Corbett Candidate as Welterweight

By COPELAND C. BURG, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Corbett's grandmother was a cousin of Tom Sayers, the Englishman, who boxed John Heenan, the American heavyweight champion.

That fight was for the world title and it took place away back in 1860.

"Grandma don't care to have me box, 'cause she says Tom Sayers never was much good after he fought Heenan," opined Corbett the other day.

He is one of the most powerfully built welters ever seen in the ring anywhere.

He tries to keep within the lines set down by Hoyle, but is just naturally rough and ready and any boy who crowds within the hemps with him is due for a hard evening.

He has defeated Alex Maurice, Jimmy Marcus, Bud Soules and other Southern California stars.

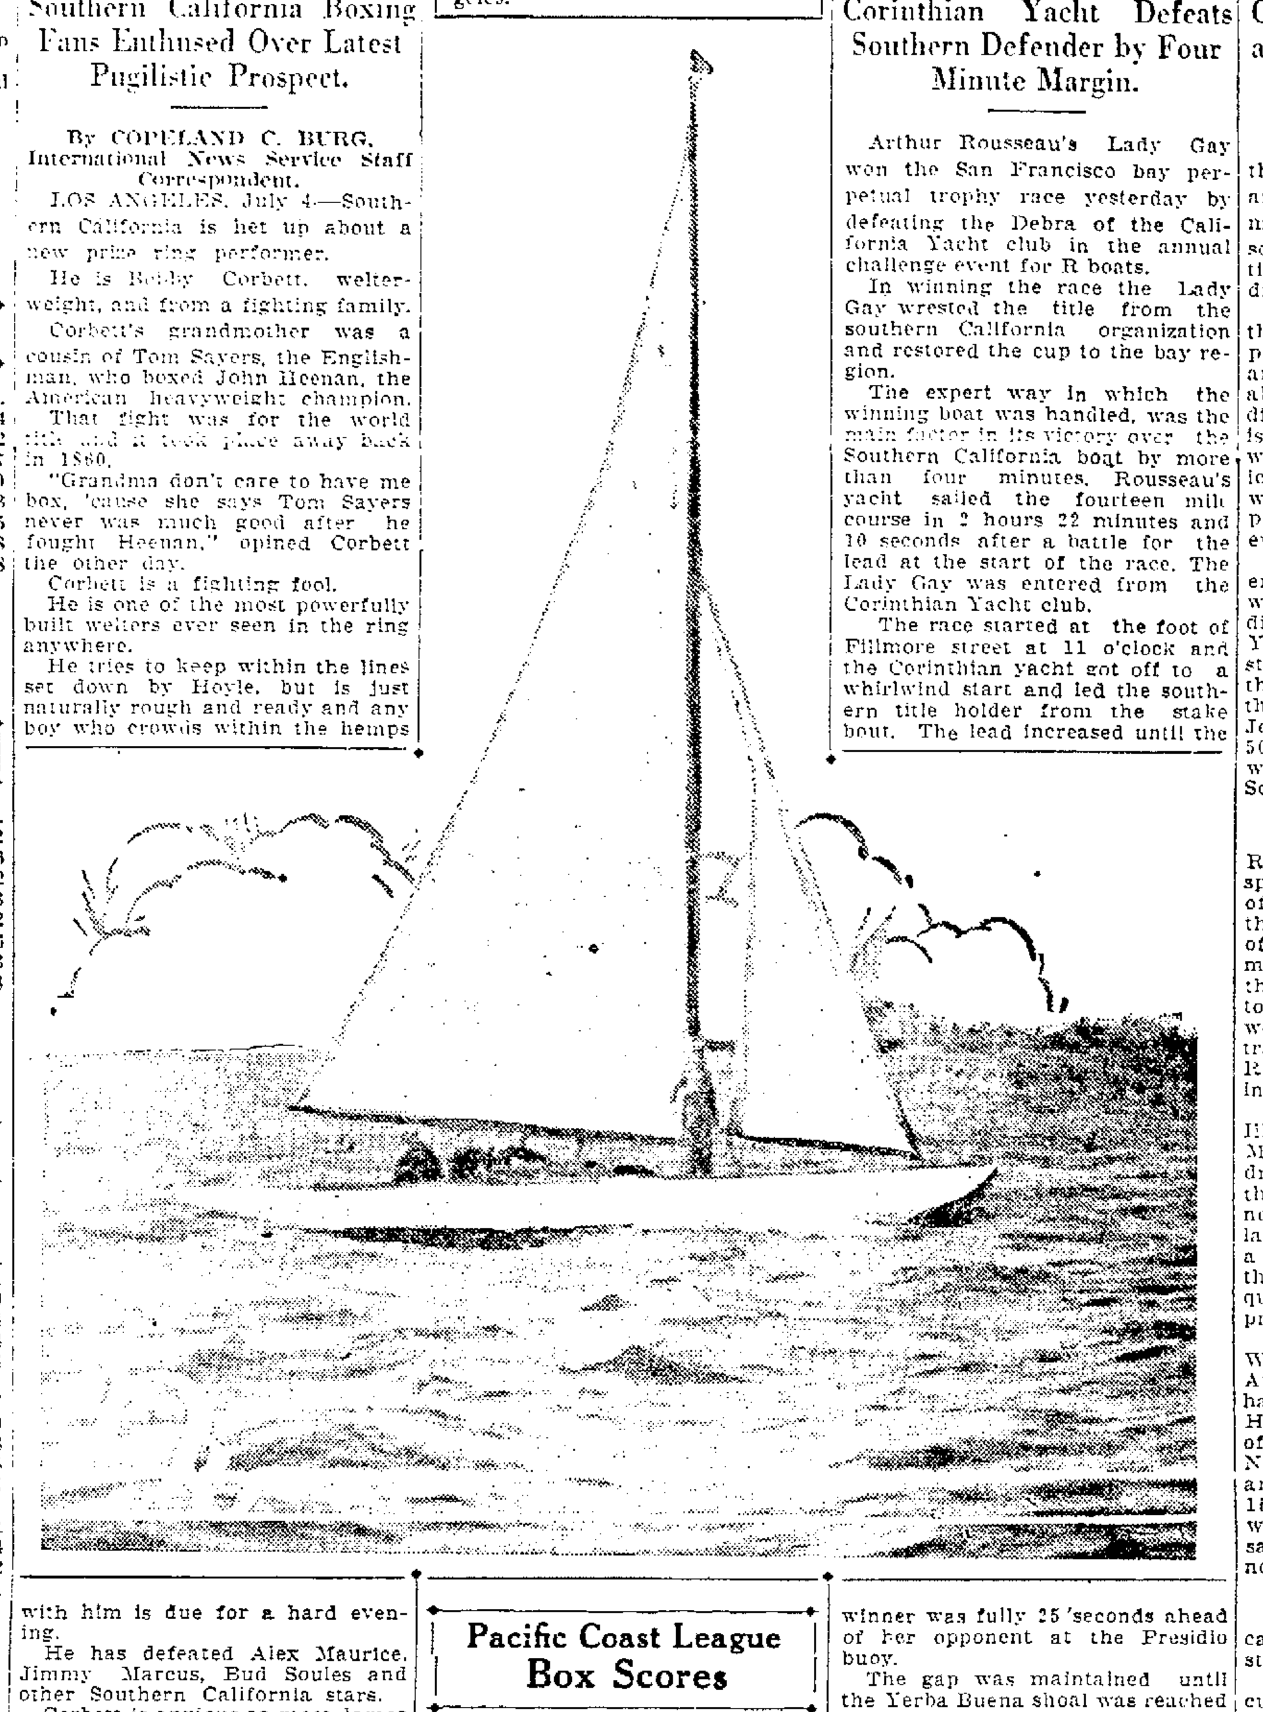

Corbett is anxious to meet James J. Corbett, for he believes he can trace relationship to him.

Corbett is his true name and there is a decided resemblance in his features to those of the one-time American champion.

Rousseau's R-Boat Wins Perpetual Cup

Corinthian Yacht Defeats Southern Defender by Four Minute Margin.

Arthur Rousseau's Lady Gay won the San Francisco bay perpetual trophy race yesterday by defeating the Debra of the California Yacht club in the annual challenge event for R boats.

In winning the race the Lady Gay wrested the title from the southern California organization and restored the cup to the bay region.

The expert way in which the winning boat was handled, was the main factor in its victory over the Southern California boat by more than four minutes. Rousseau's yacht sailed the fourteen mile course in 2 hours 22 minutes and 10 seconds after a battle for the lead at the start of the race. The Lady Gay was entered from the Corinthian Yacht club.

The race started at the foot of Fillmore street at 11 o'clock and the Corinthian yacht got off to a whirlwind start and led the southern title holder from the stake bout. The lead increased until the winner was fully 25 seconds ahead of her opponent at the Presidio buoy.

The gap was maintained until the Yerba Buena shoal was reached when the Debra, sailing faster against the wind, closed the distance between the two boats.

The familiarity of the course shown by the winning skipper was most marked when he guided the boat off of Alcatraz Island. A series of careful tacts and maneuvers again widened the lead between the two boats, the Debra losing as she tried to follow the same course as her opponent instead of heading directly to the windward.

Yesterday's race marked the thirtieth raced for the title and brought the trophy back to San Francisco where it has rested for twenty years. The winning boat will be a favorite in the Pacific coast R boat races, an inter-club race which will be held during the next three days.

Rousseau won his second trophy of the season with the Lady Gay yesterday, the first one being the Elks' day trophy two weeks ago. He has also placed first in the races held by the San Francisco Yacht club.

The races today and for the next two days include races for all types of boats, both motor and sail. The Corinthian, Aeolian, Oakland, Vallejo and South Bay Yacht clubs will all have entries in the verious events.

Thirteen classes of sail boat races and six motorboat events will be among the three-day program.

Play Resumed In Middle West Tennis Tourney

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 4.—Play in the Western tennis championships, halted yesterday by rain after William T. Tilden had progressed to the semi-finals by winning from George Lott, Chicago, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1, was to be resumed here today.

Owing to the condition of the courts, morning play was deemed inadvisable and only the postponed matches are scheduled. This will push the semi-finals to Saturday with the finals scheduled for Sunday. Men's doubles, women's singles and doubles, and the boys' and juniors' tournament will follow the same arrangement.

In the semi-finals of the men's singles, Tilden will play the winner of the Chapin-Schlesinger match. Hennessy plays Norton today and Patterson will complete his match with Kuhler to determine the other semi-finalists.

The Tilden-Lott match was the only one completed yesterday, although Patterson took one set from Kuhler by a 6-3 score before rain put a stop to the proceedings.

Nurmi's Task Is Hardest in Olympic Games

Clashes Between Americans and Prominent Foes to Occur in Distance Runs.

PARIS, July 4.—Preparing for the opening events of the track and field program Sunday, the members of the American Olympic squad went through their respective events at the Colombes stadium yesterday afternoon.

The meeting of Paavo Nurmi, the great Finnish runner, with the pick of the Americans in the 1500 and 5000 meter events is the all-absorbing topic around the stadium, and although Nurmi's ability is unquestioned, those who have watched the workouts of the American team predict that the Finn will be up against too tough a proposition in entering so many events.

Other outstanding instances of encounters of American athletes with prominent foes occur in the distance events. Marven Rick, New York A. C., in the 3000-meter steeplechase, will meet Elvin Wide, the Swedish star, and Willie Ritola, the Finnish-American ace, while John Romig, Penn State, in the 5000-meter race, oddly enough, will encounter the same pair of Scandinavians.

RIVAL IN RYAN.

Rick also has a third rival in Ryan, the widely heralded Irish speeplechaser, so that his chances of qualifying are doubtful, although the first three to finish in the heats of this event as well as in the 5000-meter steeplechase will qualify for the finals. Romig, if he continues to improve as he showed in today's workout on the Colombes practice track, should push both Wide and Ritola, at least clinching a qualifying place.

In the 1500 meters Ray B. Buker, Illinois A. C., and W. O. Spencer, Mississippi A. and M., have been drawn against two British stars, the former meeting H. M. Stallard, noted Cambridge crack, and the latter opposing D. J. A. Lowe, also a Cambridge man, but as they are the class of each heat and two qualifying places for the finals are provided, all four should survive.

Lloyd Hahn, Boston A. A., and Watson, Illinois A. C., the other Americans in this race, should have an easy prospect to qualify, Hahn meeting the only opponent of note in Liewendahl, Finland. Nurmi, Finland's act, will also have an easy path to the finals in the 1500, which he will run, together with the 5000 meters finals on the same afternoon, July 10, but he is not drawn for the 800 meters.

EASY FOR SPRINTERS.

Neither Chester Bowman, Syracuse University; Loren Murchison, Newark A. C., nor Jackson V. Scholz, New York A. C., will meet any dangerous rivals in the 100-meter heats, though Murchison has Rivas, promising Argentine, against him in the first heat of the seventeen composing the trials on the opening program next Sunday. The finals will be contested Monday.

In the 200 meters, Bayes Norton, Yale, will oppose the Canadian star, Coaffe, who ran indoors in the United States last season under the colors of the Illinois Athletic club. Scholz has Halme of Finland as his opponent and George Hill, U. of P., will toe the mark against Matthewman of England. But the Americans should have little difficulty in winning.

J. C. Taylor, New York A. C., in the 400-meters run, meets Dustan, the speedy South African, and Schuyler Enck, Penn State, draws Houghton of Great Britain, but otherwise the Americans in these two events have no prominent opposition in their trial heats, in which the first three qualify.

HURDLES A FEATURE.

The only remaining features of the draw worthy of mention are in the 400-meters hurdles, where C. F. Coulter, University of Iowa, meets Wilet, Finnish star, and in the 110-meters hurdles, where F. B. Johnson, Illinois A. C., encounters the veteran Frenchman, Andre.

In the relay racing the United States has drawn Sweden, France and Latvia in the sixth heat of the 400-meters event, and Spain, South Africa, Canada, Holland, Mexico and Poland in the third heat of the 1600 event. The Americans oppose France, Spain, Mexico and Sweden in their heat of the 3000-meter team race.

Despite the second straight rainy day the Americans had a workout in the Colombes stadium, the entire squad being put through their paces for two hours, but owing to the heavy condition of the track the coaches did not extend the runners.

The majority of the men who have encountered minor ills and mishaps in rounding into condition, the coaches assert, looked better than ever yesterday. Osborn, the high jumper and decathlon star, has been the subject of repeated alarming reports arising from his visit to the hospital several days ago, but Coach Robertson declared last night that the strain in his back is slight and he expects that a few days' rest will put the Chicago man in good condition.

Snodgrass-Wesbrook Defeated in South

LOS ANGELES, July 4.—Springing the only upset this far in the Pacific coast men's doubles championship tennis tournament in progress here, Tom Ferrandini and Harold Godshall, Southern California titleholders, yesterday won their way into the final play by defeating Harvey Snodgrass and Walter Wesbrook, the pick of the local tennis talent. The score was 4-6, 6-3, 0-6, 9-7 and 6-4.

Howard and Robert Kinsey of San Francisco, present coast champions, had little difficulty in disposing of Bates and Allen, who advanced to the semi-finals by defeating Neer and Davies.

Yesterday's Doings on the Diamonds

While the Washington Senators and the New York Giants, respective leaders of the two big time circuits, enjoyed a holiday thrust upon them by the schedule makers, the St. Louis Browns usurped the major league spotlight for a day and gained a precarious foothold in the first division of Ban Johnson's race by defeating Cleveland in a rollicking slugging bee, 16 to 10. Sisler's men today occupy fourth place, seven points ahead of Chicago and 15 points ahead of the Indians.

The Browns drove "Sherry" Smith off the mound in the sixth with an assault that took six runs and made life equally miserable for Roy and Clark in the eighth with a cluster of seven markers. Rice, St. Louis third baseman, drove in five runs with four hits and scored two more himself.

The Yankees concluded their six-game series with the Athletics by dropping the final contest 10 to 5, and had to be content with an even break. Philadelphia bats scarred the offerings of Pippgras and Gaston for 14 hits while Gray held the world champions' heavy artillery down to give bull's eyes. Ruth's 21st home run of the season was the one redeeming feature from a New York standpoint.

In spite of a snappy triple play engineered by Rigney, Jones and Burke, Detroit lost a seven to three decision to Chicago. The White Sox put the game on ice in the second when they grouped four hits around a Tiger error for four runs. Harry Hellmann hit for the circuit in the first.

Brooklyn celebrated its release from the clutches of the Giant jinx by taking the opening game from the Braves, 6 to 5. Lucas was unable to overcome the handicap he inherited from Cooney, whom the Robbins batted savagely in the first three innings. Jimmy Johnston, with four hits and six assists, was all around star of the game.

Chicago gained a half a game on the Giants by defeating Cincinnati 4 to 3. After the Reds had tied the score in the ninth Roush handed the game to the Cubs with a wild heave, on which Friberg registered the winning tally.

America's Last Swordsman Out Of Competition

PARIS, July 4.—The last semi-final matches in the Olympic fencing foil competition today resulted in the elimination of America's last contender. George C. Calnan of the U. S. Navy and in the qualification for the final round of Larraz of Argentina, who won three of his five matches brilliantly and lost the other two by flukes. The final round will be completed today.

Calnan, far below yesterday's form, could beat only the unfortunate Lorentzen of Norway who has been beaten by everybody in the tournament. The American representative showed considerable fatigue and nervousness. Cattiau of France was the star of the day, winning all of his five matches.

The finals today will be fought in 28 matches, 20 in the afternoon and 8 in the evening.

The following have qualified: Cattiau, Coutrot and Ducret of France; Seligman of England; Oesler of Denmark, Larraz of Argentina, De Benkalaer of Holland and Vandamme of Belgium.

Upson Advances to Semi-final Round

TORONTO, July 4. — Frank Thompson and Seymour Lyon, both of Toronto, Ross Somerville of London, Ont., and Lauren Upson of Sacremento, Calif., yesterday won their way to the semi-finals of the Canadian amateur golf championship on the Rosedale links.

Thompson defeated C. C. Fraser of Kanawaki, Montreal, 4 and 3; Lyon triumphed over C. B. Grier of Mount Brune, Montreal, 2 and 1; Somerville won from Norman Scott of Mount Brune 2 and 1, and Upson downed F. G. Hoblitzel of Sarnia 5 and 4.

Pennant Races Remain Close; Cubs Threaten

By ARTHUR STREWE, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, July 4.—Watch the Tigers and the Red Sox in the American League and the Cubs and Dodgers in the National League.

These four teams are knocking at the pennant door and have so persistently stuck on the trail as to make the path of the Yankees and the Giants to the fourth pennant a very thorny one.

For some time the Red Sox ran neck and neck with the Yankees. Then they faced the Tigers in a disastrous series, and now it is the team from Jungletown which is ready to jump on the Yankees' neck. Both Managers Cobb and Fohl have urged their charges on and have taken advantage of every slump made by the leaders.

YANKEES HAMPERED.

True it is that the Yankees have been hampered by injuries to their stars, interspersed with mediocre pitching by their "aces," but the alibi is taken with a grain of salt by local fandom. The fans opine that the Yankees were heralded as being in a class by themselves, and they do not relish the idea of seeing the team holding on to the lead by a short thread which may break at any time.

The Cubs have been welded into a strong machine by Manager Killifer. With a few older heads in the line-up, Killifer has taken hold of a team of youngsters, and they are today playing the best ball of any team in the National League circuit. The Cubs have gone into the lead several times in the last fortnight only to drop back again, but they are close enough to worry the leading Giants. The Dodgers, strengthened considerably by Manager Robinson, have been playing first division baseball and are ready to take a forward leap should the Giants and Cubs falter.

HOPE CHECKS GIANTS.

One hope his cheered the Giant rooters. The fact that McGraw's pitchers are going through the full nine innings with more regularity than they have since the season opened has kindled the spark of hope that the McGrawites may come through with a fourth pennant.

Anything may happen in baseball, however. Early in July the Giants must make their second swing through the West, and if thye do not play better ball than they did on their first trip it will be good-by for the lead.

The Yankees also found the going hard against the Western teams on their recent journey to the land of the setting sun, losing a majority of their games, and they must do better against their adversaries in the coming East-West series, or they likewise will follow the Giants on the downward path.

Nothing is certain in baseball. The race in the American League is much closer than that in the National, with seven teams having a look-in and only about half a dozen games separating them. Even the Athletics, in the cellar position, could make the race tighter than it is at present if they staged a winning spurt.

4 College Players Get Baseball Offers

Four members of the baseball team of Holy Cross have received offers from managers of the major league clubs. The players are: Captain Ken Simendinger, Pitcher Jim Tunney, Autfielder Hop Riopel, and Catcher Tim Ryan, one of the best backstops in college baseball.

Great Finn Will Enter Many Events

Paavo Nurmi, the Finnish track star, is entered in five Olympic events: the 1500 meters, 500 meters, 10,000 meters, 10,000 meters cross-country run, and the 3000 meters team race.

WHO'S WHO IN THE OAKLAND TRIBUNE

ANDRE TARDIEU, who cables each week a reflection of the French view of world affairs to The Sunday TRIBUNE is distinguished alike in the realm of journalism, on the field of battle, in diplomacy and in statesmanship.

During the war he rose from the trenches to become at Versailles the right hand of George Clemenceau, "Tiger of France," and dominant member of the Big Four of the peace conference.

A member of the "Blue Devils" and decorated for gallantry in action, M. Tardieu nevertheless rendered probably his most noteworthy war service as high commissioner of France to the United States.

M. Tardieu traveled much through the United States, met all the higher American officials and was in earnest association with men of affairs in every section of the country. His long residence here gave him the acquaintance with the American point of view, purposes and ideals.

WILLS-FIRPO BOUT LOOMS AS NEXT IMPORTANT EVENT

TWO FORMER COASTERS LEAD AMERICAN AND NATIONAL PITCHERS; STRAND CANNOT STICK

Strand Fails To Stick With Connie Mack

By EDDIE MURPHY.

Connie Mack, leader of the Philadelphia Americans, tossed another player deal bloomer when he paid out $37,000 for Outfielder Paul Strand of the Salt Lake club. At least that is what the people of Philadelphia were shouting for some time, until the other day Mack announced a trade whereby Strand went to the Toledo club of the American association for Outfielder Bill Lamarr. Pitcher Rollie Naylor and a bag of cash also went with Strand.

Strand was much older than the average outfielder or infielder graduating from the minors to the majors but he was such a slugger with the Salt Lake Bees for a couple of seasons, that Mack decided to take him for the $35,000 and at the same time keep some other major league club from getting him. The former Bee hit 394 in the Coast league last lead and topped the list of hitters besides that he broke the league record for home runs. He also set a world record for the number of base hits made by one in a scheduled season. He also set a record for the number of putouts handled by an outfielder in a season.

Lamarr is now playing with the Philadelphia Athletics. He made his debut in left field last Wednesday and got a double and two singles in the first game of a double-header. In the second game he went hitless, but handled six putouts. In the game in which the Athletics defeated the Yankees yesterday Lamarr hit two singles, scored two runs, handled four putouts and had one assist.

Strand and Pitcher "Rube" Yarrison are two of the players passed up by Scout Joe Devine of the Pittsburgh Pirates although Joe thought they were mighty sweet for the minors. Devine was called on the carpet by the Pirates when the Phillies closed a deal with the Portland club for Yarrison, but Joe was ready to gamble that Kremer would last longer in the majors than Yarrison, and today Yarrison is back with the Beavers. The success of Kremer with the Pirates, and the failure of Strand and Yarrison to stick in the majors is another booster for Devine the Oakland boy scout.

Pitcher Naylor reported to the Toledo club a couple of days ago, and Strand will report in a couple of days. It is rumored that Strand will return to Salt Lake after the close of the American association season and be married to Miss Ester Corless. Strand also intends to go into business at Salt Lake at the conclusion of the season.

The Pacific Coast League today has two pitchers in the majors who are holding pitching honors. Ray Kremer, former Oakland hurler is leading the National League hurlers with eleven wins and only four defeats, while Hollis Thurston won his twelfth game of the season for the Chicago White Sox and is now the leading pitcher in the American League. It is quite an honor for the former coasters to be the leading hurlers in their respective leagues, especially with the White Sox only in fifth place, and the Pirates in fourth place. These pitchers had much to do with the team being anywhere near the first division in their leagues.

The White Sox have won thirty-three games, which means that Thurston won better than one-third of them, and Kemer has won just about one-third of the victories credited to the Pirates.

Golfers to Be Given Chance To Test Ball

NEW YORK, July 4.—Golfers will shortly be given an opportunity to form their own impressions of what may become the ball of the future. A manufacturer is now making up quite a supply which can be secured by the linksmen who care to experiment, the idea being to see how the new brand will work out in actual play.

The ball of the future, as officially favored at present, is 1.68 inches in size and 1.55 ounces in weight. For some time past the implement and ball committee of the United States Gold association has been in communication with the Royal and Ancient and according to an official of the former, the gap separating the two bodies as to the most desirable size and weight is now comparatively slight.

According to those who have studied the problem at all closely it will mean a shortening of some of the courses, should the ball under discussion be adopted.

Hicks Tells How to Interpret Golf Rules

Golf is bound up with many technicalities of procedure concerning which the code of rules is at times somewhat vague. In this year's Spalding Golf Guide, edited by Grantland Rice, a chapter entitled "Blind Word Traps and Hazards in the Golf Rules," by William E. Hicks, a well-known writer and student of the rules, presents a number of instances where the wording is ambiguous and fruitful of misconstruction. This portion of the Guide is in itself a noteworthy addition to the literature of the game.

American Broad Jumper to Try For New Mark

PARIS, July 4.—DeHart H. Hubbard, leader of the United States squad of broad jumpers in the Olympic games, has as his greatest ambition the breaking of the world's record of 25 feet 3 inches, held by E. O. Gourdin, former Harvard star. Next to that, this year, he cherishes an ambition to go through the season with a record of 24 feet or better in each of the meets in which he takes part. He had maintained this pace up to the Western Conference meet.

The record of the A. A. U. championship meets show but three jumps of more than 24 feet, two of them made by Hubbard himself. The record of the Olympic games show but two jumps over 24 feet, one by Meyer Prinstein and the other by Irons in 1908, when he made 24 feet 6½ inches. The accepted world's record did not reach the point Hubbard set for himself as a weekly mark until Kraenzlein made 24 feet 4½ inches in 1899. Prinstein, O'Conor of Ireland and Gourdin have made successive new marks.

In his outdoor work he jumped from 24 feet 2¾ inches, his record in the Drake relays, to 25 feet 2⅝ inches, in an exhibition jump at the Ohio relays.

Borotra Meets La Coste for Tennis Title

Two Frenchmen Clash in Finals of Men's Singles at Wimbledon Tomorrow.

By SUZANNE LENGLEN,
French Woman Tennis Champion.
(Copyright, 1924, by International News Service.)

LONDON, July 4.—So it is to be an all-French final in the men's singles in the Wimbledon tennis tournament after all. Jean Borotra, male champion of France, will play Rene La Coste for the title tomorrow.

Both men won their semi-final matches in a commanding style in a manner more convincing than one could have imagined. Borotra shows in and out form. He is inclined to play down or up to his opponent.

La Coste, on the contrary, has been playing with extraordinary steadiness and judgment. He has survived every kind of a trial. Double faults and foot faults haunted R. Norris Williams II all through their match. La Coste was imperturbable. He gave no mercy. Williams, in his artistic way, tried wonderfully hard to do too much.

This will not score against a player like La Coste, who does not mind if, now and again, the ball flies by him like a meteor at an unattainable height. He knows that meteors are rare.

Williams' chance to bring the match to a level and perhaps win the game was in the third set, when he suddenly struck his form and stride and played like a master. His precision was fine.

Borotra won from Louis Raymond of South Africa by "sterilizing" Raymond's wonderful drives. He leaped upon them, smothering them at the net or by cross-covering them. Raymond's "curly" service worried Borotra at times, but his reply was a soft, deep return down the center court or a low long cut. This was sufficient to prevent much of a loss in points.

How to build up your Weight

TO be under weight often proves low fighting-power in the body. It often means you are minus nerve-power, minus red-cells in your blood, minus health, minus vitality. It is serious to be minus, but the moment you increase the number of your red-blood-cells, you begin to become plus. That's why S. S. S., since 1826, has meant to thousands of underweight men and women, a plus in their strength. Your body fills to the point of power, your flesh becomes firmer, the age lines that come from thinness disappear. You look younger, firmer, happier, and you feel it, too, all over your body. More red-blood-cells! S. S. S. will build them.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

U. S. Poloists Are Regarded As Invincible

Victory of Americans Over Great Britain Taken as Good Sign.

ST. CLOUD, France, July 4.—The United States team loomed up as almost certain of the world's polo championship by virtue of its crushing defeat of Great Britain's Olympic team yesterday, 10 to 2.

The American quartet proved themselves good muddlers.

Yesterday was another banner day for Tommy Hitchcock, who played at No. 2 and who scored five out of the total of ten goals for his team. He also was instrumental in bringing about positions which enabled Elmer J. Boeseke, No. 1 for the Americans, to tally four goals. Hitchcock is acknowledged by all polo experts to be the best man seen on any of the four teams which have competed in the Olympics thus far.

The American ponies were far better than the British mounts which showed up at the finish. Major F. W. Barrett changed mounts three times during the last two chukkers, his black mare, Mademoiselle, with which he finished the match, limping badly as she returned to the stables. All of the American ponies pulled up with sound limbs.

Firpo on Way To Meet Wills In Title Bout

Eccentric Argentine Battler Makes Several Startling Announcements at Dock.

BUENOS AIRES, July 4.—Several hundred admirers were at the dock yesterday to say farewell to Luis Firpo, Argentine heavyweight, who sailed for New York aboard the American Legion to prepare for his fight with Harry Wills.

Juan Homs, the agent here for Tex Rickard, who spent nearly three months persuading Firpo to return to the ring, also sailed.

The Argentine heavyweight declared he did not intend to engage a trainer in the United States. He was not sure even he would engage American sparring partners, relying upon his own ring-mate, who is popularly known here as "Firpito," owing to his resemblance to Luis Angel. Firpo's private cook, who is also a good boxer, will be used as sparring material.

"This time," declared the South American battler, "I am not going to accept advice from anybody but myself. Knocking out Wills will be the least of my troubles. What will trouble me more will be the people who want to tell me what to do and how to do it."

Firpo said his plans after the Wills' fight were uncertain.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

TOKYO, July 4.—Denial that the earthquake and subsequent fire in Tokyo, Yokohama and Yokosuka, the Japanese naval base, last September cost the navy the major part of its oil reserves, as had been reported, was made in the lower house of the diet today by Admiral Hyo Takarabe, minister of the navy. The minister said the loss was comparatively small.

"The prospects of producing oil in Formosa and other parts of the empire are promising and considerable progress has been made in the artificial production of oil," said the admiral.

The minister promised an early statement regarding the proposed improvement of the naval aviation force.

The minister of war, Lieutenant General Issei Ugaki said the army's reorganization plans for a "new weapon" program were nearing definite shape.

This program is one intended to remedy the tardiness of Japan's force to adopt the newer types of weapons developed during the World war.

A commission of technical experts and army officers has been abroad for some time studying the types of weapons adopted by other nations as a result of experience gained on World war battlefields.

LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

The French, it was added, will be unable to accept the British idea of taking from the reparation commission the prerogative of deciding when Germany shall have defaulted in the execution of the Dawes plan.

MacDonald's instructions to the British ambassador here in this connection are taken in Paris as mere suggestions concerning the agenda and the French delegation to the conference will have counter-suggestions to present in London.

TODAYS SHORT STORY

by Ad Schuster

A JAZZ BOOM

"MY dear, it is preposterous for you to consider marrying a man like Len Boom. He is one of the sort who will never make good in the world."

Susan's mother tried to speak patiently and felt she was being impressive.

"But Len hasn't proposed and he won't until he makes good," the girl answered. "I cannot see why you should worry."

"My idea of an ideal suitor," the mother persisted, "is a handsome, polite and wealthy man like . . ."

"Like Cameron Maple," the daughter finished. "You have said that so many times before."

Susan did not dislike Cameron Maple. It might have been that she would have married him had not Len been so determined and faithful and had the girl's parents shown less of a disposition to encourage the match with Maple.

"I am working hard on my book," Len reported when he called that evening "With you for my inspiration and with the reward of a success which will give courage to my words, give me the right to say what I would, I cannot fail"

Len did not consider this a proposal. He had said as much many times before and Susan knew there would be no declaration unless the book were accepted.

"I don't know," the girl answered, "that I like to be called the inspiration of a book to be called 'A Serious Discussion of the Jazz Age'"

"You know what I mean. You're the one who inspires me to want to succeed."

In the days that followed Cameron Maple had the field to himself, for Len was busy finishing the book he wrote late into the night polishing off paragraphs, adding touches, and admiring what he had set down. It did not seem possible any publisher would refuse this work. The boy wondered how much money it would bring

It was then Susan discovered that her choice of husbands depended upon that book She knew she must give in to her mother and Cameron if Len did not propose, and equally certain that unless the lad sold his manuscript he would never speak.

"Let me read the story before you send it off," she begged. "I want to be the only one, before you, to see it"

Len gave up his idea to keep the work a mystery and handed it over to the girl, who kept her light burning late going over the pages Then she turned out the light and looked out of the window and through eyes filled with tears Len had not written a story; he had discussed the "Jazz Age." And she thought he had been fooling her into a belief of serious endeavor. Who would buy a book like that by a yound unknown and unqualified? She turned on the light, read the manuscript again, and then busied herself with pencil making some additions and changes which came to mind.

"I sent it off," she told Len the next day. "Maybe that will give you better luck."

But Susan had sent it no farther than a stenographer, who make a neat copy of the manuscript which was in reality partly Susan's. Then she mailed the package and shared with the author the feeling of suspense.

When word of acceptance came there was a double celebration and some small amount of consternation. Len and Susan visited the county seat and were married.

"Read it all through," she said, "and then come out and tell me what you think."

The strain of waiting was greater than any the girl had ever endured. What would he think of the liberties she had taken? How would he regard this book which had been intended to be so serious? She waited for a sound in the other room but a full hour of silence passed. Then she heard the book close and knew he had slammed it on a table. He was walking back and forth.

Suddenly came Len's voice in joyous laughter and she rushed in.

"Girl," he said, "you have shown me what a fool I was. Why, the book's a scream now, a real work of humor. Now I know what I can do with your help."

"I knew," said Susan, "you would not care if you knew that it was the only way I could get you."

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

by Adele Garrison

THE WHIP CRACK

LILLIAN gave an extra curl of the whip lash to her last words, and I, standing near her and listening tensely to her telephone conversation, was not surprised after an instant's interval to see her lips relax into a satisfied smile. It told me that Dicky had capitulated, and would carry out his mother's wishes.

"'All right' is 'right,'" she said, and I could imagine Dicky's impatient reiteration of the phrase, when he finally felt compelled to yield his objections to having the will drawn up which his mother wished William Harrison to have an opportunity to sign before he died.

"Please keep us advised of conditions as often as you can, on your mother's account," she went on, and then with a quick glance at me, she added, "Yes, Madge is right here"

She handed me the receiver and I took it with a reluctance and feeling of pique that I would not have had her guess for many dollars. She had succeeded in conquering Dicky's temperamental objections to his mother's plan where I had failed, and although I was heartily glad of her success, because I could see the necessity and the wisdom of the scheme Mother Graham had proposed, yet there was a pricking barb for my vanity in the knowledge that my husband had yielded to her insistence instead of mine.

Whether Dicky realized this or not, I do not know, but there was balm for me in the explosive irritation of his greeting when I had spoken the simple words, "Is there anything you want me to do?"

"Yes, there is. Take Lil out and boil her in oil. You've got a crust, sicking her on to me about that will thing, when you know she's got ten bull pups tied to the mast for stubbornness and persistence. I suppose you felt you didn't have the strength to wear me down yourself, although you knew it was only a matter of time, so you turned the job over to her. Oh, I'm going to go through with it, now that I've promised—I'm no welsher—but you two know-it-alls will find out before you get through that this is about the craziest thing you've ever tried to put over.

"Advise the precious child to roll his hoop," Lillian whispered, and I translated the phrase in as conciliatory fashion as I could manage.

"Perhaps you're right," I said meekly, with a moue at Lillian, "but nothing matters now, only assuring Mother that you are going to do what she wishes. I must go up to her now, for she is anxiously waiting to hear what you said."

"Well, tell her I'm the goat as usual. How is she standing it all, anyway?"

The swift transition from anger to anxiety was characteristic of my volatile husband, but in some curious, inconsistently feminine fashion, I felt my own resentment against him gone, and I answered his query gently.

"Wonderfully, so far, but I am afraid she is using every ounce of will power and strength she has in the effort. I think you ought to get the children here as soon as possible. If you think it best, I could come in to New York and meet you with them and bring them out here, and you could return there for—for anything that was necessary."

"That might be a good idea," Dicky returned, suddenly tractable "Good-by; take care of yourself," and the receiver clicked its signal of dismissal.

"I'll go straight upstairs and tell Mother everything is going as she planned," I said, turning toward the staircase.

"With no mention of the difficulties incurred," she warned with a smile.

"Indeed no," I returned, but when I reached my mother-in-law's room, where Mrs. Ticer sat, ready to answer her slightest summons, she looked up at me with the wan, set little smile which she seemed determined to keep upon her face as a symbol of her determination to keep down her weakness and grief as long as she was needed.

"Richard balked like a Texas steer, didn't he?" she asked, then, to my great relief, saved me from answering by going on.

"I heard you and Mrs. Underwood going for him, and I was just about to get up and go to the extension up here, when I realized you'd brought him to time. He's just like his father, always saying 'no' first and fighting a thing when he meant to say 'yes' all the time. I remember once when Lisa was a little thing, her father—oh, Margaret, Margaret!"

I answered the appeal of her outstretched arms, and held her quivering old body close to mine, while the tears and sobs, which she had held back so long and so bravely, had their way with her.

A FEW LINES ON TELEPATHY AND HUNCHES

A TRADE IN REMINISCENCES OF SCHOOLDAYS

ONE WAY OF OVERCOMING BASHFUL ATTACKS

"Does the Gang believe in telepathy?" asks E. P. Montgomery, an old timer to these columns. He "got a thought" that someone was going to answer his letter, and his hunch proved true. Mumsy, whose memories of her girlhood were awakened by E. P. M.'s letter, wrote, thinking that perhaps through these columns she was meeting an old friend. She didn't meet an "old" friend, but from the tone of the reply she inspired I'm led to believe that she's found a NEW one.

Dear Geraldine:

Seriously, do you or any of the "gang" believe in telepathy?

Frequently of late, something has been telling me that some one was going to make further reference to my last letter, published in your columns some time ago. So persistent was that "little something" that I became convinced, in my own mind, that some one was going to refer to it. I will admit that I would have felt a sense of disappointment had I not seen some kind of a reference in the near future. It may seem to be foolish for a person of my age to do so, but, actually, I have deliberately opened the paper to look for it, pretending to myself, perhaps, that I was not doing so. At the time it came, however, I was interested in following the events in the Republican national convention at Cleveland when the paper accidentally fell open at your columns, with my name in the line of vision. In times past I have had somewhat similar experience, but not so pronounced. Have any of your readers any explanation to offer? Have you? I will be very glad to read anything that may be published. I may say that I am not so self-centered that I think it is at all necessary for any one to refer in any way to what I may write.

I could read "Cynic's" approval of my view on home things with a glow of pleasure and remain quiet. When "Doubtful Straight," who later became entirely "Straight," honored me by placing me in the presidential class, I was so overcome with confusion and so overwhelmed with a severe attack of "Girl Shy-ness" that I thought it best not to answer her direct question. (Kind regards to both of them.)

I had thought some of writing in and calling attention to what appears to me to be a huge joke that seems to be wandering around alone and lonesomelike with no place to go. Girls write to you that they do not care to kiss, and do so because they are afraid if they don't they won't be popular and will be called prudish and "stuck up."

The boys retort by writing that they don't care for kisses and only engage in that favorite sport simply because if they don't the girls will think they are "slow." Simply a case of the pot calling the kettle black. In the meantime, the game goes merrily on. Two of the girls, I believe, have admitted having done a little experimenting only to regret having done so.

It has remained for "Cactus" to call attention to that little disagreement. Certainly she has sense and has given the young people something to think about.

But when "Mumsey" writes it appears that I must be actually dragged forth with a reply or be convicted of an act of discourtesy toward a possible former schoolmate. I prefer to be impaled on the first horn of the dilemma.

If I ever "treed" "Mumsey," literally, she has sweet revenge, for I will admit that right now she has me up a nice, large, high stump, figuratively, and very much puzzled. I have scratched my head until the hair is beginning to become thin on top in an effort to bring to mind the little affair to which she refers and it distresses me to think that such an interesting event could so far escape my mind as apparently to be beyond recall.

I have always considered that, as far as kisses are concerned, I am square with the world. But, if I have one coming that I will never get. I presume I had as well be philosophical about it and charge it up to the loss account with a grin. However, I have had some small gain, for I have enjoyed several "Local Laffs" on account of it, for—must I confess it?—I have read and reread her letter more than a score of times and always with a chuckle, some of which were quite audible. As I analyze it, I am getting far more enjoyment out of the situation as it is now than I would have got out of the kiss then, sweet as it might have been.

Evidently "Mumsey" believes that she recognizes an old schoolmate in my name. That might be classed as strong circumstantial evidence in her favor. Notwithstanding that and at the risk of spoiling a good story, I believe that I am safe in pleading "Not Guilty," and that it is a case of unusual mistaken identity. Another schoolmate once told me that she either knew, or knew of, another E. P. Montgomery who lived in Ohio. My mind is not quite clear on that point. Now, then, if this event to which "Mumsey" refers occurred in that state it certainly opens a way of escape for me, for I neither ever had a home there nor ever attended school there. I did pass through the state almost thirteen years ago and stopped off in Columbus for a day or two while en route.

If that doesn't acquit me I will admit that I probably did my share of the chasing when those games were being played in the "good old days." I recall that the girls wore aprons to school then. I also recall that it was rather provoking the way they could "cover up" whenever it occurred to them to be a little perverse. Ph-e-w! the way a fellow did have to work to collect his due on such occasions! Yet there are other things about her letter that convince me that I am not guilty. If I ever actually chased her up a tree she certainly was something of a sprinter to have had time to shin it to a perch before I arrived on the scene. I wasn't so slow on my feet as all of that. She would have to do it in less than ten seconds flat.

Furthermore, I am reminded of the fact that "Follow the Leader" was another game I sometimes played in those days and that I could climb trees, too. Frankly, I am conceited enough to think that she couldn't successfully "pull off a stunt" like that when I was playing opposite. (That is an opinion of mine and may not be good evidence.) Besides, there was no cherry tree near the school grounds that I have in mind. In fact, there were no trees of any kind that I recall. Again, it appears that I am a few years her senior, which ought to remove the charge beyond the realm of probability.

However it may be, it is quite obvious that those sons of hers have an excellent "Mumsey" and I wish to congratulate them heartily on their grand, good fortune.

E. P. MONTGOMERY.

When I read letters like that, chuckling over the "good old days," I wonder if we've missed something by being born a few years later. Maybe, and then again, maybe not. At any rate, it sounds WONDERFUL!

FOURTH OF JULY.

Once a year at least everybody ought to be allowed to make a joyful noise and feel that he is expressing the occasion properly and in style. Our birthday, the Fourth of July, surely permits all children of this happy land a chance to rejoice aloud. They have something to be vociferous about if ever children had.

Of course that does not mean fire crackers and guns and sudden noises. Sudden noises are never joyful noises either for those who make them or for those who are obliged to hear them. Joyful noises ought to be pleasant noises like singing children and blaring brass bands and hurdy gurdys and church bells and school bells and laughter and happy hullos.

All of those belong by right to the Fourth of July. We and the children should go to church and listen to the preacher tell the story of our country and join in his prayer that we may become closer to the ideals we cherish and practice our standards of good citizenship more faithfully as the days go by. Then we can all stand up, fathers and mothers and children, and sing. No other hymn quite fits the Fourth of July in America as does the "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow."

Then the school bells might ring in the afternoon and the children might tell the story of their country and brighten the recollections of the old folk who love to remember their Fourths with the processions and bands and speeches and flags without end. Of course the little girls will sing and the boys will recite and go through their fancy drill and the old folk will smile and join in with the joyful noise at the close. There is nothing more inspiring than a crowd of fathers and mothers and children standing before the colors and singing the "Star-Spangled Banner" with all their hearts.

Of course there must be a party in the open air and lots of ice cream and cake. Fourth of July without ice cream would be out of the question. The best way to eat it is sitting in a big circle on the grass while the girls pass the dishes, and the boys the compliments. The hurdy gurdy man fits in at the picnic. He stands smiling and grinding away while the boys and girls feed him pennies so they may dance the longer.

When the sun goes down the singing begins and all over the country the singing clubs and musical societies tune up and fill the night with the joyful noise of their melody. Everybody who can play or sing on any instrument or to any instrument from harmonica to violin lends his share to the general store. The day closes as it begins with the children of America making a joyful noise on this the birthday of their country, the land where children come first in the hearts of their countrymen.

The Mother of a Child Going on Three Years Old

Perhaps someone will have an answer to this letter:

Dear Geraldine:

I am one of your constant readers and admire your work very much.

I am not going to cry on your shoulder, but am going to ask for a little assistance, if I may.

I am married and have one child, not quite three years old. About two years ago my husband bought a small business, but owing to competition and location, we are not making good. In fact, we are scarcely making expenses at the present time.

We have tried for one year to sell the place, but as the real estate market is so dull, we have not been able to do so. If any Geraldine reader would like to make the attempt he is welcome to do so.

However, I have an entirely different reason for writing this letter than to seek aid from real estate dealers in the way of making a sale.

I am a stenographer with ten years' experience, two years in an eastern university and special courses in English and English composition. I would like to know if there is anyone among your admirers who would like to have an experienced stenographer to work in the afternoons, my salary to be sixty dollars for four hours per day. I would like to have the privilege of occasionally exchanging an afternoon for a morning, but as a general rule, would prefer working in the afternoon, as it would give me time to do my housework in the morning.

I have had some experience in almost every ordinary line of work, including law, although I am not a regular law stenographer.

Thanking you in advance for publishing this letter, I am,

Yours sincerely,
BERNICE PRINGLES,
General Delivery, Oakland.

The Advantage of Trying to Aid The Other Fellow

The only cure I know for bashfulness is to HELP THE OTHER FELLOW. When you forget about YOURSELF, you cease to be bashful.

Dear Jerry:

My pal and I just got the inspiration to write to you about our greatest trouble, which is being bashful.

Goodness, Jerry, even if we do say it ourselves, we're good looking and can dance good—but we're bashful. What would you do if you were us?

We both agree we'd feel like fools if we acted like some girls at parties, who giggle and scream and who are painted, rouged and plucked until you don't know what they really look like, and they also have a bored, baby expression on their faces and in the eyes of boys are beauties. Why? It is all we ask.

We're both fond of outdoor sports and both believe in having a good time, and why does one have to be painted before the boys will look twice and take them out? No, we're not prudes, but we like boys who are regular fellows and don't plaster their raven locks to their scalps with horribly smelly, gooey stuff and don't use cigarette holders a mile long, and who are mushy, lovesick pups.

Waiting eagerly for your advice. BASHFUL PALS.

I'm strong for the natural boy and girl, but I've found that there are brains under "raven locks gummed up with smelly gooey stuff," and that there is gray matter behind plucked eyebrows.

But wouldn't it be nice to be able to recognize Mary Anne on the street as being the same girl you saw ten minutes after she'd gotten out of bed in the morning?

PERSONAL WORD.

A. H. D.—Angelo Patri's "Our Children" has been substituted for the feature you mention. His talks are splendid. I am going to send your letter to B. E. G. if she will give me her address. As you said, it is more a personal letter than one to print. Thanks.

LORAINE—Will you send me your name and address? I have a letter for you which I am sure will help.

A HOPING MOTHER—I don't know what I can say to you, friend. Children cannot be guarded every minute, regardless of our wishes. They have to stand alone sooner or later. The pity of it is that some fall. Can't you ask the young man to dinner some evening and have the uncle there, too? Perhaps if you tell him that you want his judgment of the guest, that you need his advice, he will rise to the occasion and come home sober. I am sorry that I haven't better advice, but your case seems one of taking advantage of opportunities as they arise and not in any set plan.

B. E. G.—If you will send me your name and address I will forward a word of cheer to you.

Geraldine

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

By Mildred Marshall

ALFREDA

Alfreda belongs rightfully to fairyland. She originated in the delightful legends of the elf world, her most distinguished ancestor being the elf king Elberich, whose counterpart Shakespeare marries to the Greek Titania in "Midsummer Night's Dream." Alfreda means "elf council."

The first appearance of the name in England was in its masculine form; the most honored of all the English sovereigns wrote himself upon his jewel "Aelfred," which signified "elf in council" or supernatural being.

Though Alfreda may be properly regarded as the feminine of this name there are numerous other forms of this same elf title from which she may be taken. Aelfgifu was one of the most famous, having been bestowed upon the lady known to us as Elgiva, whose beauty was a fatal gift which brought ruin to her and her husband.

The opal is Alfreda's talismanic gem. Perhaps it is her heritage from elf-land which renders powerless the machinations of the fairy spirit which superstition claims is imprisoned therein. Worn by her, the gem is said to guard her from evil and disease. Friday is her lucky day and 6 her lucky number.

Uncle Wiggily

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND BUNTY'S BURNS.

"I suppose I might as well hop to the woods and look for an adventure," said Uncle Wiggily on Fourth of July, when he had skipped three times around his bungalow. "It will be a bit cooler there, I hope. But, anyhow, I can take some lemonade, ice cream and a bottle of ice water with me. That will help some. It is too hot to stay here."

So he packed some cracked ice in a pail, and in the ice he put a cup filled with ice cream, a bottle of water and a little pitcher of lemonade.

"Well, I must sit down and cool off a bit. I can't hop another hop!" said Uncle Wiggily to himself after he had gone a little way through the woods. He reached a shady place near a spring of water, that bubbled up amid the green mossy rocks.

"I'll paddle my feet in the spring and eat some ice cream," said the bunny. "Oh, how wonderful this is!" he murmured a little later as he daintily ate the frozen cream and sipped the cooling lemonade which he took from his icy pail.

The rabbit gentleman was eating the last of the cream and he was saying: "How fine I feel now!" when he heard a sad little voice saying:

"How unhappy we are! Such trouble as we are in!"

"Dear me! This is too bad!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily, looking around. "It is no fun to be happy when some one else is sad. Who are you and what is the trouble?" he asked, for he saw no one.

"We are two butterflies," was the answer, "and we are caught fast in an old cobweb, so that we can no longer fly in the bright sunshine and sip honey from the flowers."

"That certainly is too bad!" exclaimed the rabbit gentleman. "Can you flutter your wings a bit now, so I may see where you are caught in the cobweb? Then I'll help you get loose."

"Look this way," cried the second of the sad voices. Uncle Wiggily saw a flash of red and gold amid the leaves of a bush, and, hopping over there, he beheld the two butterflies, caught in an old cobweb, the spider having moved to a new apartment.

The cobweb was very easy for Uncle Wiggily to break, though it was too strong for the butterflies, and the rabbit gentleman soon set free the two beautiful insects, with their wings of red and gold.

"Thank you," gently murmured one. "Thank you, Uncle Wiggily. Now we must fly away to get sweet honey from the flowers." The other fluttered its wings and said: "Yes, we are very hungry."

"Would you like a little sweet, melted ice cream juice?" asked the bunny. "I have some left in my dish."

The butterflies were very glad to sip a little of the melted ice cream, which was sweet, like honey, and then they took a drink of ice water.

"My, it is getting hotter and hotter, and I have nothing left with which to keep cool!" said Uncle Wiggily, as the sun rose higher in the sky.

"We will cool you, Uncle Wiggily," murmured the butterflies. They perched on each of his shoulders, the butterflies did, and moved their large wings like fans, making a breeze and cooling the rabbit. Uncle Wiggily walked through the woods with the fanning butterflies on each shoulder.

"Oh, now I am fine and cool!" he cried.

"I wish I was!" suddenly spoke a sad voice. "I burned myself playing at a bonfire, and, oh, how hot my burn is! Oh, dear!"

Uncle Wiggily saw Baby Bunty, the little rabbit girl, blowing on her burned paw, which she had held too near a Fourth of July bonfire.

"Bunty, you should never play with fire!" he told her. And when she promised she never would again the two butterflies perched themselves on Bunty's burned paw and fanned it gently, making a cool breeze, which took the stinging pain from the burn. Soon Bunty went to sleep and when she awakened her pain was all gone.

So the butterflies cooled the rabbit gentleman and the little bunny girl, which teaches us that even beautiful things may be of some use in this world. And if the wheelbarrow doesn't try to race with the automobile and get all out of breath so it can't sing at the rag doll's party, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the rocking horse.

FRANK PHILIPPI.
THE MOUNTAIN LION.

Once upon a time there were three Boy Scouts going hunting. While they were going up a hill they saw a sign that said $100 reward was given for the capture of the mountain lion that killed so many sheep and cattle. One day as they were going around the mountain trail they saw the mountain lion. One of the boys had his rifle with him. The boy shot the lion and they brought him to the next town. They gave it to the mayor of the town and they got the reward.

THE BORROWED BABY.
Prize Winner.

Once there were four girls. Their father built them a playhouse. It had four rooms in it. They each had a room. Their names were Dorothy, Marie, Rose and May.

They each borrowed a baby to play with. May couldn't borrow a baby.

One day when she went for a walk she passed by an old house.

There was a woman and a man talking in front. A baby was playing near them. They looked like they were Indians. May asked if she could borrow the baby for the day.

The woman said she could. May said she would bring her back at 6 o'clock.

May played with her all day, and after she had taken her home she found the woman was gone. She had to take it home. She kept it in the playhouse for a week by taking a small amount of the milk. It was discovered where the baby was and a kind lady adopted Julia (as that was her name.)

The next summer as May was going to the store she saw the mother of Julia.

The woman said that her husband was a bandit and had coaxed her to give her baby to May.

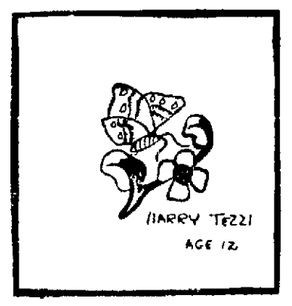

The baby was given back to her and an old lady gave her a place as a maid in her house.

THE KIDNAPING OF JOE WELCH.
Prize Winner.

It was very early one Saturday morning when Joe Welch was roaming in the garden when an idea came to him for his friends and himself. He ran up to John Miller's house and told him something. John ran into the house and asked his mother something. She said "yes," and he ran to Jack Brown's house with Joe. They kept on doing this until there were five boys. Their names were as follows: Joe Welch, John Miller, Jack Brown, Howard Hansen and Billy Abbott.

This is what the secret was: that they should go on a two weeks' camping trip to Joe's uncle out in the cabin in Hanibal forest and they could all go.

Everything was ready the next day and they started for the cabin. After tramping two days and camping two nights they reached the cabin. Inside the cabin was a cupboard, a long table, chairs and two beds without a mattress, so there they slept for the night.

The next day they decided to explore. The first day they found some snake holes, birds' nests and other things. The next day they found a cave entrance. They descended about six feet and landed on a door. They took their hiking hatchets and pounded the door until it was broken. They went in and found piles of gold, so they hurried to town and told the police about it. The policemen came to next day with the boys and found the cave. The boys went home and got $500.00 reward but they were not through with their camping yet, so went back and heard a gun go off. Then all was quiet; then another shot and Joe was wounded. The other boys ran home to get the police again and put Joe to bed. Meanwhile Joe was kidnaped by a band of fierce robbers and taken away to the same den that the boys had discovered, only they had put a new entrance to it.

In about a week he was found and taken home by the other boys who had come down the old stairway and got him when the bandits were gone. His mother was so happy that she put on a great party and thus the Welch family lived in harmony after that.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE.

CHAPTER 1.
"STARTING.

It was a day in June and a very hot day at that. Jane asked her mother if she could go to explore the haunted house. Her mother said "Yes, dear, you may." Jane took a gun and some food. For the trip was a long ways.

CHAPTER 2.
JOHN AND JANE.

Jane started early the next morning because she was to meet John. So the two pals walked hand in hand. It was almost dusk when they reached the main street. John put up the tent while Jane made a fire and started supper.

CHAPTER 3.
THE HOUSE.

The two started early the next morning and arrived at the house at 8 in the morning. John led the way and Jane followed. The room they entered first had fifty chairs and a big table in the center. It was about seven feet wide and about 20 feet long. They went down stairs and you can't guess what they saw. Robbers!

CHAPTER 4.
ROBBERS.

John knew the robbers for he was one of them but Jane did not know this. She saw only forty-nine men seated and one chair vacant. They were clothed in red and white. "Hello, Pete," said John. "Hello, John," said Pete. "Come to explore the house, I suppose?"

"Yes, that's just it," said Jane.

So John led the way to their den and then he shut Jane in. She began to scream but John would pay no attention to her. At last she found a button which was indeed very hard to find. She found herself outside. There were many police there. She told the police how to get in.

CHAPTER 5.
THE FIGHT.

John was one of the first to get killed. Jane had killed him and many others; only two police were hurt and Jane cared for them. The police won and gave Jane $50,000 and a real prince to marry. She had the haunted house torn down and found many prisoners and let them free. She and her mother and husband lived happy ever after.

The haunted house story is now solved.

THE STORY OF A POOR GIRL.
Prize Winner.

Once upon a time there was a poor girl and her mother. Her name was Catherine Brown. Her father was supposed to be dead. She had blue eyes, long brown curls and was very kind. Catherine was ten year old. Her mother worked hard to support them. One day she asked her mother if she could go to the woods to pick berries. Her mother said yes, so she started out. When she got there she saw a clump of berries. She began picking them. To her surprise she found a cave hidden in the bushes. She went inside. She found a door at the other end of the cave. She peeked through the keyhole and saw some men playing cards. She heard some one talking to himself in another room. She opened the door and walked in and there she saw a man lying on a couch. He looked up in surprise and then said: "What is your name?" Catherine said, "My name is Catherine Brown." The next minute she found herself in his arms and he said: "I am Mr. Brown. You are my daughter." Then Catherine said, "I thought you were dead." Then Mr. Brown said, "Robbers stole me years ago when you were a baby." "Let's go home," said Catherine. So they started home and when they got home and Mrs. Brown saw her husband she was delighted. Mr. Brown called the police. They sent a detective out; he got the robbers and when she grew up Catherine married him. And they lived happy ever after.

THE POLICEMAN CLOWN.

"Oh, see the policeman clown," cried the boys and girls at the Color Cut outs' neighborhood circus. "Isn't he the funniest thing!"

Little Tommy Tumbler, who was almost as wide as he was long, had on an old blue suit with a lot of bright buttons on it, and a tin policeman's star. He wore a Hallowe'en false face which was very funny, and the crown of an old derby hat his uncle had given him was fixed up like a policeman's helmet.

He went running around the ring doing handsprings, while all the boys and girls clapped.

How to Write 'Local Lafs'

By the Local Laf Editor

There's a trace of "calumny by insinuation" in the following, despite the fact that it is obviously a play on the stock expression "give credit," in which double meaning plays a part.

Jane: I give him credit for getting her a nice ring.

Joe: I understand the jeweler did, too.

The hostess who said to a bore-some, talkative young man, "You are wound up tonight, Mr. Blink—and yet you do not seem to go," gave a perfect example of the use of slang in humor.

Mr. Blink was talkative. To use a slang expression, he was "wound up." The idea would occur to anyone. Mr. Blink was wound up. He kept ticking along without paying the slightest heed to the opinions of others. His tongue wagged, but his hands stood still. The only difference between Mr. Blink and the clock was that Blink didn't strike the hour. The hostess, however, saw it from her angle. She wanted him to go. So she said that he was wound up but wouldn't go.

"Each hour I spend with you is like a pearl to me." That is trite, because it has been used so much. When a young man says it to a girl, instantly her sense of the ridiculous is stirred. She thinks of casting pearls before swine, but this is rather stupid. She may ask "But what's time to a pearl?" which falls rather flat. Or she might say: "Perhaps that's why you remind me of an oyster."

A better joke is evolved, however, if she says:

According to Dorothy Dix

A fond and foolish father was showing me his beautiful little daughter.

"She shall always do exactly as she pleases. I never intend her to be controlled or made to obey or coerced into doing the things she doesn't wish to do," he said.

"Ah," I replied, "so you are going to let life discipline her. It is a cruel thing to do."

"What do you mean?" he asked.

"When life disciplines us, it does it with an iron rod, and it leaves us crushed and broken on the scrap pile," I answered. "In the end bitter experience teaches us the lessons that we should have learned at our parents' knees, but our hard-won knowledge comes too late to do us any good. We can't go back and retrieve our lost opportunities or find again the happiness that we have thrown away.

Surely," I went on, "you are not fatuous enough to believe that the world is going to be especially satin-padded for your child's feet or that she is going to escape the common human lot. You know that she is bound to have sickness, and sorrow, and anxiety, and disappointment.

"You know that she is bound to meet obstacles that she cannot overcome, that she will encounter wills stronger than her own; that she will find those who will ride roughshod over her tenderest feelings, and care no more for breaking her heart than they would a penny bit of glass; that many a time she will have to submit to sheer brute tyranny; that the hour will come when her very salvation will depend upon her ability to stand up and take punishment How is she to do this if you have not taught her self-control; if you have not taught her obedience to authority, if you have not taught her to do the right thing irrespective of her feelings, just because it is her duty?

"It is not the raw, untrained troops that win battles, my friend. It is the seasoned, disciplined soldiers who wrest victory out of defeat It is not the selfish men and women, the spoils of their own desires and passions, who make a success of life. It is the men and women who are the captains of their souls who are masters of their fate.

"But the point that I am trying to make to you is that we cannot escape discipline We can't have our own way all the time. We can't make our own rules We can't do as we please We have got to learn that sooner or later. Our parents must teach it to us gently while we are in the cradle or else life teaches it to us with a bludgeon after we are grown up

"You can begin ith as simple a thing as the matter of health. If you won't teach your child to deny herself anything that appeals to her the moment, life will. It will give her dyspepsia if she eats too much. It will turn her into a neurotic, nerve-wrecked woman if she does not control her temper. It may even kill her if, for the sake of vanity, she goes out in thin satin slippers and gossamer stockings in sleet and snow.

"In a short while your little girl will be a big girl, going to school with other girls, and her happiness will depend upon her popularity If she has been encouraged in selfishness, and the belief that her will was law; if she takes the best of things for herself, and is disregardful of the feelings of others, she will be ostracised. She will have no friends. She will be left out of all the good times. That is the way that life will teach her unselfishness, and that we have to give and take in the world.

"Your girl will marry. Can you wish any greater curse on a man than a wife who has never learned to control herself? Can you imagine any woman making a success of marriage who does not bring unselfishness, and forbearance, and patience, and a high sense of duty to the task?

"Even the happiest of marriages are disillusioning Even the best of men are hard to get along with, and if you have not taught your girl to carry on in the face of difficulties, if you have not taught her how to give in gracefully, and to put an iron curb on her tongue and temper, her marriage is dead sure to go on the rocks and end in the divorce court.

"Life will teach her patience and forbearance, but it will be at the price of misery and tears, and a wrecked home, and little half-orphaned children.

"Suppose your daughter goes into business There is no place in it for women who have not been taught to control themselves, who weep when their work is criticized, who cannot get along with their fellow employes and who lose interest in their work as soon as it becomes the daily grind.

"Business disciplines these girls by throwing them out of their jobs or by keeping them at the lowest rung of the ladder. The women who succeed are those who fit themselves into the office routine, who give the unquestioning obedience of soldiers, and who have the grit to put all that is in them into their tasks until they win out by sheer merit.

"No, my friend," I said in conclusion, "we cannot protect our children from life We can only prepare them for life, and we best do this when we teach them self-control and obedience, and to do the hard things without whining For if we don't, life does, and life shows them no mercy."

SUSANNE ON HER OWN

By J. A. WALDRON

Little Susan Smith as a child envied the Rosamonds, the Gwendolyns and the Vivians with whom she played, for their names. She thought her own commonplace. Yet she was the prettiest and most charming girl in any company.

Susan's parents passed when she was very young. They were old-fashioned, with a qualification as to her father. He was modern enough to become many times a millionaire, and yet all his domestic reactions were homely. He had two spinster sisters—of course also Smiths—for whom he had provided generously, and whose thrift promised increase although they lived in fashionable circumstances. Susan was left to the care of these spinsters, Jane and Mary. Simple names, like simple habits, ran in the family.

At the right age Susan was sent to a woman's college whose conservatism appealed to her aunts; and a finishing school—given as all such schools are to the superficial niceties and genuflexions of social life—followed.

Full of the spirit that no conservatism can wholly conquer, Susan enforced new ideals of youthful independence in the college and justified individual initiative of a reasonable sort with a logic, backed by charm that almost disarmed criticism. To one with less witchery the dean would have been an ogre.

As boys do, girls pick chums instinctively. Susan's chum in college was Adelaide, whose lesser attractions and a tendency to obey contrasted with Susan's differing attributes. Adelaide was a restraining influence. Susan and Adelaide came together almost at once, and Adelaide quickly gave her some idea of the restrictions in vogue.

"We are rigidly chaperoned in all circumstances," said Adelaide. "My papa came to see me and I wanted to show him through the science labs. We had to have a matronly escort. Wasn't it funny?"

"Absurd!" was Susan's comment. "And one can go away or spend a night at home but once a month, and then only upon urgency."

"Why, it's like a prison!"

"Are you very religious, dear?"

"Why, I go to church, as well-meaning persons do."

"Well, you will have a lot of that. We have to go to chapel every night and for a long Sunday service."

"That makes it hardly necessary to say, 'Now I lay me down to sleep' later!"

"And you can't cut a class unless you are seriously ill. And no motors or other conveyances are permitted on the campus on Sunday. And if a boy friend wants to see you he is hopelessly entangled in red tape. And there are no man dances until junior year, and only one then, and one senior year. And the boys have to begin at 3 o'clock p. m. in order that the dance may be finished at midnight."

"How in the world can we stand it?"

But Susan, tempered by Adelaide's timidity and obedience, managed to stand it. Once or twice she barely escaped discipline, And she was graduated with honors, for she had brains as well as great charm. And although she filled her term at the finishing school without disaster, she had narrow escapes there The austere head of that institution placed a kiss of genuine warmth on the parting guest, but was delighted to be rid of the ardent and vivacious girl whose originality had more than once threatened the peace of the dovecote.

Susan's aunts were shocked by the first letter from her in the finishing school. It was signed "Susanne" And all subsequent letters from her bore that signature. The spinsters offered no comment on this revolutionary selection of a new name until Susan came home After welcoming and responsive endearments Jane asked:

"Why do you call yourself 'Susanne,' dear?"

"Yes," added Mary, "your name is Susan."

"I never liked the name. So I just changed it."

"But you were christened 'Susan,'" came in one breath from the aunts.

"I know. And I was born 'Smith.' I hope you don't think it impossible for me to change that name!"

And Susanne it was thereafter.

As fitted her social station, Susanne had a generous allowance, And her impulses fitted her allowance. She went here and there alone, to the dismay of Jane and Mary, who were extremely old-fashioned at a period when independence was exercised by the sex. Susan illustrated the new spirit of youth as the great war has inspired it everywhere, yet no act of hers upon analysis could be cited against a sterling character superficially influenced by new habit and a strong individuality that felt itself proof against injurious sophistication

The aunts admonished and argued. And still loving them, as they loved her, Susanne, to be free of controversy, and being of age, packed up and went to a hotel at a famous resort on the opening of its season. She had been there annually since a child.

The aunts owned a villa at the resort, and there they removed earlier than usual, knowing Susanne's whereabouts and wishing to keep near her. They were greatly disturbed fearing gossip. To them gossip introduced social fatality. Yet with all her "wildness" as the aunts called it, they had a certain faith in Susanne's character. What but ultimate stability could come from generations of their family?

"If she would only marry!" exclaimed Jane.

"Yes," was Mary's response, "if she would only marry—well!"

Susanne continued on her own, serenely self-confident. Many young men sought her, but none awakened even a passing interest. She found most of them silly, although she tolerated them, one after another, as dancing partners. She was an omnivorous reader, her books being on topics of substance, with now and then a novel. Dancing with occasional tennis, served her as exercise.

At the Casino there was that relaxation from former social exactitudes in evidence everywhere One evening Susanne's imagination was caught by the appearance and the dancing of a distinguished looking stranger. There was something attractively exotic about him. All women seemed anxious to dance with him. The younger chaps about —"boys" Susanne called them— were impossible by comparison.

This stranger never appeared until late in the evening. Without introduction, or any knowledge of him, Susanne, in common with others, accepted him as a partner. And every evening after their first contact Sucanne awaited his coming Conversation was a bit embarrassed by their mutual ignorance of names.

"What may I call you?" Susanne asked one evening. "Your name, please!"

"You may call me Theodore."

"But—I mean your other name!" She blushed

"That is a secret for the present And I don't know your name, Miss!"

It is very ordinary. Smith."

"Ah! There are many Smiths, but you are not commonplace!" He beamed approval. "But I told you my first name."

"Mine is also commonplace. Susan. I call myself Susanne."

"I like that!"

Theodore continued the gentleman. His wide knowledge, his gifts as a conversationalist, and his respectful attitude fascinated her. Suddenly Susanne realized that she was on dangerous ground. All at once she felt a poignant homesickness and a desire to see her aunts. She now remembered their admonitions with no antagonism.

In this mood she received a letter from Jane and Mary asking her to dinner at the villa. They might have telephoned her, but they were given to formality. The letter was affectionate. Susanne at once called Jane on the phone

"I'm coming to have dinner with you and Aunt Mary this evening, and I thank you both. I wonder if I could really come home again? I'm tired of this hotel!"

"That's fine!" replied Jane. Come."

So Susanne hurriedly packed her things and went to the villa. She was greeted with open arms. She went in to dinner with her aunts.

"We left John and Sarah in the town house," said Jane. "We have a new chef and a new butler here. They are Russians, and the chef is a wonder. You shall see. This dinner will be a treat after your hotel fare."

"And we think both of the new servants are aristocrats," said Mary.

"Yes," said Jane. "You know there are even princes and princesses in service here now."

The butler came in with the hors d'oeuvres He was Theodore, the fascinating stranger at the Casino.

Incompatibility

Their honeymoon had ended. They were still fond of each other, of course. But not too fond.

The wisdom of the ages has had something to do in naming matrimony's early period the honeymoon. The moon changes, and honey cloys.

In this case there was a revival of individuality, habit and the ego. Hugh Thornbray was a figure in contemporary life, and he knew it. Vocationally he was a story writer, developed from that nursery of literature, journalism. He wrote for a public that knew him, and not for posterity. The writer for posterity gets no royalties.

Thornbray's avocations had been ranching, broncho-busting, globe-trotting, war chronicling, and generally pushing his way into the limelight. At half a dozen clubs in town he was the arbiter, referee, or appellate judge on all questions related to the fields of his activity.

Thornbray has been a hero to the fair of more than one region, but he described the lover better than he acted the part. Enthusiasm does much for a man in this field, and infatuation does more. Thornbray fell in love with Miss Lulu Dingle, a comedienne with a vogue. She had always said she would live alone for her art, but he laid such a siege that she capitulated, as she was a little proud of her conquest. And they were married.

As the honeymoon waned, Hugh began again to write. He had said he was at work on his masterpiece, and that their happiness would color the tale. When he read Lulu the first few chapters she thought it was "lovely."

One evening after dinner Lulu seemed a bit out of sorts. She assumed a negligent—yet a habitually graceful—attitude on a sofa, as if undecided whether to sit or stand as Hugh approached from the other side.

"Were you going out?" she asked.

"Why, dear," he replied, "as you seemed a bit ennuye, I thought I would run over to the Mummers' for an hour and then come back and write a little. Or would you like me to read to you the sixth chapter of the story?"

"I don't think the fifth chapter is very interesting."

Hugh looked at Lulu in bewilderment and took a long breath.

"Oh! Ah! my dear, what is the matter with it?"

"It's like so many stories. Too full of impossible love-making.

"What about the heroine?"

"Am I supposed to be the original?"

"Well—ah—you know, my dear, I have had you in mind."

"Oh, she's all right, I suppose. But do you know, Hugh, really I can find more pleasing things about me in my book of press notices?"

"So?" said Hugh with a sigh. "No doubt" The atmosphere became a little chilly. "You've no objection to my going to the Mummers' for a while?"

And, so, after a little, they were divorced.

MY FAVORITE STORIES by IRVIN S COBB

Probably the Old Place had Changed.

The beauty of this story is that you may hang it upon any restaurant against which you happen to have a grudge.

"Wrong," says the customer; "certainly not."

"I thought you were saying something, sir?"

"I wish, I've just been talking to this fish."

"Very good, sir—ha—ha— talking to the fish," chortles the waiter in a mirthless affection of mirth. The point is not clear to him but a proper consideration for the vagaries of patrons requires that he shall pretend that it is. Still chuckling emptily,, he turns away.

"Hold on, there," says the customer "Did you ever hear a fish talk? You didn't? Well, probably you wouldn't understand it so I'll translate the conversation I just had. When the fish came on I said:

"'How do you do?'

"'I'm not feeling so good,' said the fish.

"'You don't look so good,'" said I. 'How are things down in the river?'

"'I don't know,'" replied the fish. 'I've been here six weeks.'"

A certain beautiful movie queen, famed for her matrimonial ventures, one day approached her physician and asked for a thorough physical examination. "I want to see that I'm fit for a good many years, yet," she explained, "for you know I'm to be married soon, for the fifth time."

"Hm," muttered the doctor as he put the stethescope over the lady's heart "Of course this fifth one is the only man you've ever really loved? This is positively your last matrimonial venture?"

"Oh come, doctor," cried the star, "I'm not as bad off as that, am I?" —Los Angeles Times.

NOTES SHOW LOVE LOSS IN TAXI SUICIDE

"Daisy" Pursued Across Continent by Chicago University Student. Told of by Friends of Dead Boy

SAN FRANCISCO, July 4.—A girl named "Daisy" was believed by the police today to have been the innocent cause of the suicide of "H. Paul Marston of Nowhere," identified after being found dead in a taxicab yesterday, as Herbert P. Wilkins, university student and son of a wealthy Chicago business man.

According to the police, Wilkins, while a student at the University of Chicago, met a girl from New Orleans and fell in love with her. He abandoned his studies and followed her west, registering at the University of Nevada. Another move on the part of the girl, and Wilkins followed her to San Francisco, making his plans to enter one of the California universities.

Wilkins, according to the police, frequently threatened to kill the girl and himself if she did not marry him. The girl feared to dismiss his attentions lest he would carry out his threats of violence.

Finally Wilkins discovered, apparently, that his love affair was hopeless, and took his own life by poison in a local taxicab yesterday, after having made every effort to hide his identity.

In spite of his attempt to hide his true name and family connections, the youth was discovered today to be the son of Henry Wilkins, of the Wilkins-Anderson Co., 217-223 North Desplaines street, Chicago. His home was at 1325 North Fairfield avenue, Chicago. He was 24 years old, and was engaged in the study of chemistry.

The nature of the tragedy was hinted at in two scraps of writing which he left behind him, and was later confirmed by persons who had been acquainted with him.

In his apartment at 1415 Leavenworth street, the police found a rough draft of a telegram reading as follows:

"I know that your greatest desire is to see your Daisy happy. I love her and believe she loves me. Won't you let me bring her back to you in New Orleans? I can give her the home she desires so much. Please write me soon at 1415 Leavenworth street."

The police believe this was an appeal to a parent or guardian of the girl, based on Wilkins' belief, which the young woman had not yet destroyed, that she was in love with him.

The other note was addressed to the world in general, and was found beside his dead body in the taxicab. It read:

"I am H. Paul Marston of Nowhere. I ask that my body be cremated. She never loved me truly. Love is for evermore."

Wilkins had cut all the marks of identification out of his clothing. He was identified at the morgue by his former landlady, Mrs. M. C. Benson, 1415 Leavenworth street.

Through Mrs. Benson another woman was discovered who was acquainted with Wilkins, and familiar with much of the history of his love affair. She was Mrs. B. M. Jones of 1207 Bush street.

She had met Wilkins several weeks ago while she was selling tickets for a charity ball, she said, and when they met again at the dance Wilkins introduced to her the girl who accompanied him. Mrs. Jones said she could not remember the girl's name, but described her as an attractive brunette, small and slender.

"Wilkins seemed to be insane on two subjects—chemistry and that girl," said Mrs. Jones. "He told me he had followed her here from Chicago, and that if she didn't marry him he was going to kill both her and himself. Later I warned the girl of what he had said, and she told me he had frequently threatened to kill her. She said that although she didn't want to marry him, she was afraid to break off their association for fear he would kill himself."

Wilkins was recently under the care of a local physician, and told Mrs. Benson that he had narrowly escaped a nervous breakdown.

Fourth in San Jose Is Quiet as Church

SAN JOSE, July 4. — The birth of American independence was observed here quietly today, there being no special celebration and the glorious Fourth passing without the usual din of firecrackers and torpedoes, which were under police and fire department ban.

San Jose's police department started observing the holiday last night with their sixth annual Widows & Orphans' association benefit ball, which lasted until the wee small hours of the Fourth.

Many stores and all public offices and institutions remained closed all day. Large numbers of San Joseans seized the holiday opportunity to enjoy a day in the mountains or at the seashore and early morning today saw a great exodus of motor car parties leaving the city on the numerous highways.

THINGS ARE LOOKING UP AROUND LAKE MERRITT

Shot to Silence Radio Barely Misses Operator

BERKELEY, July 4.—Music had no charms for O. K. Patterson, 2710 Hillegass avenue, last night, when he is alleged to have fired a bullet through the attic window of the home occupied by C. W. Moore, J. W. More and F. W. Nelson, 2710 Hillegass avenue, in an attempt to silence a radio concert. The bullet narrowly missed C. W. More who was seated before the instrument. It pierced the set, passing out to lodge in a beam. Nelson and the elder More were also in the room but outside the range of the shot.

An investigation by the police led across the street to the Patterson residence where a Winchester rifle of the same caliber as the bullet taken from the rafters is said to have been found. Patterson had formerly made complaint to the police that the radio disturbed him. No arrests have been made. A careful watch will be kept on the neighborhood until Monday according to authorities.

J. W. More, his son, C. W. More, and his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Nelson, reside at the Hillegass address.

HUSBAND BLAMED FOR TWO DEATHS

LONG BEACH, July 4.—Henry D. Meyer, millionaire, Pasadena merchant and Mrs. Theresa Dorris met their deaths by gun shot wounds probably inflicted by Charles E. Dorris, husband of the dead woman, according to a coroner's jury verdict returned here, in which it was recommended that a further investigation be made by the district attorney's office into the double slaying here Tuesday morning.

The inquest was marked with testimony in which Dorris, in whose apartment the man and woman were killed, was directly and indirectly accused of murder.

Most of the state's witnesses were introduced in an effort to disprove Dorris' story to police that Meyers first killed Mrs. Dorris and then took his own life as the result of a business quarrel.

Section Foreman Is Killed by Engine

CONCORD, July 4.— Joseph Morenini, 60, section foreman, employed by the Southern Pacific lines here, was instantly killed when he was run over by a switch engine last night. The body was badly mutilated.

Morenini was supervising the placing of a number of ties across a spur track onto which cars were being switched. Interested in his work and confused by the movement of the locomotive he mistakenly stepped from one track onto the other directly in front of the engine.

Morenini is survived by a widow and two sons, all of whom live here.

BIBLE PLAYS IN HEBREW AT CENTER

Talmud Class Is Planning to Present Stories of the Holy Land in English as Well as Hebraic Language

Two plays of the Holy Land, one in Hebrew and the other in English, will be produced at the Jewish Community Center, Fourteenth and Brush streets, Monday night, under the direction of M. Tolchinsky, principal of the Talmud Torah, it is announced by the committee in charge

The Hebrew play is entitled, "In the Days When the Temple Stood." This play, combined with music, singing, dancing and pageantry, will picture the occasions when the ancient Judeans used to undertake their pilgrimage to Jerusalem. The scene in which these pilgrims bring their offerings to the temple will be magnificent in its atmosphere and a faithful picture of Biblical times.

The other play, which is to be presented in English, is entitled "Ruth the Gleaner" and depicts what has been termed the greatest short story literature ever produced. This play, which is said to have high dramatic value, will be accompanied by folk songs in Hebrew and Yiddish.

Some of the members of the school who will participate in these plays are I. Plotkin, H. Goldberg, M. Goodman, E. Neskin, McD. Melnitzky, R. Stern, I. Stagoa, C. Sanalnitz, I. C. Chiffman, C. Molen, S. Brown, H. Abrahams, M. Luzer, B. Silver, F. Berger, K. Sneider, D. Berdmansky, A. Rochlin, A. Smith, M. Friedkin, B. Kalz, R. Popen.

ARTICHOKE MEN FORM SALE POOL

SANTA CRUZ, July 4.—Artichoke growers of the Santa Cruz are considering the creation of a new selling pool with headquarters in Santa Cruz, it was learned yesterday when a forecast of next year's crop possibilities was issued by one of the leading men in the industry. The plan is to incorporate the growers of the Davenport-Santa Cruz and Soquel-Aptos-Castroville areas in an organization not identical with the Half Moon Bay Association, but operating under the same co-operative policies. It is urged by exponents of the plan that the industry has developed to such an extent that a single organization with offices in San Francisco does not fully represent the planters of the area abovementioned. Crop forecasts place the actual production for the 1925 crop at a much smaller figure than was reached last year, although a far greater acreage is planted, the failure of water supply for irrigation being named as the cause of the slump.

WARSHIP IN PORT.

After lying off shore in the midst of a dense bank of fog from 10 a. m. Tuesday until 1 p. m. Wednesday, the Idaho, Captain W. S. Crawsley and Commander A. B. These officers are the first to be appointed outside of the city of Santa Cruz in a plan which the society has adopted to cover the entire county with officers who will make cruelty to children and animals impossible.

REALTOR BALKS.

What has the ear-marks of a war between real estate dealers in Santa Cruz opened this week when the members of the Santa Cruz Realty Board announced the adoption of the multiple listing sales plan, by which all members of the board have an opportunity to sell any piece of property listed with its membership. Charles H. West has issued a statement that although a member of the board he will have nothing to do with the plan and the board has begun action to force West to adopt the plan or leave its membership.

FOURTH PROGRAM.

The official program of Fourth of July events in Santa Cruz is as follows: Patriotic exercises and the street parade will occupy all the morning from nine o'clock until noon. Fifteen sporting events will take place between 1 o'clock and 3 o'clock in the afternoon, at which time a band concert will take place. Fireworks in the evening will begin at 8 o'clock and at the same hour another band concert will be given. There will be dancing at the Casino and a number of other pavilions. Chaplain Hall of the U. S. S. Idaho will have part in the exercises of the morning at the New Santa Cruz theater.

Loeb Is Visited in Jail by Brother

Divorce Parts Berkeley Wife From Rich Man

Anton Nelson, wealthy Canadian rancher, is today in possession of a divorce decree from Mrs. Mae Nelson, who is alleged to have constituted herself the "queen bee" of his ranch after their marriage, which followed a meeting in a Berkeley real estate office. Nelson was granted an interlocutory decree by Judge James G. Quinn, but he reserved decision upon a settlement of property rights valued at over $40,000, including a home at 1937½ Haste street, Berkeley, owned by Mrs. Nelson previous to the marriage.

The decree was granted after Judge Quinn had sustained a demurrer to charges that Mrs. Nelson had induced the real estate broker to introduce her and made the remark, "Watch me relieve him of some of his money."

Letters written by Mrs. Nelson to Mrs. Mayme Reid and Oliver Nelson, children of Nelson, in which she took them to task for alleged efforts to get money from their father, were introduced into evidence. In one letter she wrote:

"Daddy told all the church folks about the divorce. I showed them the complaint and they know he is to blame, but he goes to church and prayer meetings and prays as though nothing had happened."

In another letter to John Reid, she wrote:

"You are all aware that Mayme seems to have a hypnotic power over Daddy. Any time she wants money all she has to do is to write Daddy and stage a fit and Daddy gets it for her. I've seen how Mayme sheds crocodile tears, howls like a wild coyote, pulls her hair and puts her fingers under her throat to make her tongue stick out."

RATS START FIRE AND 2 CHILDREN DIE IN FLAMES

LODI, July 4.—Rats are blamed for the fatal fire in the C. Takaki home, east of this city, in which the two little children of the Takakis were burned to death. The parents were at work in the field when the fire was discovered by a nearby resident, who was prevented by the flames from entering the building. There were no electric wires about the house, nor had a fire been lighted that morning, the parents state.

Deaf Association Opposes Auto Ban

LOS ANGELES, July 4.—Opposition to proposed laws taking the privilege of driving automobiles away from deaf persons was expressed here yesterday at the opening session of a three-day session of the California Association of Deaf.

It was argued that a deaf person has such keen eyesight and has become so careful because of his affliction that he rarely figures in an accident.

10 Nurses Suspended Over Hair Bobbing

NURSE FACES CROSS FIRE IN CONTEST

Gail Watkins Retains Her Composure When She Is Questioned Concerning Relations With Thompson

The will contest in which Miss Gail Watkins, age 27, a nurse, is pitted against Mrs. Agnes Boyd Thompson, age 83, mother of the late Dr. J. Goodwin Thompson, for possession of the greater part of the physician's $83,000 estate, will be resumed with Miss Watkins upon the witness stand Monday morning.

Called as an adverse witness by Attorneys Philip Carey and T. Law Freitas, counsel for the aged mother, Miss Watkins retained her composure yesterday before a well-filled courtroom while Carey bombarded her with questions and attempted to show discrepancies between her answers and statements made several weeks ago in a deposition.

The examination provoked several clashes between Carey and Commissioner Albert E. Carter and Arthur Joel, counsel for Miss Watkins, the latter charging Carey with attempts to "trap" the witness.

With a plan of the house drawn upon the blackboard, Miss Watkins pointed out where she used to occupy a room separated from the one occupied by Dr. Thompson by a bathroom.

During the examination Miss Watkins admitted the love of herself and Dr. Thompson for each other, identified letters received by her from Dr. Thompson while he was in the east and she was in Los Angeles and which were addressed "Sweetheart" or "Little Girl," but spoke little of love. At one point she mentioned having received an engagement ring from Dr. Thompson. She explained the fact that this ring had been found upon Dr. Thompson's finger when he died by declaring she had placed it there a short time before when she started to wash dishes.

Miss Watkins also related details of Dr. Thompson's business affairs and placed a valuation of about $83,000 upon his estate, which included the sanitarium at Oakdale, 13 acres in Stanislaus county, lots in San Mateo county and lots in Richmond as well as the home at 2053 Webster street, where Miss Watkins still lives.

The witness also detailed weekend trips taken with Dr. Thompson to different points, but declared there was always some one else with them.

The attorneys for the mother and Dr. Irving Boyd Thompson, a brother, who is seeking letters of administration, are attempting to show that Miss Watkins prejudiced the mind of the deceased against his family, and by fraud, coercion and domination obtained execution of the will which gave her most of the estate.
